Great Britain Shocked.
Big Book Bonfire.
Heine In Hebrew.
President's Day.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ALL BRITAIN is shocked by the confession of William H. MacDonald, employe of Britain's Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company, who pleads guilty of sabotage and military and other spying. He confesses that he and other employes of the British company, after building gigantic turbines, proceeded to destroy that which they had created.

FOR A BRITISH concern to sell and take pay from Russia for its installation of machinery, and then for its employes to destroy what they had created, undoubtedly without the knowledge of the British company, is not only shocking treachery, if the man's confession be true, but bad for British business abroad.

THIS CONFESSION is followed by the conviction of an English officer, member of the aristocratic "Seaforth Highlanders," sentenced to prison for five years on conviction of selling England's military information to Germany.

That makes the situation more distressing. If England tells Russia that it is impossible that an Englishman should have been guilty of the conduct confessed, the Russians will ask:

"What about your Seaforth Highlander, convicted by your own court?"

The British will investigate for themselves. If convinced that MacDonald's confession was extracted by cruelty, and is false, they will end all dealings with Russia. If the confession is found to be true, they will say so, apologize and make good at their own cost the results of the confessed sabotage.

MR. HITLER'S government on May 10 will collect "seditious, un-German, Jewish, Marxist" books and burn them in 65 great bonfires, at 65 German institutions of learning.

Hundreds of thousands of books will go up in smoke, Germans being ordered to give up their "seditious" books, as Americans were ordered recently to give up their gold.

TO BE TOLD what they may read, and what they must think, will be new to German minds, especially the scientific, thinking mind.

This takes you back to the old Mohammedan ruler who ordered a great library burned "because if what the library teaches is in the Koran the library is not necessary. And if what it teaches is not in the Koran, then the library should be destroyed."

EUROPE EXPECTS trouble between France and Germany, perhaps with Italy helping Germany.

But Russia, that places Karl Marx next to Lenin in its new catalog of saints, displaying pictures of Marx as big as the side of a house, might be Mr. Hitler's first high hurdle.

THE STUDENTS association of Germany, representing Hitler ideas as to education and in charge of the book bonfire, lays down 12 rules. This is one:

"We demand that the censor compel all Jewish works to appear only in Hebrew."

It will be hard on German boys and girls, compelled to learn Hebrew or go through life without reading Heine, his "Book of Songs," and above all his Reisebilder "Travel Pictures."

Only another Heine could do justice in prose or verse to these book bonfires, and the order to print books of genius in Hebrew only.

THE SUGGESTION that Sunday, April 30, be made "President's Day," offered by W. R. Hearst in his newspapers, evidently appeals to the country. Mayor O'Brien, of New York, by official proclamation, calls on the six or eight million people in his town to "gather in their churches and offer up sincere thanks to our Lord for the advent of our leader, President Roosevelt."

Millions of small home owners in trouble, will indorse the President's Day idea when they learn that Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress to provide what may be needed to safeguard and protect homes mortgaged up to $10,000.

The additional announcement of definite plans for providing 3,000,000 jobs will add to the enthusiasm.

Gov. Olson, of Minnesota, a Farmer-Labor man, has the Minnesota Assembly with him. But Minnesota's Senate, conservative, refuses to do what Gov. Olson advises in the way of unemployment relief.

With the true Scandinavian fighting spirit, refusing to be thwarted, Gov. Olson says he will "declare martial law and confiscate private wealth," unless his relief measures are passed.

And he adds, for good measure, that in case the national and state governments fail to take appropriate action:

That is plain talk.

SPAIN OFFERED a scientific post of honor to Prof. Einstein as soon as Mr. Hitler decided that the discoverer of relativity was a menace to Germany. Now it is announced that the ancient College de France, in Paris, offers Prof. Einstein the chair of mathematical physics.

Mr. Hitler's party will discover that pushing a genius out of Germany does not necessarily

Suspect Ruse as Baby's Father 'Arranges' Operation

ROOSEVELT MAPS HUGE JOB PROGRAM

SICK BABY'S FATHER YIELDS

Agrees to Operation But Hides Details, Trick Feared

NEW YORK, April 14.—The father of 2-year-old Helen Vasco, who has stubbornly resisted every order and plea of the courts, physicians and a priest that he allow his child's left eye to be removed as the only chance of saving her life, suddenly announced that he had capitulated today.

He said that he had received a telegram today from "a big New York doctor" offering to examine Helen and do the operation without charge if one were found necessary and that he, the father, would allow it.

The opinion was expressed, however, that the announcement may be intended as a ruse to remove Helen from her alley home in Hastings-on-Hudson and from the jurisdiction of the courts.

REFUSES TO EXPLAIN

John Vasco, the father, refused to give the name or address of the doctor, he declined to say how he knew he was a "big doctor," and he refused to say when or how Helen would be taken to the doctor's office except that it would be today.

Completely reversing his previous adamant stand against it, the father said:

"We are not afraid of the operation.

"But we don't want people hanging around. We have been sick all night. We are going to take Helen to this doctor but we are going alone. Nobody is going with us."

Mrs. Vasco appeared at the door as her husband talked. She cried:

"Out of my house."

Mrs. Vasco refused to allow another mother who went through just such an ordeal of indecision to visit and comfort her.

PLEADING VAIN

A friend pleaded in vain with the parents to listen to Mrs. Elizabeth Strosser. The latter's son, James, underwent such an operation and lived. Helen has a malignant tumor. Vasco said:

"No, we don't want to see anybody. We will do this ourselves."

"The law knows best. If the law says take child's eye I say all right."

He disclosed, however, that although he was resigned to the operation his wife was still obdurate. He said he stayed home from work today to try to convince her. He said:

"My wife unready say all right yet. My wife insane with so many people. They drive Anna, Helen's twin sister, sick. Why don't people let us alone.' They're our children."

SISTER RECOVERS

It was a sudden fever contracted by Anna, the second of the two-year-old twins to fall sick, which precipitated the barricade and the threat to use boiling water on intruders. Previously the parents had merely refused permission for the operation on Helen. Today Anna was reported entirely recovered.

Vasco, a recent immigrant, who has a part-time job given him by the local unemployment relief committee, appealed to police when he removed the barricade from his door today to protect

JUDGES TO TAKE SALARY CUT

Judges of Allegheny County's Common Pleas Court are expected to take a cut of 10 per cent in their salaries shortly.

Judges of the Superior Court have announced their willingness to return 10 per cent of their present salaries during the next two years, provided the Legislature does not change their pay schedule.

Announcement of the decision of the Superior Court judges, it is said, will be followed by a similar announcement by the 14 Common Pleas Court judges here.

The seven Superior Court judges discussed the matter at their session here this week and announcement was made of their decision today. The six Superior Court judges are paid $18,000 a year each and the president judge $18,500. The Common Pleas Court judges receive $14,000 per year.

HERRON'S 'AX' DUE TOMORROW

Mayor John S. Herron's ax will not fall today, but it is expected to descend tomorrow among the higher-ups of the police department, according to the word at City Hall.

Mayor Herron said:

"There will be no change today. This is Good Friday."

He indicated that something may be expected tomorrow in the Department of Public Safety.

Apparently nothing has developed at City Hall to dissipate the rumors now in circulation. This is what observers say will happen:

Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh's job will go to Franklin T. McQuaide, former city detective. Director of Public Safety James M. Clark will go to make room for Attorney Harmar D. Denny, Jr. City Treasurer Richard W. Thompson will be replaced by H. R. Hilliard, former banker and friend of Councilman George S. Oliver. City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt will be removed in favor of his assistant, Thomas M. Benner.

They're to be married here tomorrow—Saturday, April 15.

Miss Schleiter and Horne, a New York broker, postponed their January wedding after taking out a license on the 13th. The ceremony was scheduled for the 14th, but Horne was taken ill.

RUTH SHAKEN AT SANITY HEARING

Breakdown Feared as Final Test to Avoid Noose Arrives

FLORENCE, Ariz., April 14.—(AP.)—Winnie Ruth Judd came from her cell in a nervous, unsettled mood today for the beginning of probably the last legal contest over her life—a hearing in Pinal County Court to establish whether she is insane.

If a jury of 12 men finds she is deranged mentally, she will be committed to the Arizona Hospital for insane instead of forfeiting here life next Friday on the gallows for killing Agnes Anne Leroi in the so-called "trunk murder" case.

Having spent a night of unrest, with periods of hysteria, the 28-year-old condemned woman's nerves and temper appeared stretched to the breaking point when she was summoned from the woman's ward of the Arizona State Prison.

RESISTS MATRONS

She resisted efforts of matrons to put on her coat. She snapped:

"I don't like that coat. I never want to see that coat again."

Finally, she calmed partially and the coat was placed about her shoulders.

When she entered the courtroom after the short drive from the prison in Warden A. G. Walker's automobile, a measure of composure had been restored, but her face twitched and she frowned convulsively at frequent intervals.

Shortly after the proceedings started and while her counsel were arguing over the drawing of the jury, Dr. Joseph Catton, of San Francisco, and Dr. Paul Bowers, of Los Angeles, psychiatrists, who testified for the state at Mrs. Judd's trial in 1932, entered the courtroom.

IGNORES ALIENISTS

The blonde young woman did not notice them.

Dr. Catton, whose analysis of Mrs. Judd's mentality stirred her to anger at the trial which resulted in her conviction, took a seat at the side of the room and observed Mrs. Judd while unobserved by her.

Mrs. Judd flushed in anger once when a photographer snapped a flashlight in front of her. She exclaimed:

"Why, you dirty coward."

Arguments over the methods of procedure—whether County Attorney Will C. Truman or Mrs. Judd's counsel should bear the burden of proof—delayed the start of actual selection of a jury.

The hearing was granted by Superior Court Judge E. L. Green on petition of County Attorney Truman. The County Attorney's action was mandatory after Warden Walker had expressed belief Mrs. Judd might be insane, and asked a jury hearing.

Swimmer Marries, Fails to Keep Secret

YUMA, Ariz., April 14.—(Universal)—Clarence L. "Buster" Crabbe, 24, swimming champion of the Olympic games of last year in Los Angeles, was "secretly" married here yesterday to Miss Adah Virginia Held, 20.

The License Bureau was pledged to secrecy, but a girl in the building recognized the swimming champion.

Easter Morning Rain and Cold Forecast

Chilly weather and possibly light rain may spoil milady's Easter finery if she ventures outdoors too early Sunday morning.

The government Weather Bureau reported present indications are that the temperature will be in the 30s and cold rain, or at least cloudy skies, are in prospect.

Easter may be more favorable for spring bonnets later in the day, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said. Storm clouds were expected to pass Saturday night and early Sunday.

Since 1890, 18 Easters have fallen within a week of April 16. Nine have been rainy days. The average temperature has been approximately 50.

CITY TRADE IN EASTER UPTURN

Volume of Business Here Satisfactory To Leaders

Easter business in Pittsburgh stores is reported highly satisfactory and much better than merchants here generally expected.

Heads of department stores expressed themselves much pleased with the volume of holiday trade. One store executive said:

"It has got past the point now where it is merely a matter of better feeling. Better business is here."

BROAD UPTURN

Retail business was not the only line to feel the stimulation of the Easter upturn. Steady improvement has been noticed in the last three weeks in iron and steel, electric power and coal output.

Business activity in every line has increased steadily during that period, according to the index compiled by the Bureau of Business Research, University of Pittsburgh.

The same index, however, shows that all lines are less active than in April of last year.

Better business is reported at the glass factories of the district owing chiefly to demand for bottles brought by the return of beer and some spring requirements of plate glass from the automobile industry.

Nation-wide Trade Sets New Mark for Year

NEW YORK, April 14.—(INS.)—Retail buying soared to a new high for the year this week.

The lumber and machinery industries in particular are benefitting from the enormous demand for beer that is taking the capacities of the breweries.

The review stated:

"Progress has been spurred by the appearance of indices to show that expansion now is resting on a solid basis.

"While trade expansion during the week was most marked in wholesale and retail distribution, there was a reflection of higher manufacturing schedules in the increase in the number of employed and the decrease in the number of relief beneficiaries which dropped for the first time since fall.

"The rebound in steel operations is particularly significant, as it is viewed as a reflection of the more rapid stride at which general commercial activity is moving."

LUTHER DENIES NAZI THREATS

NEW YORK, April 14.—(INS.)—Fearing a Communist demonstration, secret service men today took Dr. Hans Luther, Germany's new ambassador, off the Bremen at quarantine on a government tug.

He was rushed to Jersey City where he was to take a train to Washington to present his credentials as representative of the Hitler government.

Dr. Luther emphatically denied a published report that Adolf Hitler had forced him to resign as president of the Reichsbank and branded as a falsehood a story that two Nazis had broken into his office, tearing open his coat and ordering him to resign, as they flourished guns in his direction.

He refused to answer a barrage of questions fired at him on alleged Jewish persecution.

Fliers Escape Death As Ships Crash in Air

PUBLIC WORK TO INVOLVE BILLIONS

Federal, State and City Co-Operation Sought

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—The administration today rounded into shape plans for a far-reaching employment program designed to bring federal, state and local agencies behind an enormous public works drive.

Secretary Francis Perkins, who has been working on the employment program for President Roosevelt, said that a two or three billion dollar public works program could be put under way within four or five months.

PUBLIC WORKS

At a press conference, she revealed the view that such a program should embrace federal, state, county and city projects such as water works, grade crossing elimination, road building, slum clearance and building lost-cost homes in spots where there were "pools of unemployment."

The whole question of unemployment and relief was to be discussed at the White House late in the afternoon by President Roosevelt and Senators Wagner (Dem.), of New York; Cutting (Rep.), of New Mexico; La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, and Costigan (Dem.), of Colorado.

The visit of the Senators to the White House was to give them an opportunity to discuss with the President a general program for relief of unemployment through public works, shorter working hours and possibility of minimum wage legislation.

LABOR PROGRAM

The President listened sympathetically last night to proposals of American labor for a huge public works construction program, involving a bond issue of four to six billions, and including a minimum wage clause in the prospective shorter work week legislation.

Besides considering these propositions, Mr. Roosevelt is looking hopefully to his recommendations now before Congress to ease the debt burden on agriculture and small home owners as forward steps in the reconstruction program, now aimed more definitely at checking deflation.

The President has virtually completed a plan for a bond issue of several billions to finance new public construction. He was represented last night as ready to consider a federal minimum wage scale in the impending legislation to spread work by shorter hours.

Miss Perkins, who accompanied the labor group to the White House, said later that she believed a federal minimum wage law "feasible."

GENERAL STIMULANT

At her conference today, the Labor Secretary said the special value of a public works program lay in the fact that it utilized brick, concrete, steel and such materials knowns as "capital goods" and prompted the purchase of food and clothing of the type known as "consumers goods," at the same time giving work to the contractors in a class between the two, and thus proving a general stimulant to private industry.

However, she said, the ultimate aim must be to return people to the mills, mines, factories, and telephone offices where they normally work.

The mobilization of industry by opening large numbers of factories immediately, she pronounced "highly desirable but difficult to achieve under any artificial plan."

President Day, April 30, Proclaimed by Herron

Mayor John S. Herron today called upon the citizens of Pittsburgh to join in the national observance of President Day, April 30.

And in so doing, Pittsburgh joins the ranks of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Baltimore and virtually every city of importance in the nation, which likewise is setting aside the day to pay tribute to the nation's chief.

Gov. Pinchot and many other state executives have suggested that the people remember the President on this day, while radio stations, churches, schools and civic groups plan to hold special observances.

The Mayor's proclamation:

"With the entire nation preparing for the celebration of President's Day, it is only fitting that Pittsburgh join in this national observance to give some measure of spiritual aid to our President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, in his labors on behalf of the people of our country.

"I, therefore, ask that all citizens of the City of Pittsburgh join in proper services and in private observance on Sunday, April 30, 1933, as a tribute and in supplication for spiritual guidance and support of our President in his undertakings for the betterment of conditions throughout these United States."

'LIAR' CHARGES HURLED AT BRITONS' TRIAL IN RUSSIA

SOVIET CLAIMS STIR ENGLISH DEFENDANT

Denies Giving Bribes For Sabotage At Plant

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

MOSCOW, April 14.—The word "liar" was uttered time and again today as British and Russian defendants in the Metropolitan-Vickers spy trial fought for their lives in a crowded courtroom.

The flare-up of emotions occurred after evidence was introduced linking Allan Monkhouse, British director of the Soviet branch of the electrical firm, with a specific charge of bribery.

A. T. Lobanov, six-foot, 200-pound former chief of the exploitation department of the Ivgres electric plant in the Moscow region, was one of the chief witnesses.

His hair shaved close in the approved Russian fashion and with a pair of glasses balanced on his nose, Lobanov stood before the microphone and laconically asserted he and his assistants systematically wrecked the plant at the instigation of Charles Nordwell, another of the six British defendants.

In exchange, he said, Nordwall gave him a fur coat and paid him 5,000 rubles. He gave some of the money to his assistants, who included V. P. Lebedev, who corroborated the testimony.

Summoned for rebuttal testimony, the Russian passed the lie back to him.

Under vigorous examination, Nordwall speaking in clear, staccato Russian, repeatedly reiterated his complete denial he ever had any such dealings with Lobanov or anyone else. Andrey Vyshinsky, the prosecutor, tried with all the force at his command to break down these denials, but failed.

The trial has reached the point where the Russian defendants are falling over one another to incriminate themselves and involve the Britons along with them.

FRANCE WAVERS ON DEBTS

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(INS.)—Although mildly surprised at the failure of Andre de Laboulaye, the new French Ambassador, to bring assurances that France would pay the $19,000,000 debt installment due this government last December, administration officials today expressed gratification at his statement that French public opinion was "wavering" in favor of payment.

President Roosevelt received assurances from authoritative French sources some time ago that France soon would meet her obligation, and it was expected the new Ambassador would bring word to this effect.

BANKER DENIES TAX CHARGE

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, pleaded not guilty today to an indictment handed up yesterday charging him with evading his 1930 income tax.

Mitchell had previously pleaded not guilty to an earlier indictment charging him wth evasion of his income tax for 1929.

Trial on the first indictment had been placed on the calendar for next Monday, but when Mitchell pleaded today United States Attorney George Z. Medalie announced he would move on Monday to consolidate the two indictments.

Over the protest of Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mitchell, Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman thereupon set April 24 as the date for trial.

FARM INFLATION VOTE LOOMS

WASHINGTON, April 14. —(AP.)—A direct test vote on inflation impended in the Senate today as members resumed consideration of the sweeping administration farm program with its varied machinery for lifting prices to 1909-1914 levels and refinancing agricultural debts.

As a substitute for the Roosevelt mortgage plan, Senator Frazier (Rep.), of North Dakota, planned to offer his bill to refinance farm debts at 1½ per cent interest and yearly payment of 1½ per cent on the principal, employing broad inflation to cover the financing.

Note Holder's Gun Routs Farmer Mob

LEMARS, Ia., April 14.—(AP.)—Andrew McClintock still had in his possession today a rent note against Alfred Molzen, after he had routed a crowd of 80 farmers who sought to force him to give up the document.

PLAY 'VILLIAN' ENDS LIFE

PIERCETON, Ind., April 14.—(INS.)—Carl Bill, 16-year-old senior selected for the role of the "Black Terror" in the mystery play, "Oh Kay," which was to have been presented by the graduating class of the Pierceton High School here on April 21, lay dead here today, a victim of the gun with which he was to have portrayed the swashbuckling stage villain.

A sufferer from periodic attacks of bone tumors, young Bill turned the "Black Terror's" revolver on himself when he discovered that he might have to undergo another operation.

The youth left two notes, one addressed to his sweetheart, Miss Elaine Turney, 16, a classmate. The other to his parents read:

"I hope you will not think I was a coward. God must have been wanting me, for He was slowly killing me. Forgive me for all my sins. I have committed. I hope to see you in heaven."

'NIGHT RIDERS' BEAT MINERS

CHARLEROI, Pa., April 14.—(INS.)—Police today were searching for three "night riders" who attack and intimidate working miners and make a fast get away.

Early today John Pellegri, 40, and Sam Achio, 40, both of Daisytown, were approaching the Richeyville mine when the "night riders" suddenly appeared in an automobile. Both miners were beaten and left unconscious on the road. Several similar attacks have been reported.

Picket Arrested By Mine Guards

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 14. — County officers today were patrolling the property of the Republic Steel Corporation, at Republic, where strike leaders formed picket lines and accosted miners en route to work. One picket was arrested.

Company officials say the strike has had little effect on the 384 workmen employed on alternate days.

Baby Killed in Crib By Mysterious Fire

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP.)—A mysterious fire that started in a baby's crib, causing fatal burns to 5-month-old Gerald Anderson, was being investigated by police today.

The fire occurred in the hotel room of the mother, Mrs. Alma Anderson, who was in another part of the building with friends at the time. Questioned by police, she was hysterical and said she does not smoke nor was anyone who does smoke near the infant's crib, prior to the blaze.

2-CENT LETTER RATE SPEEDED

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—House leaders and postoffice officials agreed at a conference with President Roosevelt today on a reduction in local letter postage to two cents, with authority for the President to raise or lower the postal rates generally.

Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Postmaster General Farley headed the delegation consulting with the President. Arrangements were made for immediate introduction of the new postal legislation.

The local or "drop" letters are those which are delivered within the city or within the postoffice district in which they are mailed.

The present three cent rate would be maintained for letters going out of the city of origin.

U. S. TO RETAIN DOPE BUREAU

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(Universal.) — Narcotics enforcement will be continued in the Roosevelt administration as a separate governmental function, notwithstanding arguments that small economies would result by a consolidation of the narcotics and prohibition bureaus.

This decision was arrived at after a study of the Geneva treaty, which the United States and more than a score of nations have signed.

SEES U. S. 'LED' BY BRITAIN IN ARMS BAN

Roosevelt's Embargo Move Assailed by McFadden

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The charge that the Administration's arms embargo resolution was introduced in Congress at the instance of Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, was made by Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, in a speech in the House today.

McFadden's charge came as a part of a determined fight to halt passage of the resolution which gives the President power to declare an arms embargo in cooperation with other nations.

McFadden said:

"There's an undisclosed reason for this resolution. Why not call the Secretary of State and the former Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, and find out what it is?

"The President is being deceived. I believe it would be right and proper for Congress to withhold this legislation lest he (the President) be tempted to do with this authority something that should not be done.

"My fear is that if this legislation is given him to declare an embargo against Japan that within 30 days we will witness a declaration of war against the United States by Japan."

Representative Bakewell (Rep.), of Connecticut, a professor at Yale until his election to Congress, told the House that "this resolution urged as a step toward peace is really a step toward war." He added:

"The President has definitely expressed himself as in favor of taking action against an aggressor nation, as he could under this resolution. That is not an act of neutrality.

"This would simply mean that we are joining the League of Nations."

PLAN ACCORDED TENTATIVE APPROVAL

Public Warned Not To Look for Too Great Benefits

The effect on Allegheny County's numerous building and loan associations of President Roosevelt's plan for the formation of a system of federal savings and loan associations is being studied closely here.

The possible results of the formation of a $2,000,000,000 corporation for the refinancing of existing home mortgages are also being considered.

At first glance, building and loan association leaders here were apparently ready to approve the President's proposals. Several, however, reserved their decisions until they have an opportunity to study the text of the bill.

WARNING GIVEN

Horner pointed out that there can be no wholesale downward revision of the face value of mortgages without the consent of the holders of the mortgages. He said:

"The public should be forewarned not to expect too much. They should not be misled in this case as by the rumors that it was possible for an individual to get as much money as one wanted from the Home Loan Bank or the Reconstruction Finance Corporation."

CONTRACTS UPHELD

William E. Best, leader among building and loan men in the Pittsburgh district, also declared that there is no way by which the sanctity of an existing contract can be violated. He approved the President's plan, saying:

"From what knowledge I have of the plan, I am inclined to believe the President is on the right road. I am sure the building and loan associations will co-operate in the effort to relieve conditions."

Greater activity is expected at the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Home Loan Bank as it is proposed to handle much of the refinancing through the home loan banks throughout the nation.

F. R. ASKS WIDE TARIFF POWERS

WASHINGTON, April 14. —(INS.)—President Roosevelt wants to be armed with real authority when he sits down next week to talk world-wide tariff reduction with Premier MacDonald and the representatives of 10 other uowers who will follow MacDonald to Washington.

To that end, Mr. Roosevelt plans to ask Congress to confer upon him the greatest tariff-making powers ever asked by any White House incumbent. The draft of a bill to carry out his ideas is in its final stages and probably will be sent to Congress within a week.

Mr. Roosevelt wants specific authority not only to negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements with other powers but authority to enter into a multi-lateral treaty providing for horizontal tariff reductions if one can be worked out at the forthcoming world economic conference.

Fighting Suit

MRS. BUSTER KEATON

KEATON FIGHTS SLUR IN SUIT

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—(INS.)—Buster Keaton, film comedian, today struck back at a suit for $2,585 damages filed against him and his bride, the former Mae Scrivens, who was his nurse, by Mrs. Edith Botchford, of San Francisco.

Mrs. Botchford alleged that Keaton and his wife, then Miss Scrivens, borrowed the automobile and damaged it.

Keaton, in a motion, asked that a statement in Mrs. Botchford's complaint be stricken. The statement said the actor and nurse were married after the car accident "and now are living together and hold themselves forth as man and wife."

Keaton's divorce from Miss Natalie Talmadge does not become final in California until August, and Keaton said:

"The marriage is okeh in Mexico, but I guess I'm not legally married in the United States, for I'm not legally divorced yet."

mean that he must starve to death.

DURING THE last week England's gold supply was increased by ten million dollars, the total being short a little of a thousand millions.

France, always accumulating gold, has on hand more than eighty thousand million francs worth, or about three thousand two hundred and sixteen million dollars.

It is to be hoped that this government, which will not allow individual citizens to have any gold, will also refuse to let any go abroad.

THIS IS important for those that love the American dollar. Its value is falling off in Europe just now, because Europe believes that we are in for inflation.

LONG ASSAILS OUSTER PLEA BY FOES

Senate Committee to Pass on Charges Of Corruption

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 14. — The petition of ex-Gov. John M. Parker and other Louisiana citizens, charging Senator Huey P. Long with corruption, immorality and dishonesty, was referred by the Senate today to its judiciary committee to determine whether it should be received and whether it was a "privileged document."

Long raised the issue. He asked the Senate to decide whether political enemies of a senator could file documents, making false charges, and be privileged from punishment for libel.

Long called the Senate's attention to the petition as soon as it convened. He declared:

"This petition was signed by a former Governor of Louisiana (John M. Parker) with whom I have been engaged in countless court battles for the last 15 years. I've also fought him in countless political campaigns.

"Now if my enemies can do this to me, the same thing can be done to every other Senator.

"There's nothing to prevent an enemy saying that Senator Jones from X state has seven illegitimate children. There's nothing to prevent some one filing a petition saying Senator Smith from Y state burned down a Catholic church and killed four nuns. We have no protection at all."

Senator Ashurst, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, declared he was "not without sympathy for the Senator from Louisiana, but added:

"He who lives by sword shall die by the sword. I believe the law of compensation does its perfect work and no one escapes it.

"If we in the Senate were more careful in respecting human character and the reputations of other persons, we would feel more sympathetic for ourselves when we are assailed with calumny."

HERRON NAMES HEALTH AIDES

Mayor John Herron today announced appointment of a new honorary committee of physicians to consult with officials of the City Health Department on general health problems.

This committee will be in direct contact with Health Director William W. McFarland, and will work in a manner similar to methods followed by the Better Traffic Committee in traffic problems.

Police Seek Identity Of Woman in Trunk

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Police were still without clues today to the identity of a middle-aged woman whose body was found yesterday in a trunk under the Madison Avenue Bridge across the Harlem River.

A medical examiner's report said the woman had died from blood poisoning resulting from face and neck wounds inflicted about 10 days ago.

Roxie Long Seeks Pen, Outcast in Jail

He's in the Allegheny County Jail and wants to get out and into a federal penitentiary. Fellow prisoners have made him an outcast. They call him "squealer" and perhaps worse.

They refuse to have anything to do with him because he turned state's evidence in a liquor conspiracy case. Today he asked Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans to take him out of that jailhouse. During the few days he's been in, the jailers have moved him into different cells—four tiers he's visited, once under a different name. But the prisoners keep after him.

Whether federal authorities will move him immediately to a federal penitentiary is problematical. He turned state's evidence, pleaded guilty to liquor violations and got a year. Approximately 40 others were sentenced in the same case, largely upon his testimony. Some of them are in the countp jail.

50,000 in State Ready To Open Fishing Season

HARRISBURG, April 14—(PP.)—The streams are running clear and not unusually high, the snow's disappearing from the highlands, and some 50,000 Pennsylvania fishermen and fisherwomen today are wondering how the trout are running.

Followers of the ancient sport with rod and reel are told by R. H. Stackhouse, state fish commission secretary, that conditions "look very good" for the season's opening tomorrow.

There'll be lots of big ones to bite or to get away, with the state's new policy of stocking only trout of legal size. About 2,000,000 were planted last year by the state and federal governments.

While Izaak Walton's male disciples are debating whether to use worms, minnows, wet flies or dry flies, and hooking the vase off the piano with practice casts, fisherwomen around Kane are looking forward to having one grand time of their own.

Fuller Brook, three miles long and filled with trout, has been set aside exclusively for women. There's a penalty for males who trespass on the female happy fishing grounds.

Gov. Pinchot is at his home in Milford, ready to wade the streams of Pike County, while his fellow citizens splash along other brooks and runs throughout the state.

JUNE MASTASCUSA . . . SHE PUSHED A PIN INTO HERSELF

RECOVER 'LOST' PIN IN BABY

Attaches at Homestead Hospital were preparing to conduct an X-ray search for a pin, which, lodged in Baby June Mastascusa's nose, was swallowed by the child when the pin was recovered today.

June, not quite 2, awoke crying yesterday morning. Her mother, Jennie Mastascusa, investigating, discovered the pin in her nose. The child was rushed to Homestead Hospital.

An interne, after examination, ordered the child removed to the offices of Dr. Walter E. Brown, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist of Homestead. Dr. Brown said when he looked for the pin it had disappeared.

He explained that it had been dislodged by the child herself and she had swallowed it.

Dr. Brown said he would make an X-ray examination if there were any serious developments.

GIRLS TAKE CAR FROM ESCORT

He went riding through the South Hills with two girl companions from the East End.

Early today they insisted that their escort take them home. He resisted. They insisted.

The man made his way to Mt. Lebanon Police Station and reported his automobile stolen. It was broadcast over the Pittsburgh police radio and a short time later recovered near the girls' home. The man said he did not wish to prosecute.

PLOT IN SCHOOL FIRES CHARGED

SIMSBURY, Conn., April 14.—(AP.)—The second fire in as many days last night destroyed another large dormitory at the Ethel Walker School, fashionable preparatory and finishing school for girls. State police, after questioning several men, said the fire was of incendiary origin.

The fire, discovered while 100 students were in the dining hall on the main floor, leveled the four-story frame building known as "The Four Corners." All the students filed out of the dining hall without disorder.

The structure, containing sleeping quarters for freshmen, was about a quarter of a mile from the Beaver Brook Building which was destroyed Tuesday afternoon at a loss estimated by school officials at $200,000. Last night's fire caused about $100,000 damage.

Both fires started in the basements.

With the destruction of the two buildings, the school now has only one dormitory, this being assigned to seniors.

State police said they expected to make arrests in the case.

MYSTERY TRIP OF M'GOVERN NEAR END

Commissioner Is Due At N. Y. Tomorrow; Berlin Visit Hinted

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern was due back in Pittsburgh tomorrow from a month's vacation trip, the whereabouts of which was something of a mystery. He apparently has been in Europe.

When McGovern left the city his friends said they thought his destination was to be Bermuda. His associates, however, were not sure.

Today Mrs. Henry Russell, 146 Plymouth street, Mt. Washington, a neighbor of the McGoverns, disclosed she had received a letter with a Berlin postmark from Mrs. McGovern, who accompanied her husband. She said it had been written on a steamship, but refused to reveal the name of the ship.

This letter was taken to indicate McGovern may have been in the German capital during the recent turbulent activities of the Hitlerites.

Miss Rose Danahey, private secretary to McGovern, went to New York yesterday, it was learned, to meet the McGoverns as their boat was scheduled to arrive.

CUBA IN TERROR OVER BOMBINGS

HAVANA, Cuba, April 14.—(AP.)—Troops were called to stamp out terrorism today after 17 bomb explosions killed one person and injured three or four.

The blasts came yesterday and last night on the heels of several anonymous letters to police headquarters warning that yesterday would start "Red week in Havana."

Cavalry was called out after police had started a roundup of persons suspected of terroristic tendencies and opposition to the rule of the President Machado. The mounted troops patrolled Galiano street, while throughout the city automobiles were stopped at gunpoint and searched.

Police seized a score of youths, including three unidentified students, who were taken from the Fifth Police Station to Atares Castle. Police patrols armed with machine guns guarded against further outbreaks.

STONES IN NEW P.O. CRACK

Stone blocks in the new $4,596,000 Federal Building have cracked, it became known today.

Seven fissures have appeared in the stone veneer at the northeast corner of the building, in Grant street, but United States government authorities deny the damage is great.

Maj. Robert A. Greenfield, United States engineer, in charge of the construction project being carried out by Aronberg-Fried Company, Inc., of New York, attributes the cracking to expansion and contraction caused by winter temperatures. If denied it was due to a faulty foundation.

The foundation rests on solid rock, 75 feet below the street level, Maj. Greenfield said. He added:

"It is nobody's fault. These things occur in many buildings, and steps are being taken to remedy them. The matter has been taken up fully in a report to Washington. Temperatures often cause contraction and expansion in materials, either in stone or the steel frame work. It is not serious."

FALLS ICE JAM BAFFLES STORK

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 14.—(AP.)—With Grand Island isolated for the second time within two weeks by an ice jam in the Niagara River, authorities today were seeking a method of transporting several expectant mothers to hospitals on the mainland.

Ferry service has been held up for the past two days and mail and supplies have been carried to the island by rowboats below the jam.

The women have declined to make the passage in the small boats lest the boats be caught in the ice and officials said they would not be able to move them to hospitals until the ice moved out.

Rivermen today described the jam as the worst they have seen in more than 60 years.

2 Sharon Slayers Fight Doom in Chair

COLUMBUS, O., April 14.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court took under advisement the appeals of Ralph Atterholt and Tony Rotunno, both of Sharon, Pa., from first degree murder sentences.

The two are sentenced to die in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary April 28 for the slaying of Scott Vasbinder, a Newton Falls merchant policeman, the night of July 5 last during an attempt to rob a store.

Ruffled Mellon Policeman Fails To Win 'Balm'

The dignity of John Frey, private Woodland road policeman for A. W. Mellon and other residents of the haute monde, received no balm in Morals Court today.

Frey was insulted last night, he said, by three boys.

Frey is no crank; he said he could have overlooked it once or even twice. But when, he contends, they drove past him four times, always with a repetition of the malicious gesture, Frey said that was too much. He called a police car.

But the boys denied thumbing before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones this morning. They had merely smiled at the policeman, they testified. Jones discharged them.

The boys were John G. Cohen, 19, Forbes street; Sanford Bausman, 17, Woodwell street, and Edward Scully, 19, Bartlett street.

GIRL, 2, WOMEN IN PARTY FREED

A night of revelry ended in Morals Court today, with three men held for investigation and two women and a 14-year-old girl released—the last to her mother.

The men held said they were Saul Gilbert, Joseph Darlands and James Abbonoici. The women released said they were Mildred Bush, 21, of 1201 West North avenue, and Dona Anderson, 27, of 1109 Western avenue. Laverne Downey, 14, 211 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, was turned over to her mother. They had been taken into custody on complaint of Mrs. Downey.

She said she became alarmed when Laverne had not returned home after midnight and notified detectives.

Laverne testified she drank two highballs, had told the men she was 19 and had gone with the rest of the party to a club.

the family from intrusion by curiosity seekers.

Since the Vasco case first entered the courts crowds have driven and walked through the muddy little street on which stands the humble home of the Vascos, congregated in the yard and even peeked through the windows, until the boiling water threat drove them to safer ground today.

Police responded promptly to Vasco's plea today. The block was closed to all vehicular traffic, an area about the house was roped off, and no one was allowed to approach except on business.

BLINDNESS SEEN

Little Helen's affliction was described today as a glioma or tumor on the retina of the left eye. It was said that its removal might not necessitate removal of the eye ball, but would cause blindness in that eye, as it is the retina on which the optical image is received.

The appellate division of the Supreme Court, to which Judge George Smyth, of the Children's Court, referred his decision ordering the operation, has recessed until May 1, but it may file its decision at any time. Preference for the case was requested by Judge Smyth so that the operation might not be delayed if the higher court decided he had the right to order it.

PARENTS' FEAR OF SURGERY PERILS 2

Measure to Compel Medical Treatment Being Pushed

A bill that would give Juvenile Court power to insist that every ill child be given medical care, even when the parents object, is now being pushed in the State Legislature.

It would prevent parents from endangering or perhaps condemning their children to death as in the case of little 2-year-old Helen Vasco, of Hastings, N. Y. Surgeons say an operation is needed to save the life of Baby Helen. Her parents had refused to permit the child to go under the knife.

LOCAL CASE CITED

Miss Grace Stoakes, chief probation officer of Juvenile Court, today said she is handling a case similar to the one in New York. A 12-year-old boy is in need of an operation for cross-eyes, but the father objects to any surgical aid. She said:

"The operation would prevent the boy from being handicapped in later life. The new bill in such a case would give the court precedence over the opinion of the parent where the child's welfare is at stake."

At present, Miss Stoakes explained, it is necessary to get a court order in cases where medical treatment is to be given against the will of the parents. Most of the judges, she said, grant such orders.

Judge Richard A. Kennedy, of County Court, said he has granted several such orders for medical treatment. One, he recalled, was for a girl with a tubercular arm. The mother left the Courthouse when the order was made, but after the operation, Judge Kennedy said she came back to kiss his hand. He said:

"The bill in the Legislature will be a case of putting a law in the statutes which was enacted before but unwritten."

The bill has been given its second reading in the House. It was introduced by Representative Max Spann. If enacted it would set up a newly constituted Juvenile Court. It would be called the Children's Court and would be separate from the County Court and would have one judge in charge, elected for a term of 10 years.

POLITICAL RULE HIT

Judge Sara M. Soffel, of Juvenile Court, had one objection to make to the new bill—control of a judge by a political boss.

She added:

"The Judge should be elected on his desire to sit in such a court. He should have a knowledge of psychology and social affairs. He should be interested in the child and devoted exclusively to that job."

Mrs. John M. Phillips, chairman of legislation for the Legislative Council of Western Pennsylvania, is backing the bill along with Senator James J. Coyne and others. Referring to the Vasco case, she said:

"Under the new bill, the court in extreme cases of that kind would have the power to make decisions for the best interests of the child when the parents are not qualified."

Pittsburgh also has another medical case somewhat similar to the one in Hastings. W. F. H. Wentzel, superintendent of the Humane Society, said today that a child with a tubercular spine recently was taken from one of the city hospitals by the parents. To secure necessary medical treatment for the child he will have to get an order of court. He pointed out:

"The proposed new court, as I understand it, would make a prompt study and disposition of such a case."

JUVENILE PROBLEMS

Curtis A. Williams, secretary of the Pennsylvania committee on penal affairs of the Public Charities Association, said:

"Only under a judge chosen on the basis of particular qualifications and to serve over a period of years with full control, can there be any guarantee of a progressive development of a juvenile court system to adequately control, protect and treat the ever-increasing number of children demanding court attention as the result of modern social conditions."

The juvenile court bill would affect only Allegheny County.

Several groups that have indorsed it include the League of Women Voters, the Civic Club, the Federation of Social Agencies of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, the Council of Churches and the Allegheny County Bar Association.

CITY OBSERVES GOOD FRIDAY HOLIDAY

Observing the day, city and county offices, as well as courts, banks, and the stock exchange are closed.

Burgess William M. Turner, of Wilkinsburg, has called upon all business places in the borough to suspend activity from noon to 3 p. m. His proclamation stated:

"When so much unemployment, poverty and anxiety are gripping our national life, would it not be well to pause and silence our ordinary activities?"

Schools within the district will be closed all day.

Representative Boehne, in whose district Santa Claus lies, said he was prepared to submit to Farley a recommendation for the appointment.

Good Friday Rituals Led by Pope in Rome

Solemn Procession Completes Ancient Holy Week Rite

VATICAN CITY, April 14.—(AP.)—Pius XI, barely in his 'teens when a Pope last carried the Blessed Sacrament in Good Friday procession, revived that custom today on the nineteen hundredth anniversary of the death of Christ.

He bore it reverently back to the Sistine Chapel, from which he had taken it yesterday to be exposed over Holy Thursday, and there said a special mass.

A colorful escort, including the highest dignitaries of the church, accompanied the 75-year-old Pontiff from the Pauline Chapel, where the Sacrament had been left. His Holiness was attired in spotless white. He walked the short distance with slow but sure steps, appearing in excellent health.

Black-vestmented priests prostrated themselves before the altars of Rome's 400 churches in traditional Good Friday rituals. Holy year pilgrims, including many Americans, flocked to the temples for the services.

Organs and church bells were silent throughout the day. Between noon and 3 p. m., the hours when Christ hung on the cross, the city's streets were deserted. Everyone was either in church or at home.

Some of Christianity's most highly prized relics were on display this morning in the Church of St. Peter's, St. John's and Holy Cross.

A steady stream of worshippers ascended the holy stairs in St. Salvatore Church on their knees, stopping on each step to recite a prayer. This is the only way the stairs, said to have been climbed by Christ after He was crowned with thorns, may be mounted.

St. Helena, mother of Constantine, Rome's first Christian emperor, is reported to have brought them from Jerusalem, where they furnished access to the home of Pontius Pilate.

At the top of the stairs the devout knelt before the Sancta Sanctorum, or Holy of Holies, which Vatican prelates say Pope Pius may open some time during the holy year. It is reserved to the popes, but none has visited it in the last 400 years.

Son Sees Father Swept Over Falls

ELKINS, W. Va., April 14.—(AP.)—Slipping from a log, William Effland, 40, miner, was swept 65 feet over Blackwater Falls at Davis and was drowned. A son, George, witnessed the accident.

SECT GUARDS CROSS DRAMA

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 14.—(AP.)—Hidden away in the mountain fastnesses of New Mexico, Los Hermanos de Penitente (the Brothers of the Penitentents) today enacted with earnest realism the drama of Christ's crucifixion.

While most of the Christian world observed Good Friday with prayer, fasting and church attendance, this strange offshoot of christianity re-enacted the crucifixion in secret and under heavy guard.

In Taos and Rio Arriba counties in the northern part of the state, in small mountain villages along the Rio Grande and even in the nearby Sandia Mountains the Penitente processions moved to the appointed place to worship and do penance in their own way.

Few people outside the sect have ever witnessed the actions of these religious zealots. The taking of photographs is strictly forbidden and several persons in years gone by have escaped the ire of the Penitentes after losing their cameras and equipment, to say nothing of suffering bruises and cuts for their efforts.

The Penitentes believe that by undergoing self-inflicted body torture their spirits will be cleansed.

EVICTION CURB PLAN URGED

Landlords have been asked to use money which would be spent in eviction proceedings to move tenants peaceably to other locations and pay their first month's rent, in a statement issued today by George P. Mills, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board.

Mills offers the services of the relief agencies in working out settlements between landlords and tenants. Mills said:

"Such a plan would, at no greater cost to the landlord, solve the problem without recourse to eviction."

Mills points out the cost of an eviction is from $10 to $33, and that some landlords have already adopted the practice of moving out non-paying tenants and paying their first month's rent in other quarters.

OLSON ACCUSED OF 'POLITICS'

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 14.—(INS.)—The next move in the contest between Gov. Floyd B. Olson and the State Senate over immediate enactment of relief legislation was awaited today in the upper house.

That the Farmer-Labor Governor is "playing politics to mislead the people" was the charge hurled by State Senator A. J. Rockne, Republican, when the special message of Gov. Olson urging quck action on relief legislation was referred to the Finance Committee of which Rockne is chairman.

The Governor followed up his threat to declare martial law in Minnesota and confiscate the wealth of the state with a direct plea to the Legislature to grant use of the state's cash "to take care of its own."

2 MEN KILLERS, WOMAN HUNTED

JOPLIN, Mo., April 14.—(INS.)—A widespread search was under way in this vicinity today for two men and a woman who late yesterday killed Wes Harriman, constable, and fatally wounded Harry McGinnis, detective, as the trio shot its way to freedom.

The officers had gone to a house in a suburb with a warrant to search for liquor. As they stepped from their automobile they were met with a hail of bullets from a sawed-off shotgun and a sub-machine gun.

The two men and their woman companion, clearing a path with several bursts from the machine gun, opened a door in a basement garage and sped to freedom.

3 SLAYERS DIE IN CHAIR

EDDYVILLE, Ky., April 14.—(AP.)—John Young, Louisville white man, and Kermit Roosevelt Pope and Richard Gaines, Negroes, were executed at the state penitentiary early today.

All confessed before going to the chair. Young, however, contended the two policemen he killed were gangsters trying to shoot him.

Mt. Lebanon Choir Sings 'Crucifixion'

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Leith, pastor, will conduct a service of holy communion at the Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, Washington and Castle Shannon roads, tonight, following rendition of Sir John Stainer's cantata "The Crucifixion" by a choir of 16 voices, assisted by Mrs. James S. Murray, organ; George F. Miller, piano; Mary Redmond, violin, and William Roberts, violoncello.

Jury Split in Death Trial of Blind Man

OAKLAND, Cal., April 14.—(AP.)—After 24 hours' deliberation, the jury in the murder trial of Manuel Licon, blind man, charged with slaying his sightless friend, Joseph Parker, was dismissed because of failure to agree on a verdict.

Hit-Run Accident, Thefts Follow Cycling Fad

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—The hit-run bicycle rider and the bicycle thief gained official attention as a result of a new cycling fad.

License plates for all "bikes" were requested in a petition signed by messenger boys who reported machines being stolen at the rate of 60 or 70 a day.

Police started a search for the hit-run rider who knocked down Patrick Henry Whalen, 71, and caused fatal injuries.

PAROLED GENIUS TO GO WEST

GENEVA, Ill., April 14.—(INS.)—John E. Mellish, paroled genius lens maker, was preparing today to leave for the Pacific coast where he will continue his work under the guidance of an unnamed California friend.

Judge John Newhall granted Mellish a parole yesterday when he appeared on a statutory charge. Recognized as the greatest American maker of astronomical lens, Mellish worked by day in his lens grinding shop and spent his nights in the Kane County Jail while awaiting arraignment.

He was freed on the request of a Californian.

Yeggs Fire Plant, Chief Hurt in Fall

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(INS.)—Fire Capt. Wayne Peterman, 50, was seriously injured early today while fighting a blaze believed to have been started by safe crackers who failed in an attempt to loot two safes in the plant of E. J. Cummings, Inc., coal dealers.

Capt. Peterman suffered a fractured skull when he fell 15 feet from the roof of the plant's garage, which together with three trucks, was damaged by the flames.

Milk Again Provided Needy Children Daily

Distribution of milk to the county's undernourished children was being resumed on a daily basis today due to an additional state appropriation of $680 a day for the remainder of the month of April, according to an announcement of Miss Elizabeth A. Wargo, state nurse in charge of the distribution.

Owing to a $38,000 slash in the April appropriation from the March figure, the county distribution went on a four-day basis the first of April, Miss Wargo said.

Yesterday, however, an additional $680 a day was announced, enough to purchase 9,000 additional quarts daily. It will enable distribution to be made six days a week with a double ration every Friday in the county districts.

The county's appropriation for March was $88,000. It was reduced to $50,000 in April. The funds affect districts outside of the city only.

BEER CONTROL PROPOSAL STUDIED

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 14.—Pennsylvania will have a beer control law next week unless another of those inter-factional political agreements goes awry.

Another coalition bill was in the hands of Assembly leaders today. It will be studied during the week-end recess and will be introduced Monday or Tuesday.

The Republican organization and Gov. Gifford Pinchot are in agreement on its principal features. Its passage, capitol circles were told unofficially, also will mean the enactment of Senator John J. McClure's constitutional convention bill, which provides for the election of 15 delegates at large to pass upon proposed prohibition repeal.

Under the latest beer control bill drafted by the administration, retail licenses would be issued by the county treasurers and the fees would be $200.

These features are in contrast with the Sowers-Conner conference report which gave the licensing power to judges and fixed a graduated scale of fees ranging from $75 for small towns to $300 for the largest cities.

County treasurers, it is intended, would be little more than clerks or fiscal officers in issuing licenses. The bill stipulates that only citizens of the United States residing in a community at least a year may receive licenses and they must be of reputable character. When licenses are denied the applicant may appeal to the court.

The new Pinchot bill also permits grocery and chain stores to sell beer and this is one point of difference which must be ironed out.

WESTERVILLE SPARED BEER

COLUMBUS, O., April 14.—The Village Council of Westerville, home of the Anti-Saloon League of America, requested the State Liquor Control Commission not to issue permits for beer sales there.

John M. Taylor, liquor commissioner, said the request would be granted and existing permits would be revoked.

BEERPRISONERS FREED IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., April 14.—(AP.)—Twenty-two persons, most of them convicted in the past few months for selling beer, before it was legalized by the Ohio Legislature, were pardoned by Gov. George White today.

Of the 22, six were women. The oldest violator has been in jail since August, 1932.

South Carolina Gets Beer, Deserts Drys

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 14.—(INS.)—South Carolina, stronghold of the dry forces for two decades, smashed through its "bone-dry" barrier today and became the second state of the deep South to obtain 3.2 per cent beer and wines.

Gov. Ibra Blackwood signed a beer measure that pulled the bung from the brew reservoirs and placed the state in the wet column. The measure was immediately effective.

Apartment Owners Vote to Sell Beer

Beer was available today in dining rooms of the city's large apartment buildings. The decision to sell the beverage was reached last night by the apartment house division, Building Owners and Managers Association, meeting at Haddon Hall. According to W. E. Michler, apartments abiding by the decision included Haddon Hall, King Edward, Arlington, Ruskin, Morrowfield and Webster Hall.

Florida's House Votes Beer Sales

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 14.—(AP.)—The Florida House of Representatives today voted 72 to 20 to legalize manufacture and sale of 3.2 per cent beer and wines by declaring them non-intoxicating and medicinal.

After passing the bill and sending it to the Senate, the House turned immediately to consideration of a bill to establish a taxing schedule for manufacture and sale of the beverages.

W. Va. Wets Map Out Campaign for Repeal

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 14.—(AP.)—Joining with other organizations favoring repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment at a general meeting here today to map out a campaign strategy, the Crusaders at the same time pushed plans for a permanent organization of a Southern West Virginia unit of it.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 14.—(AP.)—From Chief of Police Jacob Laubenheimer of this "beer capital of America" comes this ruling:

CANNON SCORES BEER IN W. VA.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., April 14.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., militant exponent of prohibition, who pressed the state dry cause in a ringing address last night, carried on today at Salem, where he addressed an assemblage at the Salem College auditorium.

In his address here, delivered to 500 at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, the Bishop called on the drys in general and church members in particular to wage vigorous warfare against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act.

The beer bill was put over by "lawless lawmakers," who acted with scientific evidence staring them in the face that the beverage is not only intoxicating but also unconstitutional, the Bishop declared.

FIRST REPEAL REPORT FILED

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—The first official ratification of the proposed prohibition repeal amendment was received at the State Department today from the state of Michigan.

It marked the first time in history that a ratification of a constitutional amendment by a state convention had been filed.

The formal certification bore witness to Michigan's approval of repeal as expressed in its recent convention.

Eight Face Prison By Drinking Beer

FAIRMONT, Minn., April 14.—(AP.)—To eight men in Martin, Jackson and Fairbault counties in Minnesota a drink of the new 3.2 per cent beer would mean serving a jail term—if the judge found it out.

Judge J. E. Haycraft notified the men, on suspended sentences in his judicial district, that he had added to the conditions of their suspended terms "that you refrain from the use or handling of so-called non-intoxicating 3.2 per cent beer."

Pinchot Dismisses 37 State Employes

3.2 Brew First on Capitol Hill in 30 Years

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(INS.)—Der tag, in the annals of quaffers and suds blowers arrived on Capitol Hill today, when the House Restaurant placed the old standard brands of beer on its beverage list.

Thirty years have passed since any alcoholic beverage was dispensed legally under the dome where our nation's laws are made, and the Legislators hope thereby to reduce the $12,000 annual deficit of the eating place.

The Senate so far has failed to vote beer into its restaurant, but individual members made their way to the House side, to see—perhaps taste.

WOMEN UNITE IN DRY BATTLE

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—A woman's national union for political action is to be promoted by women supporters of prohibition to fight for retention of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The form of organization and other details were approved yesterday by the convention of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement of which Mrs. Henry W. Peabody is general chairman.

The plan of the woman's union is to organize women drys in every voting unit, with state, county, city, ward and township chairmen.

Mrs. Peabody announced that an aim of the woman's union would be the mobilization of community opinion for law observance, with attention also directed against immoral literature, exploitation of women and children in industry and for a "more just distribution of the comforts and luxuries of life."

PASTOR PUSHES 'BEER BOYCOTT'

Support of Presbyterians of proposals for boycotting interests selling or aiding in the sale of beer to be presented at a meeting Monday of the Redstone Presbytery, in Scottdale, was being asked today by the Rev. Howard T. Curtiss, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Bellevernon, chairman of the presbytery's moral welfare committee.

Accompanying Dr. Curtiss' letter was a copy of a communication from Dr. W. Scott Bowman, of Uniontown, moderator of the Synod of Pennsylvania, attacking newspapers and radio stations.

The boycott would be directed at stores and restaurants selling beer and at newspapers which carry beer advertisements.

Free Beer Plan In Barber Shop Puzzles Police

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 14.—(AP.)—A Buffalo barber shop proprietor who wishes to give away a bottle of 3.2 beer with each haircut, has the Buffalo police guessing just what to do about it.

Contending he would not have to pay any fees or have any license because he was giving the beer away, the proprietor asked the police captain in charge of license investigations what he thought of the plan. The captain replied he did not know what to do about it and told the proprietor to take his questions to Federal and state authorities.

MOTHERS' AID RALLY SET

Public attention will be focused on the old age pension and mothers' assistance joint bill by a parade and mass meeting tomorrow night under auspices of fraternal and labor organizations.

The program is being arranged to insist that the Legislature pass the measure so it can be balloted on in November, according to Chairman John F. O'Toole. Sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Pittsburgh Building Trades Council, groups will participate from Butler, Washington and Beaver counties.

The parade will precede over downtown streets after forming in Water street, near Smithfield, at 7:30 p. m. The mass meeting is scheduled in the Eagle Temple, 431 Third avenue, at 8:30 o'clock. Bands, automobiles and old-fashioned redfire will feature the parade.

Homefolk Benefit By Job Army Pay

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 14.—(AP.)—Young men enrolled for the forest camps are going to send most of their pay to the homefolks Maj. S. A. Wood, in charge of men here, said:

"One of the most remarkable things so far, is the seeming unselfishness of the recruits. Every one has designated that $25 or more of his $30-a-month pay be alloted to his mother or some other dependent."

Find Drivers Here Careless of Signals

Running through traffic lights was the most frequent violation by Pittsburgh drivers in March, according to traffic safety observers.

Observers are being cautioned to watch for excessive speed and "snake driving" during April. Speeding was the most frequent cause of Pittsburgh accidents last year, the Bureau of Traffic Planning analysis shows.

GOLD RUSH AIDS FATHER COX

There is apparently a lot of old and almost forgotten gold in the form of trinkets and jewelry in the homes of Pittsburghers. About a month ago Father Cox started a campaign for donations of gold of this character. He has it melted down and sells it for cash and the proceeds are employed to carry on his welfare activities. Within the last month he has secured approximately $1,000 from this "gold rush."

His campaign for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions is getting more and more productive every day. Yesterday he made another appeal for subscriptions to this newspaper and it brought the usual gratifying response. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

Acting Postmaster Named in W. Va.

LOGAN OPPOSED FELDMAN, HE TESTIFIES

"What do you want with a constable's commission? You can sell whisky without that."

Alderman Robert Logan, Negro, of the Fifth Ward, testified yesterday that he thus answered Abe Feldman, who sought appointment as deputy constable in the ward—but the alderman agreed to the appointment.

This was part of the testimony when Feldman and Deputy Constable Hyman Shilansky came before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Quarter Sessions Court on ouster proceedings filed against them by Constable Earl R. Sams. The hearing is to be resumed Monday.

Sams testified he petitioned the court to appoint Feldman and Shilansky as his deputies early last year, and said they worked with him under Logan until last July. It was alleged they quit Logan's office and became roving constables, working for Justice of the Peace Gibbs, of Sewickley.

Logan said:

"I wasn't in sympathy with Feldman's appointment, but some of our friends persuaded me to let the fellow make a living."

Judge Gardner ruled out testimony regarding political dissension between the Alderman and the constables, and confined the testimony to allegations of improper conduct on the part of the deputies.

CURB ON TRUCK AREA FOUGHT

Argument on the Public Service Commission's right to reduce the territory a trucking business has served since 1914 was heard by the Superior Court.

The commission had restricted the service of T. N. Hostetter in Lancaster and nearby, and Hostetter appealed. He operated 13 horse-drawn vehicles and three motor trucks on January 1, 1914, and by 1920 all of his horse-drawn vehicles were replaced by 11 motor vehicles.

He applied in 1922 for development of his business. Protests were filed denying that prior to the effective date of the Public Service Commission law, he had served by motor vehicle the territory designated in the petition.

The commission in 1932 gave Hostetter the right to operate three trucks, but did not permit him to operate in the full territory. His application was opposed by Pennsylvania Railroad and express concerns.

COUPLE PARTED BY SCOLDING

Mrs. Madoline Geib, 22, a stenographer, of 2826 Sherlock street, who testified her husband left her after she scolded him for drinking, was granted a divorce yesterday from Norman Geib, Charles street, by Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Mrs. Geib, married in Wellsburg June 29, 1929, testified she and her husband worked in the same office up to the time of their marriage. When she scolded Geib about his drinking, he told her it was none of her business and left her February 1, 1930, she said, declaring she had asked him several times to return. They lived in Bellevue for a short time after their marriage.

Dick Powell Booked For Duquesne Garden

Dick Powell, who left the Pittsburgh stage for Hollywood a year ago, is coming back to fill a two-day engagement, April 28 and 29, at Duquesne Garden, it was announced today by John H. Harris.

The former master of ceremonies will make personal appearances at afternoon and evening dance programs. Powell, since his departure for the Pacific Coast, has appeared in "Blessed Event," "The King's Vacation," "Forty-second Street" and "The Gold Diggers of 1933." The latter has not been released.

Kerry's Wife Loses Suit Over Portrait

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—(AP.)—Although she told a jury she was dissatisfied with the picture A. Muller Ury, the artist, painted of her, Mrs. Norman Kerry, wife of the motion picture actor, must pay $4,000 for it.

Superior Judge Guy Bush directed a verdict for Ury in his suit for payment yesterday and dismissed the jury. Mrs. Kerry contended the picture does not resemble her, that the face is too long and the shoulders too broad.

AKRON RESCUE FLIGHT OF J-3 DEFENDED

LAKEHURST, N. J., April 14.—(AP.)—Lieut. Commander Jesse L. Kenworthy, Jr., who became acting commandant of the naval air station when Commander Frederick T. Berry went down with the Akron, told the court of inquiry today that, although the weather was bad when the blimp J-3 took off on her disastrous rescue mission, he believed she could be operated safely. He declared:

"I would gladly have gone myself."

Lieut. Commander David E. Cummins, commander of the non-rigid dirigible J-3, and one of her crew, Pasquale Bettio, chief machinist's mate, lost their lives when she went into the sea while out searching for wreckage and possible survivors of the Akron, April 4.

PARTY TO PROBE

Before he testified, Commander Kenworthy, at his own request, was designated an "interested party," as the Navy's investigating board turned from the story of the Akron to that of the ill-fated J-3. A similar request was granted Lieut. Commander Herbert V. Wiley in connection with the Akron investigation. It gives them the right to question witnesses and places them in a position somewhat similar to that of defendants in a civil action.

It was an erroneous report that a British tanker was alongside the Akron wreckage and that 40 survivors were clinging to the airship's floating hull that provided the final impetus for the J-3's flight, Kenworthy said.

MACON TAKEOFF DELAYED

ZEPPELIN DOCK, Akron, O., April 14.—(INS.)—Earthbound by unfavorable weather since it was pronounced ready for flight tests two days ago, the U. S. S. Macon more than likely will not make its initial flight before Easter Sunday morning.

Commander Alger H. Dresel made this prediction to International News Service at noon today after spending an hour in the airport weather bureau checking and rechecking weather maps. Dresel said:

"The chances of the Macon flying Saturday are only about 30 per cent favorable. A storm area is moving in on us from out of the West. It is advancing very slowly and may not reach Akron before tonight. We will not take the ship up until it has passed on. A flight today is definitely off.

"At 11 o'clock tonight, new weather charts will be available and at that time I will announce whether we will fly at dawn tomorrow, which seems improbable at the moment."

COMPANIES SUE OVER U. S. TAX

Two suits were filed yesterday in Federal Court by the Pittsburgh Hotels Company and the Enameled Metals Company, of Etna, to recover on income taxes paid the government.

The Pittsburgh Hotels Company, predecessor of the Pittsburgh Hotels Corporation, as owner of the William Penn and Fort Pitt hotels, seeks to recover $4,078.46 on its 1925 tax. The statement of claim avers the government failed to allow a sufficient sum for depreciation on the William Penn Hotel building.

The metals company claims that $6,886.87 refunded on its 1917 income tax was erroneously applied by the government to tax of the Pittsburgh Can Company, a subsidiary of the plaintiff.

Chicago's Mayor

EDWARD J. KELLY

Mr. Kelly, appointed mayor of Chicago by City Council (much as Pittsburgh's City Council elected Mayor John S. Herron) to serve out the term of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

WATER DAMAGE CLAIM MADE

A break in the city water main along William street, on the side of Mt. Washington, caused damage estimated at $2,000 at the entrance to the Liberty Tunnels, County Commissioners have been informed.

E. J. Harrison, of the Harrison Construction Company, said his company, working at the tube entrance, had suffered the loss. The company is cutting down the traffic circle.

Harrison said if the city did not pay the damage the county would be held responsible. Thomas O. Hasley, County Director of Public Works, told the Commissioners the city was responsible, saying the water flowed four hours after city officials were notified of the break.

Youth Drowned; Dog Rescues Self

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—(AP.)—A mongrel puppy fell into Laguna Honda reservoir yesterday and caused a tragedy. Its owner, Louise Hornlein, 14, ran to the water's edge in a rescue attempt and fell in.

Her companion, Alvin Hensley, 13, jumped in to aid her. Unable to swim, he drowned. Two older youths rescued the girl. The little dog scrambled ashore.

Mine Open Again After Strike Tieup

BURGETTSTOWN, Pa., April 14.—Over 200 miners of the Buiger Block Coal Company returned to work today, according to R. D. Thompson, superintendent. The mine, formerly owned by the Bertha Consumers Company, was closed a month ago when miners struck for back wages. The new owners have made no promise that these wages will be paid.

CHICAGO MAYOR ROSE TO TOP FROM DITCH

CHICAGO, April 14.—(AP.)—A one-time student undertaker who abandoned his mortician's apprenticeship to take up a pick, shovel and ax to start at the bottom of an engineer's career, today was at the helm of the country's second city.

He is Edward J. Kelly, whose Irish parents, Stephen and Helen Kelly, apprenticed him to an undertaker. He got out of that business and worked his way to the top of the engineering profession.

WORLD'S FAIR MAYOR

Kelly, 56-year-old, six-foot Democrat, who was president of the city's South Park system for nine years and director of a $120,000,000 sanitary district improvement project, was elected late yesterday by the City Council as "World's Fair Mayor" to succeed Anton J. Cermak, fatally shot at Miami, Fla.

He was named after the veteran Democratic leader, Patrick A. Nash declined the honor because of his age. He is 70.

The office which he is to hold until April, 1935, comes to him at a time when his chief problem will be to lift Chicago from the financial quagmire in which it has been wallowing for the past few years.

PROMISES 'BEST JOB'

He promised to do "the best job I can." He began by naming a proxy to sign tax anticipation warrants for $1,700,000 with which officials hope to make a partial payment to the city's 14,000 unpaid school teachers, who are threatening to abandon their posts.

Kelly is a Chicago product. He was born here and it was here that he got his inspiration to become an engineer by watching a group of workmen lay out the World's Fair of 1893. That sight caused him to give up undertaking as a life's work and pick up an ax to yield it for the sanitary district in 1894.

Like the late Mayor Cermak, he was a self-made man. Cermak came to the top from the coal mines of Southern Illinois. Kelly came up from a drainage canal. He supplemented his practical education by night school study and a course of engineering at Notre Dame.

JAPS CAPTURE NEW TOWN

MUKDEN, Manchuria, April 14.—(AP.)—Continuing its advance south of the Great Wall of China, the Japanese army today occupied the important town of Tsienan, about 100 miles northeast of Tientsin.

With the taking of this town the Japanese were in control of more than 1,000 square miles of Chinese territory below the wall, and it was evident that they intended to expel all Chinese troops in the region to the east of the Lwan River, which cuts through the wall from Jehol and empties into the sea more than 50 miles below the wall's eastern end.

This district east of the Lwan, it was authoritatively indicated, will be made a buffer zone between the state Manchukuo to the north and China proper and will be under the control of Japanese and Manchukuan forces.

The area of this projected wedge is about equal to Delaware.

4 'Dyes' Fail to Hold Blonde-Loving Mate

CHICAGO, April 14.—(INS.)—So pronounced was her husband's preference for blondes that he left her four times and four times she had to bleach her hair to win him back, Mrs. Loretta Miller charged in a bill for divorce.

Mrs. Miller complained that her husband, Harry, finally deserted her despite her synthetic attempts to provide him with a blonde.

NEEDY CO-ED MAKES 'HOME' UNDER BRIDGE

LOS ANGELES, April 14.—(Universal.)—How a 19-year-old co-ed, Gwen Enerson, unable to afford to pay rent, lived for almost two months beneath a bridge rather than forego her college education was revealed today at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Miss Enerson, a junior majoring in philosophy and psychology, enrolled at U. C. L. A. last February as a transfer from the University of Minnesota.

A campus policeman saw Miss Enerson leaving the women's gym with a blanket. Not until he threatened her with arrest for the theft of the blanket did the girl reveal her story.

Informed of her plight, Dean of Women Helen M. Laughlin arranged for Miss Enerson to obtain work sufficient to pay her board and room.

PINCHOT SIGNS BANK, ROAD MEASURES

HARRISBURG, April 14. —(AP.)—Authority to call banking holidays in times of state or national financial crises was conferred upon the Governor today.

At the executive offices it was announced that Gov. Pinchot has signed the bill of Senator Harry B. Scott, Center, giving the Governor wide executive powers when banking difficulties arise.

Under the new law, the executive can act without calling a session of the General Assembly or receiving legislative approval of a holiday proclamation.

STOCK SALE APPROVED

The Governor also approved the bill by Senator Harry Shapiro, Philadelphia, permitting state banks and trust companies to issue and sell preferred stock. The purpose of this measure is to permit banks to obtain needed capital by selling the preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Other bills approved:

By Representative Joseph A. Simon, Clinton, eliminating provisions which require counties to pay 50 per cent of the cost of construction and maintenance of bridges on state highway routes.

HIGHWAY DAMAGE

By Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, requiring the state to pay land damages in highway reconstruction projects which the county commissioners have not approved, and requiring court approval to agreements covering approved changes.

By Senator James J. Coyne, Allegheny, validating court orders providing a moratorium on sheriffs' sales until April 3 as permitted by a resolution approved by the Legislature during the bank holiday.

By Representative P. B. Rice, Dauphin, permitting counties to use unredeemed land purchased by county commissioners at tax sales for forest or recreational uses or for transfer to the state for similar use.

By Senator Harry B. Scott, Center, six measures appropriating money from special state funds to the State Employes' Retirement Board to cover state payments for retirement funds of employes in the Workmen's Insurance Fund, Fish and Game Commissions, Banking and Highway departments and the Manufacturing Fund.

Pinchot Vetoes History Bill of Pittsburghers

The one bill vetoed today by Gov. Gifford Pinchot concerned Pittsburghers. It was a bill by Representative Charles T. Dwyer, of Allegheny County, providing for the purchase by the state of 400 copies of a history of the One Hundred Second Infantry (Washington Infantry) of Pittsburgh. The cost would be $1,000. The copies were to be distributed to colleges, public and state libraries and the Pennsylvania Historical Society. Gov. Pinchot explained his veto:

"Distribution to private institutions and societies would be of doubtful propriety under any circumstances."

ASSEMBLY MAY QUIT FRIDAY

HARRISBURG, April 14.—(AP.)—The General Assembly will fight out next week the question of whether it is to adjourn next Friday or continue indefinitely the disagreement between administration and anti-administration forces.

Republican Legislators will meet Sunday in the capital in an effort to settle the question of adjournment.

The House wants to push legislation to the Governor's desk and go home. Forceful elements in the Senate want to stay until agreement is reached on all major bills.

Further unemployment relief, the general appropriations legislation and the Turner economies measure will be outstanding issues.

The Howell (Senate) resolution providing for voluntary salary reductions comes before the House Monday night. It provides for voluntary salary reductions of legislators, judges and state officials.

The McClure bill, changing the public utilities laws, also comes before the House. Gov. Pinchot, long a foe of utilities, is drafting his own bill.

CALLS PINCHOT 'MOVIE QUEEN'

HARRISBURG, April 14. — While Gov. Pinchot was reported today considering a stumping tour of the state to rouse public support for major legislation in the General Assembly, a political foe in the House likened him to a movie actress trying to steal everything on the set.

Representative James Bennett, Philadelphia, took exception to the Governor's recent charges that the Legislature has failed to act on important issues, and added the accusation that he was trying to steal the show.

Representative John C. Hermansen, Luzerne, suggested sarcastically in defense of the Governor that if it is "politics" for him to go to the people on a stumping tour, "we should impeach him for being a politician."

Ending the debate, Representative John J. Kane, Allegheny, Democrat, told the House he thought it advisable to get down to business rather than listen to the political differences of the Republican party in Pennsylvania.

Little sister will beam with delight when she wears this captivating little frock. Then mother will wisely think, "It was the simplest thing on earth to make . . . and so inexpensive . . . she must have several of them." And if tubbable, gay cotton prints are chosen, it won't matter if she gets a wee bit unladylike romping about. The details are so cunning, with clever seams forming jacket-like yokes, from which stitched pleats animate the frock. Bloomers, too, are included with the pattern.

PINCHOT SILENT ON SUNDAY SPORTS

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 14.—An anxious Pennsylvania populace today awaited with interest the action of Gov. Gifford Pinchot on the Schwartz Sunday sports bill, which would permit the electors to vote modification or full retention of the state's Sunday blue laws.

Despite expectations of an early verdict, International News Service learned that no action will be taken before the latter part of next week. The Governor listens, meanwhile, to the interrogations and explanations of all in absolute silence and offers no encouragement to either side.

Unless signed or vetoed by midnight on April 22, the bill will automatically become law. That time marks the expiration of the constitutional veto period the chief executive is permitted to hold a bill without action during a session.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

The Schwartz bill stipulates that baseball and football cannot be legally played in any city or community until first approved through local referenda in November.

It is generally admitted that the Governor's signature would make major league baseball certain in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh on the Sabbath next summer for the first time.

Considerable pressure has been exerted on the Governor since the bill passed the Assembly. In addition to the voluminous appeals received by mail, the Governor has welcomed delegations representing both modificationists and advocates of the 1794 statute. The end of the persuasive campaign has not been reached.

The Rev. William B. Forney, Philadelphia, leader of the forces demanding retention of the law, will head a delegation into the executive chamber next Tuesday. He and his followers will point out the methods by which they claim the Schwartz bill will violate the sanctity of the Sabbath.

Arguments and explanations of the modificationists will be presented by a group headed by William W. Roper, Philadelphia councilman and former Princeton football coach. They will appear on the same day. At the conclusion of these conferences, the Governor is expected to act. The time required to draw up a veto message or statement to accompany his signature will make definite action impossible before Wednesday.

State Senate Urges River Improvements

HARRISBURG, April 14.—(INS.)—The state Senate yesterday unanimously adopted the Batchelor resolution requesting Congress to improve the Beaver and Mahoning rivers in Western Pennsylvania.

The improvement, which would make the rivers navigable to barges, would be performed as an emergency relief project.

EASTER OF IDLE BRIGHTENED BY RELIEF

Good Easter tidings came to the 69,000 families on relief lists in Allegheny County and thousands of others in the state today.

The Allegheny County Emergency Association announced food orders are assured to the end of April. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation loaned the state an additional $5,000,000 for relief work during April and May.

Fourteen million dollars now has been provided for relief during the two months. The state has yet to decide the matter of providing funds for the two-year period beginning June 1.

AID FOR COUNTY

George E. Mills, director of relief in Allegheny County, received word this morning the county's request for a total of $1,315,000 for April has been approved. A grant of $723,913 was made in addition to the amount previously made available.

Mills announced the county relief board has received a separate grant covering administrative costs for April. Workers handling unemployment relief had been uncertain as to whether they would be paid this month.

A total of 69,533 families in the county received relief during the week of April 3 to 8, Mills said. Expenditures were $253,896.

QUICK ACTION

Quick action by the Legislature and Gov. Pinchot in agreeing on an additional $5,000,000 appropriation to be added to $2,000,000 already approved for April and May averted a serious crisis in the state's relief work.

In accordance with its agreement to provide funds as soon as the state did something, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation yesterday matched the state appropriation by loaning Pennsylvania $5,000,000 in addition to $2,000,000 peviously loaned for the two-month period.

FINGERPRINTS CLUE IN BEER SLAYINGS

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 14.—(AP.)—Through fingerprints found on glasses in the hotel suite where Max Greenberg, New York and former St. Louis beer racketeer and gangster, and his associate, Max Hassell, reputedly wealthy Pennsylvania beer baron, were shot to death, police hoped today to establish the identity of the men who fired the shots and fled undetected from the room.

Prosecutor Abe J. David, of Union County, and his staff of detectives faced the task of sorting out four big packages of business papers found in a desk in the hotel room where Hassell and Greenberg had lived through most of the past three years, and where they met death yesterday.

CLUES MEAGER

The clues the police found were meager—the papers and the eight glasses, in one of which still remained a bit of whisky when detectives arrived to find Greenberg dead in a chair at his desk and Hassell on the threshold of the adjoining room. The heads of both had been hit by bullets from a .38 caliber revolver.

Police admitted they had few clues to follow and only the usual number of motives suggested in the slaying of any racketeer. A quarrel over the control of beer, legal or illegal, seemed the most likely reason for the murder.

FORMER NEWSBOY

Hassell, born in Russia, came to this country when he was 11. He sold newspapers until prohibition gave him an opportunity to try his hand at selling beer wholesale. It was reported he owned or had an interest in breweries from Lancaster, Pa., to Newark.

Greenberg had a police record, which included a conviction in a theft of interstate freight at Danville, Ill. President Wilson in 1920 commuted his five-year sentence in Leavenworth prison. Later Greenberg was suspected of having hired gunmen to kill William T. Egan, St. Louis gang leader, on October 31, 1921.

SENTENCE MAN IN RADIO HOAX

Charles Hathaway, 25, of 214 East Lacock street, was sentenced to 90 days in the workhouse by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in North Side Police Court today after he had admitted taking a radio from the home of Miss Mary Spagnolo, 22, of 1102 Spring Garden avenue, by posing as a representative of the firm where the radio was purchased. Two brothers, Paul and Harry Getty, who returned the radio in an effort to clear Hathaway, and were alleged to have threatened to put Miss Spagnolo "on the spot" if she complained against him, were discharged. They testified they only tried to "smooth things over."

Exonerate Doctor, Brother of Walker

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Dr. William H. Walker, brother of former Mayor James J. Walker, and four other physicians were cleared yesterday of charges that they practiced fraudulently in connection with fee splitting in city compensation cases.

The medical grievance committee of the State Department of Education, which investigated the charges made by the City Affairs Committee and dismissed them as unsubstantiated, but "deplored" the system by which the physicians were selected by city officials.

Naming of Shoals For Norris Urged

WASHINGTON, April 14.—(AP.)—A proposal to change the name of Muscle Shoals to Norris Shoals in honor of the veteran Nebraska Senator, who has fought years for government operation of the big plant, has been laid before the House Military Committee.

The plan was advanced by Edward A. Collins, of New York, director of the Roosevelt Business and Professional League during the past campaign.

Beaver Canal Route Survey Ready June 1

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., April 14.—Surveys for the modified canal up the Beaver and Mahoning rivers will be presented to the government engineers by June 1, S. H. Warrick, engineer, of Youngstown, told members of the Beaver River Waterways Improvement Association here. The group hopes to have the improvement included in the Roosevelt public works program.

FIVE SUPER-SCHOLARS 'REGULAR FELLOWS'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 14.—(INS.)—The old belief that the "brightest boy in the class" is always a "bookworm" was knocked into a cocked hat today when it was revealed Harvard's five "super scholars" are all "regular fellows."

They were chosen by President A. Lawrence Lowell and the Harvard Corporation as the first members of the newly formed Society of Fellows at Harvard, for their promise of notable contribution to knowledge and thought.

Probably the most studious appearing of the five is John C. Miller, 25, of Tacoma, Wash. He studies from 10 to 12 hours a day, but finds time to strum a banjo once in a while. He's democratic and "regular," according to classmates.

Frederick M. Watkins, 25, of Providence, R. I., another "super scholar," likes to play the piano, takes long walks, plays squash for recreation, and dances for entertainment.

The third member of the society, Burrhus F. Skinner, of Scranton, Pa., prefers to ride a bicycle.

The other two fellows, equally democratic, are Garrett Birkoff, now studying at Cambridge University, England, and Willard Van Orman Quine, of Akron, O.

Man Tries in Vain To Save Own Life

CHARLEROI, Pa., April 14.—An injured man's effort to prevent himself bleeding to death as he lay under a railroad car proved futile. C. A. Metz, 73, North Charleroi riverman, died today. When one leg was severed by a railroad train last Monday, he made a tourniquet of his trousers to stop the flow of blood. Metz was a former government employe.

'SPIRIT SUICIDE' PAIR INDICTED ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14—(AP.)—Indictments charging the Rev. J. J. Dixon, Spiritualist pastor, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Gertrude Dixon, with inciting Dr. Frank Bishop, wealthy optometrist, to commit suicide, were returned by the county grand jury here yesterday.

Dr. Bishop killed himself about a year ago after making a will leaving his property to Mrs. Dixon. Relatives of the optometrist contested the will and were awarded the estate.

During the trial the relatives introduced evidence intended to show Dixon called "spirits" from "azureland" to advise Dr. Bishop, including the spirit of Mrs. Bishop, who was represented as having urged the optometrist to join her in spirit land.

Mrs. Dixon testified she had planned to marry Dr. Bishop.

STORE HOLDUP NETS SOCKS AND CASH

Apparently assembling his Easter wardrobe, a young, well-dressed robber today held up the Thom McAn shoe store, 814½ Liberty avenue, and took a dozen pairs of socks and $37. Manager Stanley Zebo, 23, was alone in the store when the robber entered. Flourishing a gun, he ordered Zebo to "lay down in the corner for 20 minutes." It was the second time in 60 days Zebo had been held up, he said.

Earlier, somebody bartered two bricks for three Easter dresses and hats at Kay's dress shop, 214 Oliver avenue.

WINDOW SMASHED

The bricks were hurled through the plate glass display window, and three dresses with hats to match were taken from the models, according to police.

Six youths were held in Morals Court today for further investigation. Two of them, one armed, had been trapped in a Bellevue home this morning.

Loot recovered from their residences totaled nearly a dozen rifles, jewelry, clothing and old coins. Police believe the group responsible for 12 to 14 robberies in Allegheny and Bellevue.

Police said Clarence McCauley, 19, of 1712 Marquis street, and a 15-year-old youth were found crouching in a closet in the home of Ross Wilson, 65 Kendall avenue, Bellevue, this morning. Alarmed by a noise, the Wilsons had called police.

NAMES AIDES

McCauley named Henry Hinteymeyer, 17, of 3242 Central avenue, Wilbur Daunch, 18, of 3237 Brighton road; Lee Rickert, 22, of 3240 Central avenue, and William Hallowell, 18, of 3021 Shadeland avenue, as accomplices in other robberies.

The Sun-Telegraph will not publish the name of McCauley's companion because of his age.

At the hearing, Mrs. Walter J. Haupt, 3426 Shadeland avenue, identified a rifle, two revolvers, a watch, and fountain pen, found in the boy's possesion, as having been stolen from her home.

JUDGE'S ROOM GETS 'NEW' RUG

A red rug today replaced the hole-worn rug that for months adorned the floor of the president judge's chambers. It is not a new rug, according to the men who laid it, but had been renovated.

When the County Commissioners were furnishing their "gold room," Judge F. P. Patterson pointed out that the worn rug in the chambers of the president judge, where all visiting judges report, was an "eye-sore." Even in times of economy he thought another rug should be laid.

Judge Samuel H. Gardner has succeeded Judge Patterson as president judge and today the chamber was adorned with a clean rug which is intact.

MOVE TO CLEAR WAY FOR ROAD

The County Commissioners have authorized their solicitors to proceed with condemnation proceedings for completion of the Allegheny River boulevard. The action was taken yesterday after Assistant Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher had notified the Commissioners that an act making the condemnation possible had been signed by the Governor.

Lesher said action would be taken in Quarter Sessions Court vacating certain property now occupied by the Pennsylvania Railroad and to use it as the boulevard. Land owned by the Pennsylvania Water Company would be taken by the county and given to the railroad.

TROOPS GUARD DANIELS TRAIN

MEXICO CITY, April 14.—(AP.)—A train carrying a special guard bore Josephus Daniels toward the capital to his new duties as Ambassador from the United States.

Railroad circles heard reports, not confirmed here, that an armored car had been added to the train at the border as a further protection to the Washington envoy. Half a company of federal soldiers were reported in the armored car as a train escort.

Threatened Communistic demonstrations against his appointment led to assignment of a guard. International complications at Vera Cruz while Daniels was Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson administration were reported to be the basis of the Communistic protest.

ROOFS LEAKING AT AIRPORT

Faulty work has been discovered in the $125,000 administration building at the airport and at the bathhouse in South Park, the County Commissioners have been notified. Reports were received yesterday that roofs of both buildings are full of leaks.

Director Ray Sprigle, of the County Property and Supplies Department, said the aluminum coping on the roof of the airport building had been nailed over used lumber and that he was able to remove sections with his hands. He said the composition roofing is leaking where it joins the coping.

Sprigle said the contracting firm could be held responsible for the leaks along the coping, but that the county would have to substitute a better composition roof.

He said former county employes had asked for a certain kind of roofing, although informed it would be faulty.

Judge Loses Watch During Theft Trial

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 14.—(AP.)—During trial of a theft case, county Judge McGee grew thirsty. He called a five minute recess and strolled over to the water cooler. Just long enough to down a drink of water did he turn his back. He went back to the bench, rapped for order, then blurted out to a startled court room: "My watch is gone!"

He had been found guilty before Visiting Judge C. M. Culver, of Bradford County, of causing the death of David M. Linton, 53, of Castle Shannon, a patient in the insane ward of the hospital, September 4, 1932.

It was charged Linton's chest was crushed when leg irons were being put on him. Hennigan asked for a new trial, which Judge Culver refused before passing sentence late yesterday.

AMES, JOHN D.'S COMRADE, DIES

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., April 14.—(Universal.)—John D. Rockefeller Sr.'s head was bowed in grief today over the death of Gen. Adelbert Ames, his 98-year-old "playmate" and golfing partner.

Gen. Ames died last night at his home here. He had suffered a sprained ankle in a fall two days ago while walking in the grounds adjoining his home.

The 93-year-old oil financier, through members of his household, said words could not express his sorrow at the loss of his friend. They were constant golf companions until a few months ago when infirmities caused the general to lay down his golf clubs.

Gen. Ames was the last surviving general officer of the Civil War. He led federal troops in many important battles, including the first battle of Bull Run. He won the Congressional Medal of Honor for conspicuous bravery when he directed his regiment after being wounded.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

People Who Are Jolly Do Not Lack Friends

She's tall,
She's fat,
She isn't pretty—
Yet she steals the show at every party!

And Mrs. Olsen would like to know how come? In fact, a bunch of wives, who seem to be Wall Flowers when she's around, would like a little private information on the subject.

Need a good laugh?
Then get in on this broadcast.

My Dear Elsie Robinson:

Will you please tell me why it is that all the men at a house party fall for a certain woman?

It has happened again and again. It happened just last night. This woman gets all the attention, while the rest of us look on.

She smokes, drinks, sings and dances, and always seems to have one wonderful time, while at the very same party we just sit and look dumb. We can all see that her husband doesn't like it, but she goes serenely on, and to watch her you'd think that they are destitute and getting help from charity.

GIVEN MUCH ATTENTION

Honestly, we can't understand it. Last night one girl said to her, "Why don't you pass out, so we can get some of this attention?" And she did! Just for spite, I think. And did we get the attention? We did not! You should have seen the men running around to take care of her! Why my own husband even held her head for her, and the man who gave the party said the rest of us might just as well go home!

Well, in about two hours, after she had a good sleep, the men each put ten cents by her plate, so she could get in a good card game. We can't understand it at all. She acts so glad all the time. Do you think that her feelings could be hurt? Not hers!

I'll admit the party was a flop without her, while she was asleep. And honestly, she has the luck! She even won at cards!

She told a lady that she wouldn't be able to come to this last party—so the man who gave it went in his car and called for her and her husband, and that's how they got there.

DEFENDED BY MEN

She is always doing something. She is never still. She jokes and laughs all the time. Is that what men want? Please tell me.

My husband always has excuses for her, and so do the other men. They wait on her like she is a queen, although she is 5 feet 7 inches tall and not so thin. But she makes fun of her fat and weight, and even dances with real small men.

Will you tell me how some women get away with it? She has three children, all good-looking, and they seem to love her, too. Do you think the men really like her, or are they just kidding her along?

Please answer this, and tell me why they fall for her?

MRS. OLSEN.

And so you want to know what Black Magic she uses!

Has she Some Sinister Secret—Some Fatal Charm—against which your helpless husbands are unable to struggle? Or maybe some Dread Power, which makes them fear to leave her side?

Well, maybe. Ladies have been known to conceal an extra ace up the most innocent-looking sleeve. But, personally, I'm betting it's nothing of the sort. My wager is—

She's just good fun!

She still knows how to laugh, and make others laugh in a dreary discouraged world. She's willing to make the best of even the shabbiest chance; able to find adventure in the dullest circumstance.

So, naturally, she's a treat to muchly-married men.

And what do you wives offer in the way of competition? You're Good Women. Yes, indeedy! But how long has it been since you flirted with your husbands; since you went on picnics with them; since you made them feel that they were Wonderful Fellows, and Life Was a Grand Old Game?

Fess up now! Hasn't it been many a year? Sure it has. And now you're sore because another woman comes along and shows you up for the good—but, migosh, how tiresome!—bores you are.

So, if you're wise, I'd advise you to snap out of the self-pity and begin to show a little action. Could a girl hold her job in an office if she didn't put on a peppier performance than you are doing? You know she couldn't.

Then why should a wife, who loafs on her job, expect life-long support, as well as a lot of laurels?

She shouldn't; and if she does, she's very, very apt to find herself without occupation. So get busy and qualify, sisters, or take the consequences!

Life's Chapters All Worth Living Through, Says Fay King

THE ONE WHO HAS A CHANGE OF HEART IS NOT WORTH WEEPING OVER
HE DOESN'T LOVE ME ANY MORE. LIFE ISN'T WORTH LIVING.
FAY-MING

By FAY KING

Nothing is more unfortunate than for any person to feel that life is not worth living because he has lost the one he loves.

Just because one person does not appreciate another person cannot possibly mean that this person has no power to charm and please others.

In fact when the one who has loved has a change of heart the one deserted should never feel a failure. Too often the change is in the other person and that person is not worth worrying or weeping over!

One should consider such a sad episode just one chapter of one's life, and begin to live again as if it had not been.

Life has many chapters, and they are all worth living through—to the end!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Automobile Etiquet

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it correct for a gentleman to leave by the left rear door of the car and walk around the car to open the other door for a lady, the left door opening to the passing traffic of the street, which makes this seem awkward?

2—When a door opens toward the inside, should the gentleman enter first and hold the door for the lady, or should he follow?

3—When bidding goodby to a lady I have been introduced to, may I say, "I am glad to have met you?" N.

1—It is better, if it is convenient (that is, if the car isn't crowded) for the man to get out of the car by the door nearest the street, for it is often very dangerous to get out of the car on the side of the passing traffic.

2—If the man can conveniently hold the door open without entering first, this is what should be done. However, if the door is an especially heavy one, it is sensible for him to excuse himself for entering first, and then hold the door open for the woman.

3—Yes, this is a polite and gracious thing for a man to say to a woman when he is leaving her after an introduction. "Goodby, Miss Graham. I am very glad to have met you. I hope that I am to see you again soon." All of this, or just the first part, is correct.

Party Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My girl friend and I are going to give a party together at her home. We are puzzled as to how the invitations should read. We expect to buy them, or do you think it would be better to write them personally?

2—My father has a drug store and is unable to get away. Should I take my boy friend to his store to meet him, or isn't it necessary that both my mother and father should meet him? K.

1—It would be so much nicer if you and your girl friend write gracious little notes of invitation to your "mutual" party. Your note would be worded something like this:

Dear Grace:

Jane Thomas and I are inviting a few friends for an informal party at her home (234 Home Avenue) on Friday, the first of May, at eight o'clock. We both want very much to have you come . . . and you will, won't you? Please!

Cordially yours,

Your friend's invitation would be worded somewhat similar . . . just the change of "my home."

2—I like, very much, your wish to have your friends meet your father, and some time it would be delightful for you to take the boy friend to meet your father, at his store. I am sure, too, that your father will appreciate your "fatherly" thought.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A change of diet will do much to coax blackheads and pimples to depart. Cut down on fats, starches and sweets. Drink fruit juices, eat green salads, lean meats, plenty of vegetables. And don't forget that important beauty rule: six glasses of water a day.

Scars appear when tissue is destroyed. The only way to be rid of them is to have the surgeon make an incision, delete the injured skin, stitch the wound together again. This treatment must be accomplished with skill and delicacy, so the seeker of a remodeled complexion had best be convinced of the experience and reliability of the surgeon.

Eye 'Cyst' Is Easily Corrected

A simple tumor of the eyelid, known to the doctors as a "cyst" or "chalazion," is a swelling frequently mistaken for a stye. It is found on the skin side of the eyelid. It varies in size from a tiny swelling to one an inch or more in diameter. It is caused by an obstruction to the duct or passageway from one of the small glands of the eyelid.

This condition can easily be distinguished from a stye by the absence of pain and other signs of inflammation. Of course it may become infected, and then swelling becomes red, swollen and painful.

As a rule, a cyst is overlooked for a considerable time. Attention is drawn to it finally by its continued increase in size. It may grow sufficiently large to produce a definite disfigurement of the lid. Then it interferes with the opening and closing of the eyelid.

The cure for this condition is a simple operation. It is quite unlikly to be cured by medicine or ointments. The operation is a simple one and need cause no alarm. It is done in the doctor's office. When completed the patient is able to return to his work without loss of time. All pain is avoided by the use of a local anesthetic.

In the operation, a small incision is made in the skin over the cyst. The contents are then shelled out. Only a faint scar can be seen after the wound has healed. Some surgeons prefer making the incision on the inner surface of the eyelid. This prevents the need of stitches and the possibility of any disfigurement.

Cysts, tumors, styes and inflammation of the eyelid, may be caused by rubbing the eyes, or by prolonged exposure to wind or dirt. Some individuals are more susceptible than others.

If you are inclined to cysts or other abnormalities of the lids and are exposed to wind and dirt, I would advise a certain routine of hot and cold applications. This treatment helps the ducts and glands of the lids to maintain their normal and healthy activity.

Before retiring at night apply to the eyelids for one minute, a cloth wrung out of hot water. This should be followed with a cloth wet with ice water. Keep the iced cloth against the lids for one minute. Repeat this procedure three times every night. The lids may be massaged slowly and gently with the hot cloth. Do not massage with the cold cloth.

Cysts should not be neglected. If overlooked, the cyst wall may break down and become infected. When this occurs the removal of the cyst is not so simple a procedure and the trouble may recur. A cyst that has not been infected and is removed, rarely, if ever, recurs.

Never squeeze a cyst or any inflamed part of the eyelid. This is a dangerous procedure and may result in unpleasant complications. The eye and its protective covering, the eyelid, are delicate and important parts of the body.

If you have any growth, swelling or inflammation of the eyelids, do not neglect to consult with your physician. Follow his instructions. Do not be misguided by advice from friends. I beg of you not to be alarmed if operation is advised. Contrary to a common belief, most operations of the eye are perfectly safe procedures.

Heart of a Wife -:-

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Gives Fresh Evidence of Jealousy

I had no chance to stop Mary, either by word or action, even if I had wished to disregard her injunction to me not to "give her away" in her determination to go to Noel and share the dangerous post that Hugh had assigned him. Before she finished her sentence she had loosened her clasp of my arm, and at the last word she was off, skimming across the glade as Atalanta might have done, utterly ignoring Hugh's admonition to keep close to the trees.

A fiercely urgent hand fell upon my shoulder and Philip Veritzen's suddenly tortured voice sounded in my ears.

"Why did you let that girl go? He'll have to look out for her. Good God!"

Across the glade in the light of the flares we could see Noel rising from his knees where he had been tending them, and inadvertently moving toward the center of the glade instead of the circling trees, as Hugh had directed. And swiftly descending, directly toward him, came a silvery something which we knew was Dicky's auto-gyro.

What happened next we saw only imperfectly, both because of the darkness and the rapidity of the action, but we knew from our half-vision and our deductions that, thinking only of Noel and with a glorious disregard of danger for herself, Mary had flung herself across the last few feet of space, and had dragged Noel to safety just as Dicky's boat gracefully settled to its resting place. Indeed, we only knew that she had succeeded by the absence of any crashing or rending sound, or any cry.

VERITZEN REBUKED

"Made it, by the thickness of a mosquito's eyelash," Harry Underwood said jubilantly, but Philip Veritzen was clawing at my shoulder again.

"Is he all right?" he whispered.

I am extremely fond of Noel, and I shall be glad to welcome him as a nephew when he and Mary change their betrothal bonds for marriage vows; but for an instant I unreasoningly loathed him because of his kinship to the overweeningly selfish man beside me.

"You mean 'Are they all right?' don't you?" I asked him icily.

"That question would be more to the point, I think, considering that if it had not been for Mary's gallant rush and quickness of brain you, in all probability, would be childless at this moment."

His hand dropped from my shoulder, and for a second or two he did not answer. When he spoke it was in more humble fashion than I ever had heard from the famous dramatic producer.

"I am properly rebuked," he said. "Please forgive me. I could think of nothing but Noel for the minute. But, believe me, I am not unmindful of Miss Mary's bravery. I shall remember it, I can assure you."

DICKY ANGRY

"What did he mean?" I asked myself wrathfully, completely bewildered by his manner. To my overstrained imagination, my excited partisanship, he was speaking exactly as he would of some strange, nameless waif who had risked her life to rescue another person. Was he never going to abandon his prejudice against Mary, or the insane desire to have Noel marry great wealth or position which had obsessed him for so long?

I clinched my fists to restrain my overweening desire to slap from his face the satisfied smirk I imagined upon it. Then I forgot all about him as across the glade I heard Dicky's voice, the first sound of speaking above a whisper that had been heard among us since our arrival.

"Mary! Does this mean—Is your auntie—"

He broke off abruptly, and I guessed that either Noel or Mary had told him of the rule of silence he was breaking. But there had been anger unmistakable in his voice, and involuntarily I pressed closer against the trees as I waited for him to come to the spot where I was standing.

I had broken my solemn word to him, and I feared that he would be too unreasoning to listen to the very valid excuse I had for what he undoubtedly regarded as treachery to him, and construed as evidence of my desire to be associated with Hugh in the rescue of Marion and Carolyn.

Contract Bridge -:-

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Notrump Complex

Players who are afflicted with "Notrumpitis" often force their partners into unmakable contracts because they are not permitted to play the hand without trumps. The hand below is an example of an instance in which a contract that appeared impossible when the Dummy went down and which was reached only because the North member of this partnership suffered from this unfortunate malady was made through the excellent play of the Declarer in solving the problem of trump management.

South dealer.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇	3 NT	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding of course, is entirely too strong, but when South bid four spades, after North's bid of three notrump, North jumped to six spades with the remark, "Well, if you are determined not to let me play at notrump, I will give you something to think about."

West's opening lead was the diamond King, which was won in the Dummy, and two rounds of trumps followed, the Ten being successfully finessed on the second round. When West failed to follow suit to the second round of trumps it was obvious to the Declarer that the only opportunity to make six-odd was to reduce his own trump holding by twice trumping diamonds. Apparently the best method of doing this is to finesse against the King of hearts and to count upon West, if he wins this trick, to lead another round of diamonds. With this end in view the Dummy was re-entered by leading a club and the heart finesse taken.

West reacted as desired, and on the return of the diamond one of the Declarer's superfluous trumps was used. The Ace and another club were then cashed to prevent East from discarding. The third round of diamonds was now led from Dummy and the coup position established, East discarding a heart. South now led the Ace of hearts and followed with the Ten of hearts, which was overtaken with the Queen in Dummy, East being forced to follow suit.

By this careful plan and accurate play the Declarer was able to make an over-ambitious contract. The moral of this is not that we should reach unmakable contracts because of a notrump complex, but that we should endeavor to make any contract as long as there is the slightest glimmer of hope.

Today's Question

What is the correct Opening call by Third Hand, vulnerable, with the following holding?

♠ A K 6 ♡ A 10 5 3 ◇ A K 7 ♣ K Q 6

Answer: Two notrump. A Forcing bid of two hearts should not be made as the suit is not biddable and the hand does not contain sufficient playing-tricks for an Opening three notrump bid.

Household Hints

A teaspoonful of glycerine to every pound of flour improves the flavor of a fruit cake, and keeps it moist and fresh for a considerable time.

After simmering celery in milk add a tablespoonful of grated cheese, and pepper and salt. Cook until the celery is tender, then break in an egg and stir quickly. This makes an excellent scramble to serve on buttered toast.

If your tablecloths begin to show signs of wear it is a wise plan to cut off about an inch on one side of the edges and make a new hem; this makes the folds of the cloth come in a different place, and they then last much longer, as it is usually in the folds that they wear out.

All Pittsburgh's music lovers will celebrate Easter night by attending the Pittsburgh Symphony concert in Syria Mosque.

And since music lovers include ever so many of our social register list, the boxes and first floor will be largely taken by the smart set.

Many of them will be patrons, as usual, for ever so many leaders here are stunch supporters of their city's own symphony.

The treasurer of the symphony, Mrs. E. V. Babcock is a patron, as one might expect, and so are John F. Casey, Mrs. James Beal, Mrs. George H. Clapp, Mrs. Josiah Cohen, Charles W. Dahlinger, George H. Danner, Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Leon Falk, Jr., and Maurice Falk.

Although she is abroad, Mrs. Anthony Martinek remembers Pittsburgh's symphony, and is a faithful patron. Others are Edwin S. Fickes, Carroll Fitzhugh, who is interested in music as well as in the theater; Mrs. W. S. Flower, L. H. Gethoefer, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, one of the most zealous workers for the symphony; Bert Floersheim and William K. Frank.

Patrons of Symphony

Andrew W. Mellon, back from England as retired Ambassador, has given his patronage, and so have Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., of Butler; Mrs. Enoch Rauh and her son, Richard S. Rauh, Mrs. Edwin Ruud and ever so many others, whose names are always in the list of those attending musical events in Pittsburgh.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

The families of Pensylvania College for Women students are hearing much of Max Eastman these days. The poet and famed radical addressed the college this week.

One of the favorite stories is this: After he was tried and acquitted some years ago for a part in a radical movement, one of the magazines came out with an editorial, asserting that he should have been convicted. The sentence, by the way, would have been for 30 years.

Mr. Eastman sat down, and wrote a fiery sonnet to the editor. A few days later, the editor sent him a check for $15 and published the sonnet!

Fashions in costumes for Easter will change, but not for flowers, according to a Pittsburgh florist, who's always seen at all society weddings.

Orchids and gardenias will be the favored flowers for Easter corsages, he tells me.

Peggy Berger, the latest flying enthusiast of the social set, goes "aviating" in what she calls a monkey suit—a khaki overall affair, very business-like.

CHECKS ARE FASHIONABLE IN THE SMART NEW SPRING MODE

CHECKS ARE accepted, fashionably speaking. They're becoming to almost everyone. They look equally well in town and in the country. They pep you up after a long winter of monotones. They're nice all by themselves and even nicer when they're contrasted with a plain material which repeats one of their colors. Wear them large or wear them small. Wear them subdued or loud, you'll find they fit into the picture.

* * *

* * *

WITH SOLID color dresses and suits, plan to wear at least one checked or plaided hat with a matching scarf. All the shops have them and they're deliriously becoming in naive little Gibson girl sailors and ultra-sophisticated high crowned hats. You tie the scarf high around your neck, knotting it under your chin or tying it in a bow. Or you can tie it under one ear. Plaid blouses are very doggy, too.

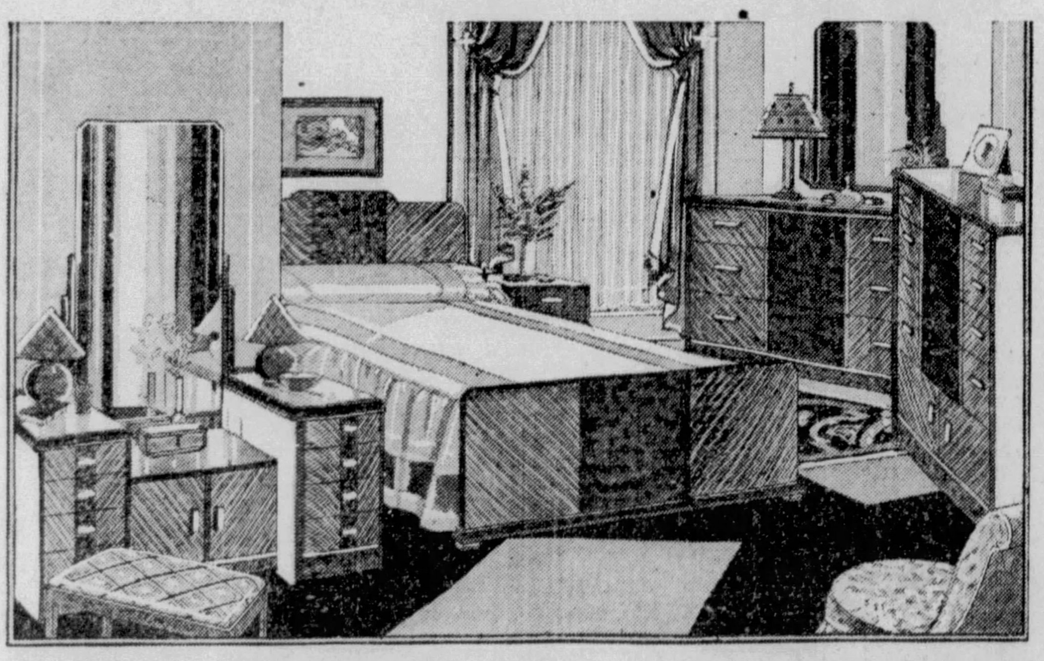
The Most Fashionable Bedroom of the Hour



Are you tired of the conventional? Then . . . "Go Modern!" There's something about this bedroom that's thrilling! It makes the most unusual room, with its harmonizing dark and light woods, emphasized by the aluminum trimmed hardware, and the stately modern mirrors. If you want a suite that's truly unusual, see this 4-piece grouping.

Two weeks ago, when we presented this suite, the demand exceeded the supply. Everyone told us they had not seen anything like it for less than $195.00! The factory worked night and day to produce this duplicate shipment, which has just arrived. Four pieces are included at $98 00, and we will arrange terms as low as $2.00 weekly.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

In 1911 Thelma Snyder was born on Easter Day. Her birthday didn't fall on Easter Day again until 1922, 11 years later. This year it coincides again and the calendar informs her that every 11 years her birthday will fall on Easter Sunday.

It pays to have faith in man, thinks Mrs. G. H. Schmenizer, of Beechview. She lost her pocketbook containing a sum of money and valuable papers on a street car. Yesterday morning's mail brought it to her intact. The finder remained anonymous and if he reads this he'll know that he has Mrs. Schmenizer's sincere thanks.

* * *

Jackie Greenway, eight-year-old cat fancier, of Robinson street, is all pepped up about his tiger cat. It can take it, says Jackie. Every cat in the neighborhood beats him up but since his last fight Jackie and his Maw did a good job of doctoring and Tiger is as good as new. Jackie wants a more peaceful neighborhood now for his pet.

* * *

It used to be half-dollars and old coins and now it's fiddles. The last communication, this from Mrs. J. W. Fonner, of the North Side, relates that her violin is older than the one Kate Smith boasted about and also older than the Globe Trotter's described yesterday. This new one is an old one bearing a maker's date of 1695.

* * *

Alma Jane Myers, Parnassus—All the information I had on the reforestation work was printed in yesterday's column. Besides your letter many others came seeking information.

Maj. Burle, head of the recruiting, will advise me immediately when the next quota will be chosen from this and surrounding territories and you can depend on me to pass it on immediately. I know how anxious many people are about it.

Intrigued by the success of the Cantor tour, and the start of the Whiteman-Pearl vaudeville trip, WABC is getting up a traveling show in which Vaughn de Leath, Stoop and Budd, Arthur Tracy, Tony Wons and other celebs will take part.

Jolly Bill Steinke, and his little girl, Jane, have just completed their fifth year on the air, and will take a vacation beginning May 1. Bill plans a personal appearance tour, and will be back on the air in the fall for an evening series.

Amos 'n' Andy will leave their fresh air taxicab business and Andy's love affairs to take care of themselves while in Pittsburgh next week—to see the Pirate baseball team in action. They'll be the Pirates' guests at their first home game Thursday.

To the radio audience, however, the famous team still will be in Harlem, doing their network broadcast from the KDKA studios.

* * *

News of the day seems to be that:

Fred Allen, who finishes his first 26-week run on the radio Sunday night, will have an audition for a prospective new program Tuesday.

Stoopnagle and Budd's CBS contract has been extended to July.

Beginning Monday, a "Blessed-Event Parade," featuring talks on child care, is to be aired daily at 10:45 a. m. by WWSW.

Fifty and Fit

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

EDUCATORS ALARMED AT SCHOOL 'DICTATOR' PROPOSAL

LABORER SUES FOR BANK CASH AS DEPOSITOR

Demands Gordon Pay Back Money Taken For Expenses

Pete Murani sat meditatively over a cup of good Syrian coffee today and had the satisfaction of knowing that officials in charge of the closed Pittsburgh-American Bank and Trust Company must account for their stewardship.

Murani, at his home at 1228 Webster avenue, will tell you that he recently received a letter from his son, in Syria. The son had just heard of the death of his mother, Manion Betros Murani, and wanted his father to come home.

But the Muranis life savings were in the closed bank and the elder Murani stayed in Pittsburgh. There was $1,100 involved, a lot of money to an unemployed laborer and elevator operator.

SUIT LAUNCHED

Murani, wondering about his money, went to Attorney David B. Fawcett. The upshot was that Murani yesterday filed suit as a depositor to recover for the bank $13,604.79 he charges was misspent. The amount is about one-half of one per cent of the money on deposit in the bank at the time it closed.

Murani demands that Dr. William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, return to the bank $3,501.47 assessed as its share of expenses of the Division of Closed Banks of the banking department, in Philadelphia.

The division, under Deputy Banking Secretary William L. McGee, is spending between $250,000 and $500,000 a year to tell the deputy secretaries of banking in charge of closed state banks in Pennsylvania how to run their business.

OFFICE ASSAILED

Murani alleges:

"The creation and maintenance of said office is unnecessary. . . The charges imposed for expenditures are arbitrary and without legal foundation.

"Whatever services which may have been performed to justify such expenditures could have been rendered by a competent deputy."

If the exception against these charges is upheld, it will result in a wholesale return to closed banks an amount estimated at near $1,000,000 charged against them since 1931. In this way, the suit interests every depositor in every closed bank in the state.

AMEND POLICE PENSION RULE

Directors of the Police Pension Fund have amended their rules for pensions of retired patrolmen leaving the maximum at $86 a month for each patrolman and setting the minimum at $51.60, according to Attorney John A. Metz.

Recently the action of the pension fund in cutting the pensions of patrolmen was attacked in court proceedings and this is still pending. It is said the condition of the fund will determine the amount of pension retired members will receive under the new rule.

'Agents Seize Stills, Rum-Filled Auto

Two stills and a liquor-laden automobile were confiscated by prohibition agents yesterday.

Five gallons of moonshine, 25 gallons of mash and a 25-gallon still were found in a garage on a farm one mile west of Groveton. In a house in Ridge avenue the agents seized a 50-gallon still and eight gallons of whisky. An automobile, containing 30 gallons of moonshine, was seized at Beechwood boulevard and Hazelwood avenue.

World Disarmament Follows Soon After Historic Conference

Gabriel Over the White House

(CONTINUATION OF CHAPTER XI.)

"While I am struggling to balance the budget of the United States we spent during this present year three hundred and sixty millions for battleships while millions of you wonder where your next meal is coming from. And why do we spend this money for battleships? Because the other nations of the world do,"

There was a dramatic pause, then the President resumed: "But if the nations of the world will agree to eliminate their armaments the United States will be glad to fall in line—provided the other nations have previously proved their good faith by convincing action.

"Otherwise, the United States will build such a navy that repudiation of any honest obligation will be the last thought of any nation in the world."

Then facing the British delegation, Hammond hammered home his point: "You, Great Britain, last year spent on your armaments almost a thousand of millions of dollars and yet you say we must reduce the few million you are supposed to pay us this year."

And then turning to the French delegation he continued: "And you, France. Last year you spent on your armament one thousand million dollars MORE than the annual payment you were supposed to make to us—but defaulted.

"And you, Italy, five hundred million. Japan, over three hundred million. Gentlemen, I am through with words and figures. Since I am Commander-in-Chief of the Navy I propose to prove to you the wisdom of saving the world from international bankruptcy."

Battleship Sent Out

Mystified, the members of the various delegations watched this strange man, whose logic was unanswerable, whose strength and purpose set at naught their age old defenses, pick up a small hand microphone and say simply, "Commander Jones, you may proceed."

Hammond, his voice speaking into the microphone and his eyes following the moving war vessel, described to the puzzled delegations and to a waiting people the scene he had staged. "This battleship moving out to sea cost you taxpayers fifteen million dollars. It is now pronounced obsolete. Why? Because fools throughout the world are working out new ships, new designs, new futilities today that render yesterday's work useless.

"That battleship is radio controlled. It contains not a single human being."

Again Hammond picked up the small microphone, through which he had given his first order. "Maj. Dawson, you may proceed."

All eyes were watching the slowly moving battleship. Whispered comments among the conferees testified to the tenseness of the situation—to the wonderment at this unexplained spectacle.

But there was not doubt for long. Hammond again addressed the world-wide audience. "In a few minutes you will hear a faint buzzing sound in the air—yes, there it is—growing louder and louder."

All heads were craned upward as an array of bombing planes appeared, like giant birds, sweeping swiftly from landward.

"Yes," Hammond's voice was heard again, "there they come—one squadron—another squadron—all told three hundred bombing planes—the newest—the best in the world. And we have three thousand of them in reserve. The United States Navy of the air."

He picked up the smaller microphone and gave an order. "You may fire when ready, Dawson."

The squadrons were now over the doomed battleship. No sooner was the order received than the deadly bombs began to drop—with uncanny precision they fell on the mighty structure of steel and iron—explosion after explosion rent the hull apart, crumpled the steel masts and, while the spellbound spectators looked on and the President described the scene to his millions of listeners, the great vessel plunged bow first into the waves and sank in a swirl of bubbles.

"People of the United States," said Hammond, and his voice rang into the microphones, "nations of the world. The world will not learn without bitter

SOCIAL AGENCY ATTACK STILL SUPPRESSED

Welfare Heads Refuse To Reveal Details Of Probe Here

Dr. E. N. Clopper, executive secretary of the Federation of Social Agencies, today continued his refusal to make public a report in which three Pittsburgh agencies for care of the homeless, supported by public funds, were severely criticized by Morris Lewis.

The only public response brought by the report so far has been a sharp denial of Lewis' statements by the managing committee of the Helping Hand, one of the agencies criticized.

Lewis, an employe of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with extensive experience in social service, was loaned to the National Committee on Homeless Men which, in turn, loaned him to the State Department of Welfare. The Welfare Department sent him to investigate in Pittsburgh.

SUBMITS REPORT

Lewis told the first results of his investigation at a luncheon a week ago. He submitted a report to the Welfare Department which came into Dr. Clopper's hands yesterday.

The agencies named were the Improvement of the Poor, the Central Application Bureau managed by the Improvement of the Poor, and the Helping Hand.

Clopper said the welfare department alone could make the statement public. Mrs. Margaret Liveright, secretary of welfare, said only Clopper could release it.

The Federation of Social Agencies has the work of operating a clearing house for relief agencies, suggesting new methods, compiling statistics. It is supported by funds raised in the Welfare Fund campaign.

MERGER OPPOSED

Clopper, paid something more than $7,500 a year, recently has been represented as opposing consolidation of the federation with the Welfare Fund offices, advocated to give the federation power to correct such conditions as Lewis charged through financial control.

Lewis, in his talk last Friday, criticized the Improvement of the Poor as the agency controlling the Central Application Bureau, at which homeless men are listed and consigned to various agencies.

He charged that the association has picked from the applicants those best able to work at the association. They are forced

THE BEALS' OLD, OLD BIBLE . . . ALL THE CHILDREN GOING OVER THE HILL TO NEW HOMES

Illness Closes Home At Edgewood After Sixteen Years

Children in twos and threes, moved over the brink of the hilly street, on their way to the Juvenile Court, and beyond the horizon to new homes.

Inside, the big 14-room house was nearly vacant—its furnishings taken away except from one room.

And in that room Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beals, "Pop and Mom" to many a homeless child, sat talking. They were talking about tomorrow, when the last stick of furniture and the last child will go—and their years of work will be at an end. The State Department of Welfare made it so, for Mrs. Beals has been ill for a year, seriously. Carrying on was difficult.

Sixteen years ago, the childless couple decided they wanted children—other people's children, children small and fat, or tall and thin. It didn't matter whose children—as long as they needed a home and parents to care for them. As Mrs. Beals, a little woman, worn, somewhat tired, said yesterday:

"I prayed that children might be sent to us. I liked them, but never had any. But I had faith. And children came.

"At first, two. They needed a home, and we gave it to them. Then more came. At one time we had 52. Lately, there were 18.

"We didn't adopt them, but they all took our name. They went to school here in Edgewood. Their teachers and fellow pupils liked them.

"Dear me, when it comes lunch time now, I keep saying to myself:

" 'Here it is time for them and I haven't anything ready for them to eat.'

"But they don't come in anymore. I got sick a year ago.

Farm Relief Would Be Fine In the Open Air

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Farm relief has been in the Senate now for two years. It would be great if they could only transplant it outdoors.

But it begins to look like happy days for the furrow carvers. In a way their condition is due to their own contributory negligence in not voting Democratic for 16 years.

From 1916 to 1932 is a giant swing. We finally have a Congress that can play the game without choosing up sides.

It took us plenty of time to see the light from a lamp we had filled ourselves. If the farmers can't make a living, he can't raise one for us.

We understand the government is going to stake the farmer to another billion dollars. And as a summer boarder we demand our share.

Bethlehem Schools To End Contracts

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 14.—(INS.) — Because of financial stress, the local Board of Education today had decided to terminate all existing contracts with teachers, principals, supervisors and other employes whose salaries are governed by the Edmonds act.

FEAR STATE'S SYSTEM MAY BE WRECKED

Charge Bill Imperils Adequate Education Guarantee

Educational leaders throughout the state expressed alarm today over the possibility of the wrecking of the state school system if a Wilson bill now in the State Legislature is passed. One of its provisions would place absolute dictatorial power in the hands of the superintendent of public instruction, educators say.

The bill, just passed by the Senate with amendments, would give the superintendent of public instruction authority to suspend any provisions of the Edmonds act (the school code) and "make mandatory any action by a school district or its board of school directors."

Exercised to its furthest limit, power is seen in this bill by John H. Adams, president of the Pittsburgh Principals Club, to abrogate the state constitution which guarantees all children over six an "adequate" education.

Educational leaders of the Pittsburgh district opposed vigorously the clause of the measure which they believe would lead to vital curtailment of education in impoverished districts.

Miss Hannah Patterson, president of the Allegheny County Committee on School Legislation, comments:

"That clause is very bad. It gives an opportunity to break down all the good work that has been built on the school code."

Miss Esther M. Smith, president of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association, states:

"Unless state appropriations are made adequate, no one can guess the results of this bill. Many children in poor districts will miss necessary instruction."

The primary purpose of the bill—a permissive 10 per cent cut in teachers' salaries, with an added 10 per cent at discretion of the superintendent, is not opposed by teachers here. But the discussed clause knocks the bottom out of these limitations, as they see it.

MAGIC RUG TROD BY ANDERSON

The Councilman's ambition was to walk on the costly rug purchased for former Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Late yesterday Anderson appeared in the Mayor's office and demanded that Mayor John S. Herron introduce him to the "magic carpet." Herron had promised that as soon as he became Mayor he would personally escort Anderson across the rug. He did.

Upon leaving, Anderson expresed satisfaction. Herron also offered Anderson a ride in the Mayor's automobile, but he declined.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 14.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, my beer offer the other day to buy the Senators or Congressmen a nip in return for their unlooked for public good, has brought me a lot of bills. Here is one from a man in New Hampshire: "You didn't say anything about ex-Senators, but knowing your personal regard for ex-Senator Moses, thought it would be O. K., so bought him one. The beer didn't suit him. Said he couldn't get back onto it, so had to give him something better. So enclose bill, to one drink for Senator Moses, 50 cents, discount 40 cents which I took care of myself, which leaves balance due 10 cents. Moses seemed mighty satisfied with this arrangement." That's O. K. with me, an ex-Republican Senator is worth a dime anywhere. Will do the same for Jim Watson, of Indiana.

Yours, WILL.

EAST END BOY TELLS OF LIFE IN JOB ARMY

(John B. Herron, member of the Civilian Conservation Corps, recruited here for employment under President Roosevelt's plan of unemployment relief, is corresponding for the Sun-Telegraph from the camp at Ft. Monroe, Va. Herron's home is at 627 Oakwood street, East End. He formerly was a student at Baxter Grade School, Westinghouse Junior High School and Westinghouse High School. He is attached to 304th Company, Civilian Conservation Corps.)

By JOHN B. HERRON
Special Correspondent.

FT. MONROE, VA., April 14.

These were the things that impressed me as we rolled South from Pittsburgh and arrived here for training.

John B. Herron

There were 343 young men entrained at Pittsburgh. All seemed glad of the opportunity to leave behind conditions which they felt could only bring more months of idleness and possible straying into wrong paths.

It was worth anyone's time to be on board the train just to see the new confidence which was shown in each word, face and action. It was really startling in contrast to the general attitude shown the day before in the welfare and recruiting offices.

There were many interesting incidents on the train, such as the little band composed of Harry Skarupski, of Lawrenceville, on the "uke;" Ray Robalski, Herron Hill, on the harmonica, and some "unknown" playing a jews harp.

Two fellows, hungry from the long ride, disembarked at Cumberland in search of hot dogs. The train started. They ran and caught it, but the platforms were down and the doors closed. They managed to hang on until their yells attracted help from fellow passengers, who managed to get them on the then speeding train.

From departure until arrival we were without any food, a matter of 14½ hours. This, combined with the hardship of such a protracted journey in a day coach, put the fellows in anything but good spirits.

POOR BREAKFAST

Then to a poor breakfast—one cup of black coffee, one small portion of fried potatoes, one portion of fried eggs, bread and butter, one spoonful of cereal, and no seasoning. This was almost too much for some of the boys, but as the day drew on they received their clothing, had a good shower, were assigned to quarters and had two really good meals.

The menus for these meals were:

Lunch—Generous portion of boiled ham and potatoes, creamed corn, coffee with cream, bread and butter and salt.

Dinner—Two large stuffed porkchops, potatoes, sour lettuce salad, bread, butter and coffee with cream.

These made up for all the first meal lacked. Our quarters are of wood, are clean, and let in plenty of sun and fresh air. We have three army blankets each, and two sheets which we sleep between.

The Improvement of the Poor draws from the government sufficient money to pay for the food and lodging of the men, Lewis charged the association received double payment for its services in this manner.

CHARGES BEDS RESERVED

Lewis also criticized the association for keeping 200 to 300 beds for paying guests, it is understood, while 300 to 400 men slept on the floor in the Helping Hand on Water street.

The Helping Hand has issued a statement denying Lewis' charges and saying:

"He showed himself to be unreliable, imaginative, theoretical and devoid of the most important asset of an investigator—an attempt to secure the truth."

The committee denied Lewis' charges that no record is kept of the names of lodgers at the Helping Hand and that there would be no check on the identity of victims in event of fire.

PRAISED BY PINCHOT

The committee cited individuals, including Gov. Pinchot, who have praised the institution. It named various services by which the men can aid themselves and amuse themselves.

Lewis had charged the Helping Hand gave no adequate medical care.

The committee points to medical records and showed statistics to prove a greater degree of health in the last year than before, conclusions drawn from the smaller number of cases treated.

The clinic at the Helping Hand, the committee said, was made possible through the co-operation of city and hospital medical staffs. Dental services were provided.

The Helping Hand denial of Lewis' report was signed by Joseph C. Trees, Frank L. Duggan, Leo Altmeyer, Walter Rosenbaum, Dr. C. B. Schildecker and J. Rogers Flannery.

POLICEMAN HIT WITH BOTTLE

Plainclothesman William (Buck) Boyle, of the Oakland Police Station, was struck on the head with a pop bottle when he attempted to halt a fight between four Negroes in the St. Louis sandwich shop, 2305 Forbes street, shortly after last midnight, according to police.

When Boyle, who was in the restaurant, stepped between the combatants one of them hurled the bottle which struck him on the head. The Negroes fled before police, summoned by a riot call, arrived. Boyle, suffering lacerations on the head, was treated at Homeopathic Hospital.

PA. INSURANCE RESTRICTIONS LIGHTENED

HARRISBURG, April 14. — (AP.)—C. F. Armstrong, Insurance Commissioner, today had laid down new rules affecting life insurance companies in the state.

Regulations were amended to provide for cash loans, surrender or withdrawal values in these instances:

Withdrawals not in excess of $200 per month where the depositor has a withdrawal option under the terms of a deposit agreement.

Companies may pay, without restriction, any sums deposited with it since March 9, 1933, in cash or deposited as the proceeds of a death claim or matured endowment, or an account of dividends accrued since that date.

Up to the extent of the loan value of the policy the company may make a loan thereon, in addition to any other loan previously authorized by the department, equal to the amount of premium paid or loan repaid thereon to the company in cash since the date of the original order of March 9, 1933.

Where payments are permitted under these regulations to any policyholder or the carrying out of any other transaction in relation to a policy and the net amount remaining with the company is only a few dollars and in fact so small as not to warrant the bookkeeping expense of keeping the account open, full payment may be made and the account closed.

Prisoner Rests Before Staging Jailbreak

MASSILLON, O., April 14.—(AP.)—George Walker, 30, charged with petty larceny, walked out of his cell in city prison, but left a note on the cell door. It said:

"I didn't steel nothing in this town and I aint going to. You fellas was goin to take me for a ride, anyway, so I'm gone. If you want me come to .... street, Akron, and ask for George. "G. W.

"P. S.—The door has been unlocked ever since I come. I could of left sooner, but I was pretty tired."

TRADE PARLEY TO HEAR BANKER

Group sessions on foreign trade banking will feature the twentieth national foreign trade convention in the William Penn Hotel, April 26-29. The open forum on banking will be under the chairmanship of Willis H. Booth, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York.

Mr. Booth is a representative of the United States on the Permanent International Commission for Brazil. He is a former president of the International Chamber of Commerce and is officer and director of a number of American firms. Because of foreign exchange restrictions and depreciated currencies abroad unusual interest is expected in the banking sessions.

GRAHAM GIVEN BALLOT PROBE RESULTS

A partial report of the government investigation of frauds charged in the Felix-Muldowney and the Erk-Brooks Congressional election contests last fall is now in the office of United States Attorney Louis E. Graham for examination.

The examination will determine the scope of a contemplated federal grand jury probe of alleged irregularities in the election, insofar as they pertained to the two Congressional contests. The grand jury will convene in regular session on May 1.

The first installment of the report was received from special agents of the United States Bureau of Investigation by First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh, assigned by the federal prosecutor to conduct the examination of the report.

Government attorneys and the agents refused to discuss the report or give information as to the possible number of persons who may be indicted on charges of violation of election laws.

In the investigation local agents were assisted by government men from other cities. The remainder of the report is expected to be given the government attorneys within a few days.

Another Job Army Group Ready to Go

William Buerkle, in charge of the United States Army recruiting station here. The final 94 youths in the initial 900 quota for Fortress Monroe, Va., left today. Nightly shipments will be made to the Pennsylvania conditioning camp until the increased quota is filled.

TIMID 'ARTIST' INDICTED IN KIDNAPING

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 14.—(AP.)—Four indictments charging kidnaping and assault were returned today by a Westchester County grand jury against George Cooper, Jr., 25, of New Rochelle, who last month was alleged to have lured two artist's models to his home because he was "too shy to ask for a date."

Two indictments charge kidnaping and two charge assault. The models, Mrs. Louise Groothoff and Mary Louise Harper, were engaged through an employment agency in Manhattan and went by train to Mount Vernon, where Cooper met them and drove to his home.

IMPRISONED IN ATTIC

Arriving there, the girls charged that he bound and gagged them, carried them to the attic and kept them there four hours, meanwhile sitting in a corner reading a book. Later he untied them, they said, and drove them to Manhattan in his car.

Cooper said today that after he untied the girls all three sat and talked for a while and ate chocolates. He said he was surprised that they had brought the charges against him, as they were "perfectly friendly on the way to New York."

TOO SHY TO ASK FOR DATE

Cooper said he asked them how much money they received for posing, and when told $7 an hour, he remarked he owed them $70, but didn't have that much. He said that when they reached Manhattan he gave them his pocketbook containing $34, that one of them took $20 and the other $14.

At the time of his arrest Cooper, who had used the name of an artist in applying for models, said he had acted as he did because he "was too shy to ask a girl for a date."

TWO CHILDREN HURT BY AUTOS

Sam Byers, 7, of 3214 Versailles avenue, McKeesport, was in a serious condition in the McKeesport Hospital today with a probable brain concussion and fractured right shoulder suffered when he was struck near his home last night by a machine driven by William Nowell, of 1644 Lincoln way, Versailles Township, police reported.

Betty Ann Vogel, 6, of 609 Fordham avenue, Brookline, suffered a probable fracture of the shoulder when she was struck by an automobile driven, police said, by Ray Reisacher, of 2447 Pioneer avenue, at Castlegate and Berkshire avenues last night. She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

CRAZED, SLAYS THREE AND SELF

SOUTH RIVER, N. J., April 14.—(AP.)—Joseph Kencek, 50, released a few months from the State Hospital for the Insane, today shot to death his wife and two of his children, and then took poison from which he died.

The dead, in addition to the man are Mrs. Nellie Kencek, Ana, 20, and Frank, 18.

Another daughter, Rose, 16, was shot, probably fatally. She called the alarm of the tragedy from an attic window to a passing bakery wagon driver. She was shot in the back and was removed unconscious to St. Peter's Hospital.

Three other children, Helen, 13; John, 10, and Mary, 7, probably were spared death because they were asleep in a room on the second floor of the house, while all of the victims slept on the first floor.

Hoarded Gold Flows Back to Bank Here

Gold is continuing to come in to the Pittsburgh branch of the Federal Reserve Bank at the rate of from $30,000 to $40,000 a day, according to Joseph C. Nevin, managing director. Following President Roosevelt's recent proclamation against gold hoarding, a digest of the ruling was sent out from the Cleveland headquarters of the Federal Reserve Bank to a number of individuals and business institutions in the Pittsburgh district, Nevin said.

Woman, 46, Accuses Man of Stealing Her

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 14.—(INS.)—A woman's cry, "He took my car and he stole me, I don't want to marry him," brought the arrest in the court clerk's office of Frank A. Elm, 56, while a license was being prepared for him and Ethel Irene Reinert, 46, both of near Winchester, Va.

Police reported finding an army rifle and a box of shells in the automobile. The woman left to prefer charges in Virginia.

'FAITH' HOME BREAKS UP

Faced death. I couldn't work anymore, although this last week I've been working hard and like it. Then six months ago the state came and told us we better break up."

Mr. Beals broke in:

"It was the right thing, perhaps. Mrs. Beals needs a long rest. We're going into a small apartment, with two of the girls. The rest are going to new homes, and all have had hearings before Juvenile Court. Four are going with their father. They leave Saturday for California."

But Mrs. Beals waved him aside, saying:

"I'd like to do it all over again. And I have faith that I could. I'm fond of the children, I don't know how I'll get along without them."

And Mr. Beals said:

"A good many are grown up and married, and have children of their own. All of them turned out pretty good. A few were mischievous, but none bad.

"We've not had it easy lately. I've worked only two days a week for sometime. We had to meet the rent. But please thank for me everyone that helped us. You know Hallers, Liberty and Smith's gave us bread, Wilkinsburg merchants gave us food and an ice company gave us our supply for years.

"And the Children's Service Bureau. They have been fine. We've kept the children together through the merchants and others, getting little or nothing from the children's people."

Mrs. Beal added:

"To think, everyone got a physical examination and they were fine. Oh, I worked hard. But I'd do it again. Always I had faith. Why some of our children are missionaries."

And, as an afterthought, when she was saying goodby, she said:

"Be sure you write that we're broken up. You know so many would be sending things for Easter, or coming out with things. And they wouldn't find us here."

Sick 11 Years, Woman Dies on 93d Birthday

ALTOONA, Pa., April 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Amanda Lundgren died yesterday on her 93rd birthday. She had been ill 11 years.

FOX RESTORES FULL FILM PAY

HOLLYWOOD, April 14.—(INS.)—Fox Film Studios today had joined the list of movie studios to restore full pay to employes.

Employes of all studios had taken a reduction of salaries of from 25 to 50 per cent for eight weeks, commencing during the bank moratorium.

With the exception of Universal Studios the date for restoration of normal salaries of all other companies has been fixed by the emergency committee of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

A deadlock existed, however, between the Emergency Board and Warner Brothers-First National Studios, which refused to return to full scale April 10 as requested by the committee.

The committee thereupon declared that all employes of Warner Brothers-First National should revert to full pay as of March 6, the date the eight weeks' period started.

Eggs Are Highly Nutritive And Easily Digested

This Food Brings Vitamins A, B and D as Well As Valuable Proteins and Minerals To the Daily Diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Medical students are taught the development and growth of the chick. They must be familiar with every change in the egg, from the first day of incubation to the stage of hatching of the chick.

The reason for this study is because the embryo chick closely resembles the human embryo. This research helps to make them well-informed doctors.

When an egg is kept at a proper temperature for about three weeks it produces a chick that is immediately able to walk and eat. This is possible because the egg contains all the substances necessary for energy, growth and development. Within the shell are found materials that build muscle, bone, nerve and brain. Indeed, the secret of life is hidden in that shell.

The egg is composed of 75 per cent water, 13 per cent protein and 12 per cent fat. Few carbohydrates are found in the egg, but this is counterbalanced by the valuable proteins, minerals and vitamins.

The egg is made up of one-third yolk and two-thirds white. The yellow color of the yolk is due to a pigment or coloring substance called "entein." The yolk is more nutritious than the white of the egg.

NUTRITIVE VALUE

No one will deny the nutritive value of eggs. The yolk is a rich source of vitamins A, B and D. In addition it contains iron, phosphorus, lime and other minerals required for normal growth.

The egg contains valuable proteins. Proteins are those substances that build and repair worn out cells. Without proteins we would fall apart as a neglected building does.

Eggs are easily digested. Contrary to the popular notion they are best digested when slightly cooked. Raw and hard boiled eggs are more difficult to digest. The egg is a concentrated food and has always been a favorite food for invalids and convalescents. An egg weighing two ounces produces 70 calories of fuel value.

Eggs may be given to the infant as early as the fifth month. They may be soft-boiled or mashed. Give the infant a taste of the yolk for the first few times until it becomes accustomed to the taste. Then increase the amount until the whole yolk is eaten.

SENSITIVITY TO EGGS

Do not give the white part of the egg until the child is a year old. The white of the egg is more difficult, to digest and is not as nutritious as the yolk.

Infants, as well as children and adults, may possess a certain sensitivity to eggs. They break out in a skin rash immediately after eating eggs or other foods rich in proteins. Persons with this sensitivity should avoid the particular food containing that protein substance.

Many of my readers will recall the days when eggs were expensive and considered a luxury. Today they are sold at a record low price. This valuable food is within the reach of everyone. Include eggs in your daily menu. They are nutritious, economical, tempting, and may be used in a variety of ways.

Cancel Court Term In Westmoreland

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 14.—There probably will be no May term of Criminal Court and the Common Pleas term will be shortened, it was announced following a conference between County Commissioners and judges. Lack of finances and fact that 1933 taxes will not be coming in until July, influenced officials.

RECIPES BY PRUDENCE PENNY

FASHIONS come and fashions go. Yesteryear's leg o'mutton sleeve would look queer in this year's Easter parade, but leg o'lamb will never go out of style for the Easter dinner. "Leg of lamb is not the only cut suitable for roasting," Inez S. Wilson, home economics director of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, tells us. "There is a roast of lamb to suit every purse and every purpose, from the lordly crown to the lowly breast." And incidentally, you will find the prices of all cuts of lamb very much below last year's.

Below are given recipes for lamb roasts other than the leg. These roasts come from the less-demanded cuts and so they are very reasonable in price. They are admirably suited to the small family since they do not weigh as much as the leg. On the other hand, they may be extended by the use of dressing.

* * *

STUFFED LAMB SHOULDER ROAST—Shoulder of lamb, boned, 2 cups bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon onion, minced, 1 tablespoon drippings, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, salt and pepper.

Have bones removed from a square cut shoulder. Wipe lamb with damp cloth. Make a dressing of the other ingredients and fill the cavity with it. Sew into shape. Season with salt and pepper. Place in a hot oven (500° F.) and sear from 20 to 30 minutes. Reduce the temperature (300° F.) and continue cooking, allowing 35 minutes to the pound. Forty-five minutes before the meat is done, add peeled potatoes. When done, remove to platter and make a gravy by blending flour with the fat in the pan and adding water or sour cream to make the right consistency.

lessons. The next war will be a terrible story of the failure of antiquated machinery and antiquated methods and of the horrifying destructiveness of modern agencies, of arms. Navies and armies will be destroyed from the air. And as these airplanes destroy navies and armies they will destroy cities; they will destroy populations.

"Peace and faith are necessary among men, not merely for the welfare of nations but for the very existence of nations. The next war will depopulate the earth. Invisible poison gases—inconceivably devastating explosives — annihilating death rays—will sweep to utter destruction not only the men but the children who would constitute another generation and the mothers who bear them.

"Unless man's God-given faculty for utilizing the forces of nature for beneficent purposes shall suppress his vicious genius for destruction the race of man shall perish from the earth and the earth be left to the less destructive, less cruel and less stupid wild animals."

A New Covenant

So ended the historic conference. The yacht headed toward port while dazed delegations shook their heads and almost feared to communicate with their own governments. Hammond left amid their perfunctory goodbyes and awaited the result.

It was not long in coming. The people of the world had heard and registered in no uncertain tones their verdict as they saw the way to win clear of heart breaking burdens of taxation.

In Paris mobs roamed the streets singing the Marseillaise and shouting long life to Hammond.

In London amid scenes of wild enthusiasm banners were waved bearing the significant words: "KEEP OUR WORD, PAY OUR DEBTS."

In the capitals of other countries, all affected by Hammond's epochal declaration, there were similar rejoicings.

The outcome exceeded Hammond's wildest hopes, for it eventuated in the signing of the WASHINGTON COVENANT, which provided for world disarmament and thereby paved the way for the harassed nations of Europe to begin without undue strain the payment of their debts to the United States.

Both Pendie and I urged upon the President the necessity of curtailing his own personal activities during this momentous period. Pendie confided to me that he was showing the strain of this almost superhuman effort, but he smiled after warnings and refused to listen.

The signing of the WASHINGTON COVENANT took place in Washington. It furnished a scene seldom equalled for brilliance, but beyond all outward show—dwarfing the great names of those who attended—was its overpowering significance—that here at last in the capital of the greatest democracy of the earth was to be enacted an agreement that would lift an intolerable load from the backs of the world's toilers and open the way for a brighter and happier future.

Has Heart Attack

No wonder when Hammond with a gold pen attached his signature to this memorable document that the faces of the vast and glittering plenipotentiaries radiated honest satisfaction.

No wonder they crowded about the man who had been able to achieve what seemed impossible—who had freed the world from the shackles that bound it, who had ushered in a new era insuring the salvation of mankind.

CHAPTER XII.

The press of the world was unanimous in sounding Hammond's praises, honors were heaped upon him, towns were renamed for him, volumes were written about him, monuments were erected to him, but in the midst of it all Pendie confided to me that she feared the strain had been telling on him—that he had several heart attacks. She even went so far as to instruct me how to deal with these attacks in case of emergency. In Hammond's waistcoat pocket he kept a little case of hermetically sealed glass phials which contained some form of nitrous gas which when inhaled gave instant relief.

Her fear was translated into reality a few evenings later when Connelly came rushing to me, gasping: "Quick, sir, something's happened to the Major."

I guessed immediately what had happened. I dashed past Connelly and searched frantically among the clothes on a chair by the side of the bed until I found the waistcoat. There was nothing on the top left-hand pocket nor in any other. Then, sick with anxiety, my eye fell on the dressing-table where the methodical Connelly had placed the contents of all the pockets. There was the metal case I wanted.

The President's breath rasped out in choking gasps. His face had a bluish, leaden tinge. For a split second I thought I was too late. Swiftly I took out a phial, snapped off the sealed end and placed it below his lower lip, so the gas could be sucked in through mouth and nostrils. His face I covered with my handkerchief to prevent the gas from being dispersed.

Returning to Normalcy

For half a minute there was no chance and then gradually the choking ceased. Soon it ceased entirely and he was breathing naturally. His eyes opened and as he looked at me, I caught something of the quizzical expression of the old days. He slightly nodded his head by way of expressing thanks and a few minutes later was soundly asleep.

As soon as I could I took Pendie aside and told her of the President's heart attack. Her only comment was a sad little nod of her pretty dark head.

* * *

Peale was alone when I arrived at the Sixteenth street house just before the dinner hour, but Pendie came in while we were having cocktails. I thought she looked rather pale and shaken, but it is possible that I was mistaken.

For a time we talked idly about friends and the current gossip. I gathered that the new budget with its income and inheritance taxes still uncut by the Treasury was far from popular. There had been, I was told, an extraordinary fall in the liquor revenue.

Pendie's explanation was probably the true one. "Now that obtaining alcohol is just as dull and uninteresting as ordering coffee or crackers from the grocer," she said, "it has lost most of its appeal, especially to the young. I am certain that much of the heavy drinking of a few years ago was not a natural instinct but was artificially stimulated by that atmosphere of adventure and pseudo-romance which was made to surround bootlegging and defiance of the law."

One new factor which showed that the country was fast returning to normal was a movement to restore party politics. "Our old friend Jasper Brooks is getting busy again," said Peale, smiling. "He is trying to create a new organization. He calls it the Liberty League, and its main plank is to abolish federal control of the internal affairs of the states."

Returns to Headquarters

As I was getting ready to depart Peale was called away to the telephone and Pendie walked with me to the door. She laid her hand on my arm and with unwonted seriousness said to me: "You haven't said anything to Peale or anybody about the President's illness, have you?" I shook my head. Her face brightened. "That's splendid—then please don't;" and in answer to my look of inquiry she shook her head and said, "I cannot say more now, but I have a reason."

Before I could plough into the accumulation of reports on my desk an orderly reported that Capt. Brody, who now had command of my old company, would like to see me. He entered, accompanied by one of his men. "I have brought Corp. Cassidy to see you, chief," Brody commenced, after we had exchanged greetings, "because he has a curious story to tell."

'Prospect' Steals Auto, Robs Station

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—(AP.)—William Powers, motor car salesman, was giving a prospect a demonstration. The prospect was so impressed with the way the new car took Twin Peaks in high gear that he threw Powers out into the road, drove back down the hill and held up an oil station. He took $20 from the attendant and roared away, apparently well satisfied with the car.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

Simmer until tender 3 pounds shoulder lamb. Strain off broth. Let stand overnight. When ready for use, remove hardened fat and strain broth through cheesecloth, using this liquid in the ragout. Separate the lean meat from the bone, removing all skin, fat, and gristle. Add to the lamb broth 8 or 10 small white onions, 8 or 10 new carrots, and 4 small turnips, cut in quarters. Simmer until vegetables are tender, adding small potatoes the last 30 minutes of cooking. Add the lamb, which should be in fair-sized pieces. Season with salt, pepper, celery salt and a few drops of Worcestershire sauce. Thicken slightly with 1 tablespoon flour smoothed in water. Simmer for 10 to 15 minutes longer and serve with dumplings.

* * *

BLANQUETTE OF LAMB WITH GREEN PEAS—Purchase about 2 pounds of lamb from shoulder or breast, and cut into 2-inch pieces. Cook until tender in water to cover, drain, reserving the broth, and dredge with flour. Fry a light brown in fat, replace in the kettle with the broth, add 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 small onion in which a clove is stuck, and 2 cups green peas. Cook slowly until the peas are done. Blend 1 tablespoon butter with 2 tablespoons flour, add enough milk to make smooth, add to the liquor and cook for 10 minutes. Pile the meat in the center of the dish, cover with peas and the sauce.

* * *

OTHER SPRING IDEAS—A broiled steak served on a large platter and surrounded with new buttered asparagus has a delightfully spring-like appearance. Incidentally, the asparagus may be eaten from tip to end, if the stalks are peeled. It takes a little longer to prepare the vegetable, but it is worth the effort.

A very nice spring dinner dish is pork tenderloin and pineapple. Have the tenderloins "Frenched." Cook slowly until brown and tender. Put in a warm place and fry pineapple slices in the fat in the pan in which the meat was cooked. Place on a platter and lay a slice of tenderloin over each piece of pineapple. Garnish the platter with watercress.

A sprig or two of mint cooked with new green peas gives a flavor that is different.

* * *

CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP—2½ cups milk, 2 slices onion, 1 tablespoon butter, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup fresh mushrooms, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, whipped cream.

Heat milk in double boiler with onion slices. Keep just below boiling point. Add butter, salt and pepper. Next add mushrooms which have been cooked in a little butter for 8 minutes, cooled and chopped. Heat to boiling point and add parsley and serve at once, with a spoonful of whipped cream for each serving. Remove onion slices before serving.

* * *

RASPBERRY MARSHMALLOW SURPRISE—1 package Raspberry, 1 cup confectioners junket powder, sugar, 1 pint milk, ¼ lb. marshmallows.

Prepare raspberry junket according to directions on package. Chill in refrigerator. Cut marshmallows in pieces and melt in double boiler. Dissolve sugar in boiling water, add to marshmallows, and stir until thoroughly blended. Turn into a bowl and cool. Just before serving, put topping on cold raspberry junket and then sprinkle with chocolate decorettes.

* * *

Cream cheese and dates.

Rye bread, cheese, mustard.

Steamed brown bread, orange marmalade.

Sliced tongue, dill pickle.

Grape conserve, thin slices banana.

Orange marmalade, chopped nuts.

Lady fingers split, whipped cream, chopped figs.

* * *

SALMON MOUSSE WITH CUCUMBER SAUCE—1 pound can good salmon, 1½ tablespoons sugar, ½ tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1½ tablespoons melted butter, ¾ cup milk, ¼ cup vinegar, ¾ tablespoon gelatin, soaked in three tablespoons cold water.

Flake salmon, mix in sugar, flour and salt. Add beaten egg yolks and melted butter, milk and vinegar. Cook in double broiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from fire, stir in moistened gelatin. Pour into wet mold. Chill. Serve with cucumber sauce on bed of lettuce.

Cucumber Sauce

½ cup cream, whipped stiff, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1-16 teaspoon pepper, 1 cucumber, pared, chopped and well drained.

* * *

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD—4 tomatoes, peeled, 1 cake cream cheese, ½ cup chopped celery, ¼ cup nut meats, broken, ½ cup ripe olives cut in pieces.

Cut tops from tomatoes, scoop out inside and mix with the other ingredients. Decorate with sprigs of parsley and put a tablespoon of mayonnaise on side of tomato. Serve in crisp lettuce.

* * *

BUTTERSCOTCH MALLOW DIPS—1 cup sugar, ½ cup butter, ¼ cup molasses, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons hot water.

Boil all together until brittle when dropped into cold water. Take ½ pound marshmallows and cut in halves; remove butterscotch from fire and dip marshmallows quickly, one by one, with teaspoon. Lay on buttered tin to cool.

* * *

Cut lemons, oranges and apples in sections. Remove seeds, put through food chopper. Combine with pineapple, measure and add equal amount of sugar. Heat slowly to boiling point and boil 20 minutes. Turn into jelly glasses and cover with hot paraffin. Makes about 15 glasses of jam. If apples are small, use 6.

* * *

INEXPENSIVE FRUIT CAKE—3 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons soda, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 cups water, 2 tablespoons lard, 3 teaspoons cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ or 1 box raisins.

Mix and boil 8 minutes, all excepting the flour and soda. Let cool, then stir in the flour sifted with the soda.

Filling—2 cups brown sugar, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter.

Boil sugar and milk 6 minutes, then add butter and spread on cake while cake is warm.

* * *

PISTACHIO FRUIT SALAD—1½ cups bananas, sliced, 1 grapefruit, pared and shredded, 1 cup green grapes, halved and seeded, 1 egg, well beaten, ¼ cup sugar, 1-3 cup pineapple juice, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup whipped cream, finely chopped pistachio nuts.

Combine chopped pineapple, bananas, grapefruit and grapes. Serve with the following dressing: Mix together the egg, sugar, pineapple juice and lemon juice. Cook over hot water until smooth, stirring constantly. Chill and fold in the whipped cream.

Arrange fruit on lettuce leaf, your dressing over and garnish with chopped pistachio nuts.

* * *

POTATO FLOUR MUFFINS—4 eggs, ¾ cup potato flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons hot water, 1 tablespoon sugar.

Beat whites of eggs very stiff and dry. Add salt and sugar to well-beaten egg yolks and fold into whites. Sift flour and baking powder and thoroughly beat into egg mixture. Add ice water last. Fill muffin pans full and bake about 20 to 5 minutes. Moderate oven. Very delicious.

* * *

LOAF CANDY—6 cups granulated sugar, 3 cups sweet cream, 2 cups white syrup, 2 cups chopped nut meats, 1 cup candied pineapple, 1 cup candied cherries.

Cook sugar, cream and syrup until a little dropped into cold water will form a soft ball. This should be cooked over a slow fire and stirred occasionally. Let cool. Beat and add the nuts, cherries and pineapple and continue to beat until creamy and just about stiff. Pour into buttered pans.

* * *

DE LUXE APPLE PIE—Thinly sliced apples, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ cup water, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs, separated, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup milk.

Butter pie plate and fill with apples, sprinkle in half of sugar, add nutmeg, lemon juice and water. Cream butter and rest of sugar together, add yolks and beat well, sift in baking powder, flour and salt, add milk and beat for two minutes. Pour this batter over the apples and bake in a moderate oven until apples are soft. Let cool. Beat up whites to a stiff froth, add 2 tablespoons sugar and beat again; spread this frosting over the dish and return to oven to brown slightly. Serve hot with hot milk. Sufficient for six.

GRAPE FRUIT SURPRISE—Cut medium sized grape fruit in half and take out the center. Then cut the edge of the fruit in points and loosen sections so each piece will come out easily. Place a ball of well frozen sherbet in center. Cover top of each half with meringue made of beaten egg whites and two tablespoons of sugar (to each white). Meringue must go

"SO HAPPY THAT I TRIED ALL-BRAN"

Delicious Cereal Brought Relief From Constipation

If you have headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read Mrs. Schneider's letter:

"Since I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I don't have to take anything else for constipation. How good it is, and how much better it is for constipation than pills or any other medicine.

"I would never go back to what I used to take, because Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is wholesome and healthful." —Mrs. John Schneider, 950 Tenth Street, Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN has both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the wastes.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

People I'm Glad I'm Not

It is difficult for me to believe the story—therefore, in fairness to one who has had medals chucked at him by this pillar for his talented dance arrangements in musical comedies—his name is omitted until later . . . A personable fellow. A dapper dresser. He has some charm among ladies and gentlemen. His routines in the Broadway rodeos rate any critic's nod . . . But his troupe of girls write me that he is a petty grifter. That he robbed them, they said, of a few dollars each . . . After the show closed recently—he collected the girls—and had them rehearse strenuously for a week . . . He then booked a date at the Brooklyn Paramount . . . But he never showed up . . . A week later, it seems, he again appeared and gathered his flock . . . He talked them into taking a cut in what are amusingly called their "wages" . . . Instead of getting $40 a week each, they agreed (because they were desperate for work) to take $32.50 . . . Then at the theater he urged them to take another $2.50 shave . . . He pouted that he personally wasn't making a penny out of it . . . Uh-huh . . . The girls, however, flatly spurned his request, after they discovered that the theater didn't demand the cut . . . So, on the final night—he handed the "pay" envelopes to the dance crew's captain—and then took it on the lam—which is 42nd St. for "taking a run-out powder" . . . He instructed her not to pay the staff until after the last performance . . . Catch on? . . . 'Fraid cat. 'Fraid of little chorus girls. Shame! . . . When they got there—the cupboard wasn't exactly bare—but the chiseler, who had deducted $2.50 from each envelope (which the gals never agreed upon) had foodle-dee-dood . . . He really doesn't rate having his name omitted, at all . . . But he might yell "foul!" which they always do.

Add Thrills

"Dear Winchell: Comrade Leopold Strauss' case appears to be extremely meritorious, and you may rest assured that I will exert every effort to have a speedy adjudication of same . . . It is indeed gratifying to know that men of your calibre are still interested in carrying on for the betterment of humanity—Henry C. Johnson, State Commander, Disabled American Veterans of the World War."

Lowdown

The Naval Board of Inquiry at Washington "investigating" the end of the Akron brought out some things—but certain facts were not released to the press . . . So—being an impatient fellow—and too restless to wait for the officials to tell the truth—here is what the Naval Engineers Board of Inquiry—withheld from America . . . These findings, however, will be released to the press on April 19! A week hence!

No. 1—It was mishandled . . . No. 2—Headed into storm under power instead of throttling motors . . . No. 3 (a)—Ballast dropped in an improper manner . . . 3 (b)—Ballast was dropped from forward position of ship, instead of even distribution, which caused the bow to swing up sharply . . . No. 4—Motors were ordered full-power—which caused other structural disturbances . . . No. 5—The order was given not to stand by for the crash, but for all hands forward, which caused another uneven distribution of weight.

Child Classic In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Visitors to the Fulton who are Dickens fans will find there an "Oliver Twist" that is thoroughly Dickensian in atmosphere, fidelity to characterization, poignancy of its drama and the heart-searching appeal of its little chief character, played naturally and sympathetically by Dickie Moore. Visitors who never have read Dickens will find it just as interesting—perhaps more so—in its revelations, for the book reader gets his pleasure in seeing actually happening the things he knows are coming, whereas the person unfamiliar with the tale is in for constant surprises.

It is most excellently acted in all principal roles, and it seems as if the characters of the crafty Fagin, the cruel Bill Sykes, the sly Artful Dodger, the sympathetic Nancy Sykes, the officious Bumble, the kindly Mr. Brownloe and the wistful Oliver Twist himself have all come to life.

Irving Pichel gives a masterful portrayal of Fagin throughout and develops considerable strength in the final moments of the criminal leader into whose clutches Oliver falls. William Boyd of the stage gives Bill Sykes all of his sinister meaning, and Doris Lloyd, as his wife, Nancy, wins a tear for her fate and sacrifice. Alec Francis is a nice, fatherly Mr. Brownloe. Sonny Ray, as the Artful Dodger, is true to tradition.

It is exceptionally well done, too, in the matter of setting and costumes.

President Roosevelt, in a military review, and other scenes of interest in Hearst Metrotone News, and an "Our Gang" comedy are other attractions on the bill.

Greta Garbo To Return Later

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, April 14.—Any reporters who swarm over the steamship Annie Johnson in search of Greta Garbo are going to be disappointed. The famous Swede was in Stockholm as late as April 5. This is the news I get from an apparently unimpeachable source. The same informant declares that La Garbo plans to slip out of the Swedish capital this week and may continue on to America.

Miss Garbo

Greta undoubtedly will return to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where, as a shy and awkward young woman, she made her first hit in "The Tempest." The homecoming will be as triumphant as she will allow. After all these months, the Garbo name still has the same glamorous appeal to the fans.

We've heard a lot of rumors that Josef von Sternberg will direct Greta in "Queen Christina." So far, they've met with official evasion or denials.

But return Garbo will. That's certain—and it won't be on the Annie Johnson.

* * *

It's late to report the incident, but Bill Conselman heard a honey of a story about Mae West's first look at the script of "Diamond Lil." (On the screen, "She Done Him Wrong.")

She read a few pages and looked up in astonishment.

She cried: "Why the lousy bums have taken all the charm out of it."

* * *

Funny, all this epidemic of rumors that Jean Harlow is married again. Last week, some young actor (no one could name him) was supposed to have confessed in his cups that he was best man when the blond star married her Mexican doctor admirer at Nogales. Later, the wires burned with the news that a customs man at Laredo, Tex., was sure Jean was the bride of a fellow from Shreveport, La.

Miss Harlow

Both reports Jean denies. She told me:

"I'd hate to think I'd go all my life without being married again and having children. But there's no man now."

* * *

Ann Harding will make two more pictures at RKO. (They'll try to rush them through in nine weeks), but first there'll be a vacation.

"I want to get on a small boat," she says, "where there are not a lot of people, and go as far as the boat will carry me."

As you've probably gathered, Ann is a woman with definite ideas. The other day her little daughter, Jane, visited the set at M-G-M, and disappeared. She was discovered on top a runway with the electricians. Everybody was excited except Ann. She didn't call the child down. She said:

"Can't the child climb ladders? I did when I was a girl. I'd a lot rather run the chance of her getting a few bruises than of planting fear in her mind."

* * *

The casting of Frances Marion's "Prizefighter and the Lady" story is up in the air again. Joan Crawford isn't entirely sold on "The Dancing Lady," so the studio may switch her back to the picture with Gable. In which case, Jean Harlow may do the Anita Loos story originally called "Black Orange Blossoms,' but now known as "Hold Your Man." Incidentally, Rowland Brown and Gene Fowler are to have a whack at adapting that Hollywood story for Harlow. It was called "Bombshell."

* * *

I find a certain irony in the fact that when Rudy Vallee and Fay Webb had that quarrel and she started for the coast, he was engaged in recording a song called "Thank Heaven For You." It's for Paramount's "International House" . . . Moss Hart (he co-authored "Once In a Lifetime") has a leave of absence from M-G-M and is heading back to Broadway to do the "Music Box Revue" with Irving Berlin. He may write a play, too . . . One of my scouts reports that Winfield Sheehan took Peggy Joyce to Henry Wales' party last week-end. The Princess Pignatelli, Mary McCormic and Prince M'Divani and Jed Kiley, the ex-Chicago reporter who got famous in Paris, were among those present . . . And to the disappointment of the curious, Katharine Hepburn returned here minus the usual trick outfit. She wore a dark grey flannel suit and a gray knitted hat. Men's type suspenders were the only item of her apparel that might rate a gawk.

Did you know: That Jack La Rue once was a guitar-player in Otis Skinner's production of "Blood and Sand?"

Viva Tatersall, Lionel Barrymore and Doris Lloyd, members of the Benton family, in "Looking Forward," movie of play, "Service," which President Roosevelt permitted to take the title of his book, "Looking Forward." It is a Cosmopolitan production for early release.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Walter Abel, who portrayed the leading male part, that of "Vinnie's" brother, in "Mourning Becomes Electra," plays a light role in "When Ladies Meet," the Crothers-Golden comedy coming to the Nixon next week. It is the first time in his career that he hasn't been doing something serious, heavy or moody on the stage, although he has had numerous chances. In fact, he says that he turned down $125 a week and a Toronto stock job to take $40 a week with the Theater Guild, just because it was the Theater Guild, which, to him was significant of a serious theater instead of a frivolous one. Among other chances refused was one with "Lightnin'." But he got into such arty things as the Provincetowners and the Guild presented. So when "Electra" was finished on the stage, he found himself thoroughly labeled as a tragic actor, with no producer in need of a tragedian. He says that is all in the past and that, after his experience in his present role, it will be light parts for him hereafter.

* * *

Dick Powell, who is making a personal appearance tour, will be in Pittsburgh—Duquesne Garden—for two days, April 28 and 29, along with an orchestra . . . The assets of Fred Keating, bankrupt magician, whose outstanding trick was the vanishment of a canary in a cage in his hands, were listed as worth $1,001, of which $1,000 was for bird cages and $1 for the canary . . . Irene Rich, film actress, will make her eastern dramatic debut in a stock company in Atlantic City Monday.

Broadways Of the World

ALL IN A DAY

By Mark Hellinger

GREAT EASTERN HOTEL, CALCUTTA, India.—Impressions of a Broadway reporter in Calcutta:

The taxis in this city are the worst in the world. Or if they're not, they will certainly do until the worst comes along. Most of them are antiquated vehicles that are painted a sickly green. The color was probably chosen to give the passenger a rough idea of how he will feel when the ride is over.

The drivers, for the most part, are Sikhs. The Sikh is a powerful-looking bruiser with a beard that is just long enough to enable him to go around without a tie. They speak no English whatsoever, which seems to be a common fault of taxi drivers the world over.

Thus, when you get into a Calcutta taxi you get the following thrills: You tell him where to go, and he grunts. He's a fellow you wouldn't want to meet on a dark night—or a sunny afternoon. The machine is highly uncomfortable. The chauffeur drives too fast. His beard glides back behind his ears and you get a good idea of what he had for breakfast. You tell him to slow up. He nods—and goes faster.

And when he finally stops you're in the wrong place . . .

This hotel—far and away the finest in India—caters almost exclusively to the English. It is hot, sticky and uncomfortable here these days, yet the folks must adhere to the dress racket.

On my first night here the dining room was crowded—and I was the only person in the entire place who wasn't in evening attire. The head waiter snorted when I entered and placed me at a table in a far corner of the room. And the looks I got from the diners whom I passed made me want to laugh out loud.

There's only one way to beat the dress racket in India. Eat alone in your room, which is what I've been doing ever since. The food is sometimes a little cold, but the company is ever so much warmer . . .

The women in India are homely monkeys. Come to think of it—aside from motion pictures and an occasional optimistic artist's conception—I have never seen a truly pretty Indian woman. And as for the English girlies in this part of the world—well, brothers and sisters, I hesitate to be too bold.

Calcutta has something that I didn't find in the rest of India—white panhandlers. They hang around the office of the American Express Company here, and their stories made me long for good old Broadway where a panhandler is an artistic liar. They lie here, too, but they lack that artistic touch.

For instance, the first bird to hit me said that he was an ex-officer in the British army and that he had fallen upon evil ways. Could I spare him a rupee? I spared it, but my heart was heavy. He could have at least thrown in a sick sister or a dying mother and asked for three rupees.

Then, again, the second panhandler had an Irish brogue that you could have cut with a stovepipe. Did he tell me that I looked Irish to him, and that wouldn't have tackled me otherwise? Did he tell me that his little baby was in the hospital and that he was waiting for money in a letter from Ireland that was due any day? Did he offer to take my name and pay me back when the money arrived. God bless me?

Not a bit of it. He, too, just said that he was up against it and that he wanted something to eat. I gave him some money, but I really hated to encourage such a bad performance.

Yes, the panhandling racket is in a low state in Calcutta. A good Broadway panhandler could make a fortune over here. And he wouldn't have to practice his trade either. He could just teach—on a percentage . . .

The dope traffic is one of the most frequently discussed subjects in Calcutta today. I've collected plenty of material on the subject, and I expect to do a long article about it one of these days. So in this space I can give you but a few random observations.

Drug-taking in the Orient is almost second nature to the natives. Despite the fact that the English are making progress against the evil, year after year, it must necessarily be slow progress.

Opium, cocaine and morphine are all obtainable in India through the proper sources. In that respect, the situation is practically the same as it is in the United States. There's no habit that will be denied you in any corner of the world—if you have the price.

Our narcotic unfortunates, however, have seldom gone in for hemp, while over here it is almost as common as the chewing of the betel or the smoking of tobacco. You'll find hemp being smoked all over India, and there is very little the authorities can do about it. The habit is too deeply ingrained among the Indians ever to be completely stamped out.

During a discussion with some government men the other night, I asked the old question about which drug was the most harmful. They all agreed that opium was the least harmful of the narcotics—and they surprised me completely when they agreed that alcoholic excess was a worse habit than the smoking of opium. They all believed firmly that the alcoholic was more degraded in the long run than the opium addict.

While speaking along these lines, one of the men recalled an old Persian allegory that he had read somewhere. He told it to illustrate his point, and I think it good enough to repeat here. So:

Three men arrived one night at the gates of a Persian city. One man had been smoking hemp to excess. The second was suffering from the effects of too much opium. And the third was a confirmed alcoholic who was in his usual state.

It was late when they arrived and the gates of the city were already locked for the night. It was the opium eater who spoke first.

"It makes little difference," he murmured. "We can remain here very comfortably for this night. We are outside the city and it is all most peaceful. In the morning the gates will be opened. And we can all enter without the slightest trouble."

The alcoholic wheeled in a fury.

"You are a fool," he cried loudly. "Why should we wait until morning when we do not have to? That is your trouble. It will always be your trouble. You give in too easily."

He pulled out a small sword. "I am a man," he bellowed. "I do not take the easiest course. With this sword, I can break down the gates of this city. They are large—but they are as nothing for one so powerful as I.

"I am stronger than any wall and braver than any army. I do not wait for gates to open; I break them down with my sword. You two would be wise to join me. I am going to break down the gates!"

The hemp smoker looked first at the opium eater. Slowly his gaze travelled to the alcoholic. Then he shrugged his shoulders.

"I do not understand," he mumbled. "All this talk seems to me to be very foolish. One of my friends wants to sleep outside the city and the other wants to break down these great gates with his puny sword.

He sighed.

"Is it not all very silly," he went on, "when all we have to do to get inside is to creep through the key-hole?" . . .

RAIN KEEPS PIRATES, REDS IDLE IN CINCINNATI

Packard Shift Explained. | Dempsey Offers Gamble.

EARLY BUC PITCHING BEST IN MAJORS

FIRST, BILL SWIFT. Next, Larry French. Well, there are two pretty fair exhibits in rebuttal to put against the testimony of the baseball experts who asserted that the Pirates didn't have any pitchers. Each hurled a four-hit game to start the Bucs off in the new season with two straight victories, and but for fielding errors behind them they would have turned in a pair of shutouts. True, the opposition was not the strongest in the National League, but that does not alter the fact that through the first two days of the campaign the Rovers presented better pitching than any other club in either of the major circuits.

Larry French

Of course, there never was any doubt about French, an established ace, but it is comforting to know he is in form to carry on right from where he left off last fall, when he won nine of his final 11 games. The Pirate southpaw is ambitious to win 20 games in a season. Last year he piled up 18 in spite of an unlucky start in which he lost eight of his first 10 engagements. If his impressive beginning yesterday may be taken as an indication of a change of fortune for 1933, this may be the year in which he will reach his goal.

IT DEVELOPS THAT the transfer of Frank Packard, Homewood resident, from Baltimore to Jersey City in the International League, which brought a vigorous protest from Baltimore fans, was made at the request of Packard himself, who desired a chance to play at one position instead of being shifted around continually.

In the first place, Frank couldn't see the justice of a 30 per cent salary cut, inasmuch as he had a good season in 1932, driving in 98 runs, scoring 103 himself, hitting .313 and making 28 homers. He played 81 games at third base and 67 in the outfield, appearing in all three gardens and making himself generally very valuable to his club.

IN FAIRNESS TO the Baltimore club, Packard explains in a letter from Jersey City that when he found the management expected him to take the cut and continue playing everywhere in the lineup, he asked that he be allowed to play in one position regularly.

Frank was willing to play either at third base or in the outfield, but as, naturally, he is ambitious to go to the majors one day, he feels that he can't go as long as he is being shifted around. It was his belief that playing in one place all year would benefit him.

WHEN THAT REQUEST was not granted, Packard asked the Baltimore officials to make a deal for him. They declined to let him become the property of another club, considering him too good a prospect to be allowed to get away, but as Jersey City is depending on the remainder of the league for help, the young athlete was sent there with a Baltimore string attached. "I am perfectly satisfied in Jersey City," the Pittsburgher writes, "as I'll have a chance to play regularly in one position, and besides it's great to play for Mike Kelly, who is manager, and whom I used to play against in the old Sally League. Have had a bad case of trench mouth and will be out of the first week of play, but when I get back in there I'm going to try my darnedest to get up in the majors, and if honest effort and hustling will get me there, I'll be seeing you."

John A. Heydler

JOHN A. HEYDLER, president of the National League, writes the Sun-Telegraph in defense of the 1933 schedule, replying to the comment here that it puts the Pirates under a handicap in the early part of the season by forcing them to play away from home in 23 of their first 30 games.

The league chief says that the demand for the early intersectional series to which this is due came more from National League clubs than from those in the American. He sees advantages in it, pointing out that one feature, which he terms "a mighty good one in these times," is that Pittsburgh people will see every club in the league by May 25, adding that in 1929, the last odd-year schedule of 25 weeks, and which he holds is the right basis of comparison, it was June 12 before they had that chance.

THE EARLY ARRANGEMENT was unavoidable, President Heydler explains, because of the fact that the Pirates never open at home and must make the first Eastern trip in any odd year, and he adds that by the tenth Saturday there will be a very even distribution of home games, with 29 for Pittsburgh, 29 for Chicago and 30 for St. Louis. "There is no written law that three holidays are due the Pirates," he continues. "In fact, there has been much dispute on this point, especially when during the last three years your three holidays put together did not draw as much as one holiday, when Pittsburgh was considered the best holiday town in the country.

"Now I appreciate there are weak spots in the 1933 schedule. But there never was a schedule drawn that did not have them. And also let me go on record that there never was a National League schedule that did not draw complaints from one or more clubs, and this with all reverence and regard for my old associate, Barney Dreyfuss, the best of all schedule makers. The radical change of sending the West to the East, and the latter through the West, all within the short space from May 2 to 28, is, of course, something that must prove its practical worth. Personally, I believe it will prove one of the most attractive features of this year's schedule."

THE PHILLIES APPEAR to be slightly mixed up in their bookkeeping. They are calling 1933 their Golden Anniversary Year in the National League and are preparing to celebrate their fiftieth season of membership in the senior loop. As a matter of fact, this is their fifty-second season. The old Athletics were in the league's first race in 1876 and the city then withdrew for six years. Even if only consecutive seasons of membership are counted, this year is No. 51 for the Quakers, as Philadelphia returned to the National League in 1883 and therefore completed 50 straight years with the close of the race of 1932.

SUCH WELL-KNOWN football coaches as Howard Jones and Bill Spaulding, of Southern California and U. C. L. A., have lined up with the college sport chiefs opposing beer drinking by athletes. "I saw a lot of beer drinking during my days at Yale," Jones said, "and I don't believe it helped any of the players. Yale had to ban beer. As for our athletes at S. C., I haven't seen any who needed it."

Spaulding declared his Bruins would have to get along without the foaming substance. "You can't drink beer and play good football," was his comment. "That stuff about its helping a stale athlete is just a matter of opinion. If you've got a weak football team, all the beer in the world won't help you."

JIMMY JOHNSTON, boxing boss at Madison Square Garden in New York, was trying to give Jack Dempsey the needles. He told the former champion that his only chance to get a big crowd to see Max Schmeling and Max Baer fight was to let the Garden people take over the bout and put it on as a semi-final to the Sharkey-Carnera match.

Jack Dempsey

Whereupon Dempsey came back with a novel gambling proposition. He offered to join forces with Johnston in promoting a match between the winners of the two fights and let all the profits go to the promoter having the victorious battler.

"YOU THINK SHARKEY and Carnera are pretty good," said Dempsey in submitting his proposal. "I don't believe they rate with my fighters, Schmeling and Baer. So here's what I'm willing to do. I'll work with you to promote a fight in September between the winner of your match and the winner of mine. We'll be partners in promoting the fight. And if my winner doesn't beat your winner you can have all the profits from the show and I won't take a dime for my end of the promotion. But if my fighter beats yours, then I take all the profits and you take nothing for your end." Johnston might be willing to take the chance, but he is merely an agent for the Garden Corporation, and it isn't the latter's way of doing business.

Thomas-De Grasse Fight Thrills Arena Fans

JIMMY VICTOR; WILSON WINS, BUTCH LOSES

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

One of the greatest fights ever staged here was the subject of bitter discussion among the local boxing fans today.

It was the semi-final of 10 rounds at the Arena, on the North Side, last night, in which Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, evened the score with Pete De Grasse, French-Indian, of New York, by winning the referee's decision. De Grasse won over Jimmy in Montreal several weeks ago. The fans liked De Grasse's work and razzed the verdict last night.

So hot was the action from bell to bell that this battle completely stole the show away from the main bout, in which Jackie Wilson, local Negro featherweight, recent conqueror of Tommy Paul, won all of the way over the highly-touted Johnny Pena, of Chicago, in 10 rounds of tame milling that started the fans homeward as early as the end of the sixth round.

WILSON BEATS PENA

Wilson fought his customary moving, circling bout, stabbing and crossing and tying up his opponent inside. Pena, strictly a club fighter, tried throughout to get to close quarters, but seldom succeeded. When he did get there he found his punches blocked or Wilson clutching his arms and pinning them down. The fans clapped and stamped for action in vain.

The fourth and fifth rounds were about even, but Wilson took all of the others. Pena received a slight cut on his left eye in an early round.

In the other 10-rounder, Johnny Hinds, of New York, Negro holder of the National Guard bantamweight championship in his home state, showed good boxing form in easily beating Mose Butch, local Italian, after the latter had carried the first round. Mose was slow and off in his judgment of distance and couldn't get going, putting up one of his poorest bouts. Hinds proved a surprise package.

Georgie Schlee, North Side lightweight, was knocked out by Dominic Mancini in the second round of the scheduled six-round opener, after being floored twice for counts of nine in the opening round. Body blows did the trick.

FANS BOO DECISION

The crowd and the officials split wide open on the Thomas DeGrasse battle, Judge Freddie Lux voting for a draw, Judge Mike Moran for De Grasse and Referee Joe Zivic for Thomas. Boos mingled with the cheers as the verdict was announced, for DeGrasse had captured the fancy of the fans with his showmanship and willingness to mix. However, Thomas clearly outpointed him.

Jimmy's straight left hand was forever in Pete's face, and he forced the fight in every round, with De Grasse refusing to break ground and fighting back in spurts and ending every session with a rally, in which he featured

The Tarahumare Indians are famous for their prowess in running, of which they have given many astounding examples. In the olden days they would run in relays to deliver fresh fish to the table of the Mexican emperors and cover more than 200 miles in a single day. THE LOAF AND THE LADY—The word "Lady" is an evolution of the Anglo-Saxon "hlaefdige" (loaf-kneader) a combination of "hlaef," a loaf (of bread) and "dige" (kneader, a word akin to "dough"). The male counterpart is the august "Lord," evolved from the Anglo-Saxon "Hlaefweard" (Loaf-Guardian). BUCS TO LEAVE FOR CHICAGO SERIES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, April 14.—The final game of the three-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds, scheduled here this afternoon, was called off on account of rain.

The postponed game will be played at Redland Field on Sunday, May 28, as part of a doubleheader.

The Pittsburgh players made hasty arrangements to leave for Chicago. They left Cincinnati less than two hours after the game was cancelled and were expected to reach Chicago about midnight.

The Buccos will open a three-game series with Chicago tomorrow, weather permitting. Games are scheduled for Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday, Monday being an open date.

BUCS WIN SECOND

With Larry French pitching four-hit ball yesterday, the Buccos made it two in a row over the Reds, the score was 5 to 2. French duplicated Bill Swift's feat of the previous afternoon.

Opposed to French was Eppa Rixey, a Pirate pain in the neck last year.

Lindstrom started the scoring in the third after his smart bunt had crossed up the Reds. P. Waner hit into a force play for the second out, but Traynor singled to score Lindstrom and Suhr walked to fill the sacks.

ERRORS HURT REDS

Durocher fumbled Vaughan's roller to send in another run and Piet singled on the infield to make the third tally. Lindstrom also worked his way around in the fourth, on his single and hits by P. Waner and Traynor another run was counted.

French did not let a Red runner reach base until the fifth when Moore singled. Rice reached first on Vaughan's fumble and the inning produced two enemy runs.

JACK AND MAX DUE MONDAY

Jack Dempsey and Max Schmeling will not arrive in Pittsburgh until Monday morning for their exhibition appearance at Motor Square Garden Monday night, the promoters have been informed by Billy McCarney, who is booking Schmeling's tour.

The German arrived in New York today and will be banqueted there Saturday night and will not leave until Sunday night for Pittsburgh with his sparring partners. Headquarters for Dempsey and Schmeling will be at the William Penn Hotel and for the sparring partners at another downtown hostelry.

TO BE SEMI-FINAL

The Schmeling exhibition of two bouts, one of one round and the other of two rounds, with Dempsey in the role of referee, will go on as the semi-final, before the Carl Montebano-Alabama Kid return bout of eight rounds, to enable Max and Jack to catch an early train for Boston, where they put on their show, the following night. Thus the two former heavyweight champions will be in town only a little more than 12 hours all told.

Announcement is made by the Garden management that tickets for the exhibition are being sold only at the Garden box office and that if any of these have fallen into the hands of scalpers they will have to be peddled in front of the arena on the night of the show, when police will be on the job to arrest any persons offering pasteboards for sale.

Between Rounds

Motor Square Garden will not be able to run a boxing show one week from next Monday, due to a food show being in the building, but it plans to operate on May 1, 8 and 15, which may alter the plans of Hickey Park to open the outdoor season on the last-mentioned night.

The Alabama Kid will have only one night's rest after his bout with Carl Montebano at the Garden on Monday before he answers the bell again against Frankie Palmo in a 10-rounder at East Liverpool, O., next Wednesday. Benny Ray and General Burr are in the six-round semi-final.

Charley Burns and Bobby Rowe will box the six-round main bout of a benefit show in Johnstown next Thursday night.

BUCKEYES CARD IRISH

COLUMBUS, O., April 14.—(INS.)—Addition of Notre Dame to Ohio State University's baseball schedule for a game at South Bend May 20 was announced today by Buckeye athletic authorities.

Harry Schoeller defeated Bill Kish in a city three-cushion billard match last night, 50-48. Slim Lohr meets Dale Campbell tonight.

POLO FINALE TOMORROW

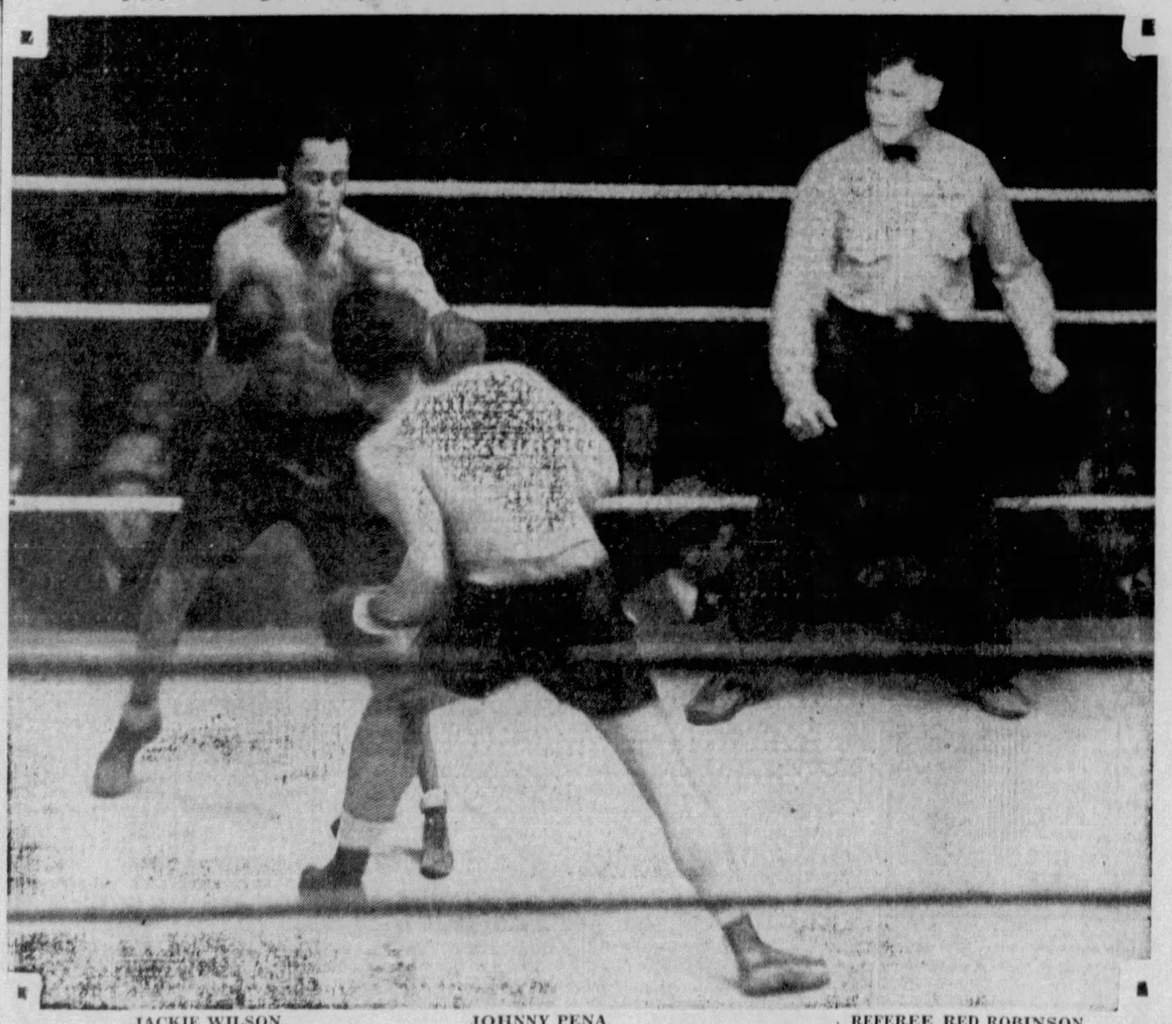
WILSON OUTBOXES JOHNNY PENA AT ARENA



JACKIE WILSON — JOHNNY PENA — REFEREE RED ROBINSON

JOE SEMLER SIGNED BY CHAMPION BOOK NINE

DORMONT ADDS O'CONNELL TO CLUBROSTER

By TOM BIRKS

Joe Semler, McKees Rocks boy, who last season pitched in the New York-Pennsylvania League with Hazleton and York, has signed a contract to play with the Book club, City League champion, this season. Manager Ed Buch made the announcement today.

Joe Semler

This means that Semler, who is very popular in the Stowe district, has given up the idea of returning to minor league baseball.

Semler has been one of the most successful of district pitchers to graduate from the sandlots to minor league ball, and his return will be hailed by the Olympic Park fans.

O'CONNELL SIGNED

The Dormont club signified that it is going to have something to say in the City League race last evening, when the club was host to the players that are signed this season at a smoker to introduce the boys to the South Hills fans.

After Judge Ralph Smith, President William Maish, Burgess Chamberlain and John Stewart had delivered pep talks, Bill Shuster introduced the players that co-Managers George Falconer and Billy Fuchs had signed for the season. Some surprises marked the introductions.

The newcomers were headed by Johnny O'Connell, Verona boy, who was signed by the Pirates and sent to a minor league club. O'Connell is a catcher, but with Rhiny Kress on the club, will play the outfield and help Kress with the receiving duties.

Bill Jacobs, who was supposed to report to Grover Alexander's House of David club, also will be in the outfield, together with Carl Frey, who has had a couple of tryouts with the Pirates. Hal King, who will play third base, was with Columbus of the American Association, where he hit 13 home runs. He later was sent to Denver, but did not report. He comes with the reputation of a slugger.

CARROLL IN FOLD

Of last season's players, Leo Carroll signed before the smoker was over and Richards, a left hander, also joined up.

It definitely was decided today that the National Baseball Federation championship tournament will be held in Pittsburgh this year. William S. Haddock and Steve Cox, directors of the Greater Pittsburgh section of the federation, received word from the national secretary telling them to go ahead with plans for the summer meeting to be held here in July. At this meeting all arrangements for the championships to be held in September will be made.

The Suburban League was organized last night with eight clubs in the fold. The season will open on May 1 with Verona Independents at Universal. Other teams in the league are North Bessemer, Penn Community, Renton, Trafford, Pitcairn and Oakmont.

The Homewood club, of the City League, will hold a practice session at the Homewood playgrounds at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon. The Brushton club, of the County League, will hold a workout at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

Olympic Swimmer In 'Y' Meet Here

The Downtown Y. Swimming Club will be host to the Ft. Wayne (Indiana) Y., in a swimming meet in the Downtown Y. pool at 8:15 next Tuesday evening.

Dan Zehr, American Olympic swimmer, who is National A. A. U. backstroke champion, is the ace of the Ft. Wayne team.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, April 14.—From where I stand it's hard to tell with my binoculars whether the breweries or the baseball season got off to a better start. Of course they've got the brew houses working day and night, but wait till we start playing doubleheaders. All I got to say at present is that business is good in both branches of these noble sports.

Now that the season is opened all we got to worry about is the weather. You heard the old saying about winter lingering in the lap of spring. Well, sometimes in April it seems like winter is not only in spring's lap, but has her arms around his neck in a copper-riveted clinch.

The weather in Washington is naturally O. K. since Roosevelt got everything straightened out, but sometimes when you head North to Boston in April you wonder if they've let Labrador into the league. So I don't lay my red flannels aside till Memorial Day and it's got to be July or August before I even give a thought to joining a nudist colony.

PIRATE CHIEF ENTHUSED

By JULIUS LEVIN

Waxing enthusiastic over the showing of his ball club in the first two games of the season with the Cincinnati Reds, William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, arrived home this morning from Cincinnati to await the return of the Bucs for their local inaugural with the Reds next Thursday afternoon.

W. E. Benswanger

Benswanger, accompanied by Mrs. Benswanger, took in the first two games in Cincinnati, and expressed himself as elated over the manner in which the Corsairs defeated the Reds in both contests.

SWIFT, FRENCH SHINE

While admitting that many of the National League clubs have not struck their real stride, Benswanger nevertheless was impressed by the two four-hit pitching performances turned in by Bill Swift and Larry French against the Reds. Benswanger said in discussing the 1933 edition of the Pittsburgh club:

"The Pirates look exceptionally strong, with every department of the team improved considerably since the close of the 1932 pennant race. The pitching staff has been bolstered as a result of the addition of Waite Hoyt, who has shown as much spirit and enthusiasm in the pre-season workouts as any rookie. Meine is ready to start the season, and Kremer is showing signs of regaining the form that characterized his work when he ranked with the best hurlers in the National League. Swift's work against the Reds in the opener speaks for itself and he should prove a consistent winner this season with a year's experience under his belt. Chagnon also looks great."

IMPROVED CLUB

"While no changes have been made in the infield that finished the 1932 season, Manager Gibson has an improved quartet guarding the inner posts this season. Floyd Vaughan at shortstop and Tony Piet at second base both are improved ball players after a year of experience and their form around the keystone sack has left no room for complaint.

"The shift in the outfield, which moved Lloyd Waner from center field to left field to make room for Freddie Lindstrom, appears to be an excellent one. The younger Waner had a little difficulty at first becoming acclimated to his new duties, but he has mastered the position to perfection.

Benswanger admitted no plans for 1934 have been arranged when asked if the Pirates were to return to Paso Robles next spring.

PARKS GOLFERS ORGANIZE

The Allegheny County Parks Golfers' Association has come into being. The organization was formed last night at a meeting held in the William Penn Hotel, at which John E. Heywang was elected president; W. C. Earnest, Jr., vice president, and R. J. Krauss, secretary. By-laws were adopted, a board of directors chosen and a certified public accountant authorized to check the cost of maintaining the county links.

Preliminary plans for a united protest by some 4,000 golfers against the increase in the yearly permit cost from $10 to $20 were laid. Maurice Meyers, E. L. Hageman, G. L. Ferrell, H. F. Hartzell and Herman Strahl were elected to the board of directors.

The Pennsylvania State open golf championship tournament will be played over the links of the Scranton Country Club, at Scranton, Pa., Friday and Saturday, July 21 and 22, it was announced by Secretary George H. Flinn today.

The state amateur, which usually follows the open, has been awarded to the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford, Pa. The 36-hole qualifying round will be held Wednesday, July 12. Match play starts on Thursday, July 13, and the 36-hole final will be played on Saturday, July 14.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang is contemplating the closing of the roadway running through the fairways of Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 holes at Schenley Park public links as a safety measure, he has announced. He expects to come to a definite decision by tomorrow.

Lang also announced that the links would not be opened tomorrow as originally planned. Unless there is especially dry weather, the opening will not take place until one week from tomorrow.

RANGERS WIN CUP

NEW YORKERS BEAT LEAFS IN FINAL, 1-0

TORONTO, Ont., April 14.—(AP.)—Lester Patrick's New York Rangers have regained the Stanley Cup and the world professional hockey championship after a lapse of five years.

With five of the men who helped win the cup for Patrick in 1928 still on the squad, the Rangers conquered the Toronto Maple Leafs, cup holders, in the fourth and decisive game of the championship series here last night, 1-0, in overtime.

COOK'S GOAL WINS

Bill Cook, leading scorer of the National League, broke up the battle after 7 minutes 34 seconds of overtime. He grabbed a pass from another Ranger veteran, Butch Keeling, and beat Goalie Lorne Chabot with a neat corner drive from close in.

Paving the way for the winning goal were successive penalties to Alex Levinsky and Bill Thoms, which left the Leafs two men short and in no position to block the Rangers' last determined assault.

The victory was the Rangers' third in the best three-out-of-five series, Toronto winning only one game. The Rangers won the first game, 5-1 and the second 3-1, dropping the third battle 3-2.

Toronto outplayed the Blueshirts through the three regular periods, but they could not break through. They peppered young Andy Aitkenheard, in the Ranger nets, with 48 drives in that time, but the youngster blocked them all.

DILLON SETS RECORD

The rangers broke two records in their march to the championship. Cecil Dillon, young forward, accounted for one of them when he scored eight goals during the playoffs, one more than Frank Boucher tallied in 1928 when he set the "modern" record.

The Rangers, as a team, set a new record by coming from third place to win the cup. No other team ever has accomplished that feat.

GEHRIG SMACKS FIRST HOMER

Associated Press.

The major leagues laid aside the opening-day trappings today and settled down to the long march through the 154-game schedule that leads to the world's series while the batters in several important sectors wondered just what they could do about the kind of pitching that was being sent at them.

Fine weather, following the dismal start in the East, allowed all the clubs but the Boston Braves and New York Giants to get into action yesterday, adding some 48,000 fans to the attendance list for the inaugurals. A snow covered field at Boston delayed the Giant-Brave contest another day.

GEHRIG HITS HOMER

The world champion New York Yankees attracted more than 36,000 to their opening triumph over the Boston Red Sox and they treated the customers to a typical Yankee victory as a booming drive by Lou Gehrig in the first inning dropped into the bleachers for a home run with two on base. The final count was 4-3.

The other opener brought out about 12,000 fans, who saw the Brooklyn Dodgers turn back the Philadelphia Nationals by a 5 to 1 count. A double steal by Jake Flowers and Al Lopez and the ability of Southpaw William Watson Clark to bear down in the pinches stood out among the things that ruined the day for the home fans.

The Pittsburgh Pirates got another four-hit pitching feat and turned back the Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 2, to take an early but undisputed lead in the National League. Larry French southpawed the Reds into submission.

CARDS BEAT CUBS

Bill Hallahan, St. Louis lefthander, and Guy Bush, Chicago's noted "Mississippi Mudcat," each granted six blows in a neat duel, but Hallahan had the backing of Jim Collins and won, 3-1. Collins pasted a homer with one on in the fourth and singled home a run in the ninth.

The Washington Senators, looking very threatening again, got both pitching and hitting as they trounced the Philadelphia Athletics' collection of rookies for the second time, 11-4.

Bill Knickerbocker, Cleveland's newest rookie sensation, helped himself to a home run on his second day in the big league as his contribution of a ninth inning rally that netted the Indians six tallies and a 7-1 victory over Detroit.

The Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns went to the other extreme, pounding the apple vigorously through 11 innings before a four-run rally by the greatly revamped Sox brought them an 11-7 decision. Chicago got 20 hits off four throwers and St. Louis 14 blows off three.

Andy Kerr, the Colgate football coach, will be the principal speaker, and movies of the Colgate-Brown game of the past season will be shown.

GRAPHIC GOLF

INCREASING CLUBHEAD SPEED AT IMPACT

Tests have revealed that a great percentage of the golfers really reach the greatest speed in the clubhead a few inches before impact. This means that the velocity will have decreased by the time the actual contact with the ball takes place with subsequent loss of distance. It is clearly a case of hitting too soon, caused undoubtedly by putting forth a valiant effort to put all the strength in the blow too quickly on the downstroke. Good timing often is a fleeting quality with many, but it no doubt can be aided by allowing the clubhead to increase its pace naturally.

Most of the good golfers favor this method foregoing the forcing of the blow. Cyril Walker was a good example of a golfer with nearly perfect timing. Weighing less than 120 pounds, he was able to drive the ball prodigious distances, bringing his hand and wrist action into play at the correct instant.

He thus was able to increase the speed as the impact took place, instead of having it occur a few inches before.

SEEDED NET STARS WIN

PINEHURST, N. C., April 14.—(AP.)—Two seeded players have stroked their way to the semi-finals of the annual North and South tennis tournament here.

They were Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans; Bryan Grant, of Atlanta; J. Gilbert Hall, of Orange, N. J., and George M. Lott, of Chicago.

Hall, seeded seventh, scored his quarter-final victory yesterday over Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, seeded third. It was the third time this season the pair had met, and Hall's first victory. Hall won 6-1, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Marcel Rainville, Canadian Davis Cup player, fell before Sutter in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Grant staged a spectacular comeback from a poor start to defeat Francis X. Shields, of New York, 6-4, 6-4, 1-6, 5-7, 6-3. The Atlantan trailed 4-1 in the first set and then won five straight games.

George Mangin, of Newark, N. J., battled Lott almost to a standstill in their match, which the Chicagoan finally won, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 13-15, 6-2.

GILSON GAINS GOLF FINAL

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 14.—(AP.)—Roof Gilson, of Jackson, Mich., whose name was little known to sports followers until he married Georgia Coleman, the Olympic diver, a few weeks ago, has gained athletic recognition in his own right as he upset the favorite, John B. Ryerson, in the semi-finals of the Mason and Dixon golf tournament.

Playing steady golf Gilson yesterday defeated Ryerson, 1 up, to go into the final 36-hole round today against F. L. Gill, of New York, who upset another favored competitor, David N. Tallman, of Wallmar, Minn., 1 up, in 19 holes in the other semi-final.

McCorkindale Stops Gains in Tenth

LONDON, April 14.—(AP.)—Don McCorkindale, South African heavyweight boxing champion, last night knocked out Larry Gains, of Toronto, British Empire titleholder, in the final round of a 10-round bout.

Unbeaten in three years of campaigning in England, the Toronto Negro was an overwhelming favorite before the bout began, but McCorkindale uncovering more punching power than he ever has shown here, battered Gains from the seventh round on and finally knocked him out. Gains' title was not at stake.

A crowd of more than 20,000, including the Prince of Wales, crowded Albert Hall for the match.

Finkel to Serve As Toastmaster

Bill Finkel, who has been selected as toastmaster for the South High basketball banquet next Wednesday night, promises an exceptional program for the affair. Movies, made especially for the occasion, which include pictures of the South basketeers and the gridiron eleven, will be shown.

Honor guests will include Chick Davies, Max Hannum and Dr. Carlson, the three leading college floor mentors of the district.

MARCUS TO BOX OGER

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 14.—Joe Marcus, of Pittsburgh, and Paul Oger have been matched to box a 10-round main bout here next Thursday night.

DODGERS DROP THOMPSON, PHELPS

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—(AP.)—Manager Max Carey, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, last night announced the releases, on option, of Fresco Thompson, second baseman, and Raymond Phelps, a pitcher, to the Jersey City Skeeters, of the International League.

Thompson, a former second-sacker with the Phillies, went to the Dodgers in a trade three years ago that involved four other players and cash—Thompson and Frank O'Doul going to the Brooklyn club while the Phils received Jim Elliott, Clise Dudley, pitchers, and Hal Lee, outfielder, and a sum of cash.

Before going to the Phils in 1927, Thompson was with the New York Giants in 1926 and Pittsburgh in 1925.

GIANTS RELEASE TOBIN

BOSTON, April 14.—(INS.)—The New York Giants have released Tip Tobin, former Fordham University football star, who was seeking an outfielder's job.

BOXERS GET OVATIONS

In the final round, Thomas scored the best punch of the fight, a right to the jaw, which staggered De Grasse. He also opened a cut on De Grasse's left eye in the seventh round. While the action was of a hurricane order, Thomas' consistent leading and countering gave him the edge in every round but three, and in these, De Grasse, for all of his showiness, only held his own. The toe-to-toe stands when De Grasse rallied, round after round, drew ovations from the fans and the boxers were cheered to the echo at the end of both the ninth and tenth rounds. A third meeting appears inevitable as a result of the manner in which De Grasse sold himself to the customers and the unwillingness of many of them to accept the decision against him.

Tiger Joe Randall and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe will headline the Arena's show next Friday night. Charley Baxter will meet Louie Severo in the 10-round semi-final and Eddie Zivic is in with Johnny Durso for one of three six-rounders.

SHOT IS FATAL TO BLACK BILL

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Eladio Valdes, little 27-year-old Negro boxer who fought in the ring under the name of Black Bill, died today in Harlem Hospital of a self-inflicted bullet wound in the stomach.

Dispirited by failing eyesight, which he traced back to an unsportsmanlike incident of a ring encounter two years ago when an opponent allegedly rubbed resin in his eye, Valdes shot himself Saturday in his Harlem apartment.

Valdes had been practically without funds for the last two years. A benefit boxing card was put on for him a year ago at a New York club.

Black Bill was a finalist against Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, in a flyweight elimination tournament promoted by Madison Square Garden in March, 1930, losing to Wolgast in a bristling 15-round bout. Wolgast still is recognized in New York State as champion of the class.

C., in the first round; Eddie Schaffer, of the Burke A. C., won by a technical knockout over Bill Shamonsky, of the P. V. A. C., in the second round, and Mike Morzek dropped Henry Gladkowski, of the Burke A. C., in the second round.

RESERVE GOLD SHOWS HUGE INCREASE

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Gold reserves of the Federal Reserve Banks increased $845,737,000 between March 8 and April 12, reaching a total of $3,529,276,000 on the latter date, according to figures from the Federal Reserve Board today.

This remarkable gain has resulted from return of gold from hoarding, gold movements from member and other banks to the Reserve institutions and a comparatively small gain in monetary stocks following the restrictions on exports.

The ratio of gold to Federal Reserve notes is now more than 70 per cent. The ratio of reserves to deposits and notes war 60.6 per cent April 12, compared to 59.7 per cent the week before and 69.4 per cent a year ago.

CIRCULATION DECLINES

Total monetary gold stocks April 12 were $4,293,000,000, a gain of $10,000,000 in a week and $50,000,000 since March 8. Gold stocks were $87,000,000 below April 13,1932.

Money in circulation has decreased $1,391,000,000 since March 8. There was a collossal gain in the month preceding March 8 as a result of banking holidays, causing the entire country to turn from checks as a method of paying bills to "cold" cash. Circulation April 12 was $6,147,000,000, a drop of $114,000,000 in a week, but $724,000,000 higher than a year ago.

DOLLAR WEAK IN PARIS

PARIS, April 14.—(INS.)—The American dollar was in the sharpest decline since the United States bank holiday today after it closed on the Paris exchange last night at 25.35 francs.

Owing to the Easter holidays, there will be no official quotations until Tuesday. Banks today were paying between 24.70 and 24.90 on the dollar to the general public.

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—Monetary gold stocks of the United States rose $18,700,900 yesterday, the largest gain in several weeks, as a result of release of that amount from stocks of metal held under earmark for foreign account.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City, decreased $1,000,000 during the week ended April 12, to $375,000,000. Machinery to Win Capital Faces Change

By B. C. FORBES

"THE SHOW must go on," is the imperative dictum of the theatrical world.

New financing must go on if America is to go on.

Now that security adjuncts of powerful banks are being divorced, what machinery will be or can be devised to raise billions of necessary new capital annually?

Mr. Forbes

SOME BANKERS declare that no adequate machinery is within sight, that the problem has not yet been solved. Diligent investigation, however, has elicited that some such method as the following may be devised:

Investment banking firms will play the principal role. The prospect is that their standing with the public will be improved by legislation calling for information covering their resources.

Also, investors hereafter will be provided with more comprehensive data than formerly concerning each flotation, the trustworthiness of the data sworn to by the company originating and the underwriters offering the securities.

SUPPOSE A $50,000,000 block of bonds had to be marketed. The railway, industry, utility or other corporation creating them would open negotiations with some well-known private banking house such as J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer & Co., Dillon, Read & Co., Halsey, Stuart & Co., Bonbright & Co., White, Weld & Co., or the successors of the National City Company and Chase selling organization.

An agreement would be made either to have the investment bankers agree to purchase the entire issue, thereby underwriting or insuring its disposal by the issuing corporation, or, the bankers, if doubtful as to the salability of the offering, could undertake to market it, or as large a part of it as proved feasible, for a certain commission.

THE INTERESTED firm or firms would then proceed to place with other investment houses, with dealers, with insurance companies, with banks, with other large security interests, wholesale and retail, as much as possible of the issue.

Having thus succeeded in placing most or all of it, the investment sponsors would advertise the offering and obtain as much favorable publicity as possible about it and its attractiveness.

On that day all who had agreed to subscribe would make payment to the issuers.

Then, either immediately, or within a stipulated time, say, one week or two weeks, the issuers would make payment to the corporation.

If immediate payment had been agreed to, the sponsors could arrange for what the financial world calls a "day loan" from some big bank or banks, as is done in certain foreign countries.

SUPPOSE AN investment firm underwrote an issue and found that it could not quickly dispose of all of it, it would have to employ capital of its own to make payment or obtain bank accommodation.

SILENTLY, unostentatiously, unknown to the public, a revolution is already under way in marketing securities.

The vast National City and Chase organizations of security salesmen don't begin to compare in magnitude today with what they were during the boom. Almost every other institution and firm that honeycombed the continent with security salesmen has likewise reduced its force drastically.

MEANWHILE, investment trusts and other distributors of securities have recruited thousands of "dealers," as they are called, throughout the country. Many of these dealers do all their own actual selling, while others employ a few or a considerable number of doorbell-ringing salesmen.

These dealers often are not tied up with any one firm or group, but undertake to sell whatever their clients want.

IT MAY be, therefore, that instead of New York, Chicago and other metropolitan firms building up or rebuilding vast armies of salaried or commissioned salesmen, hereafter the bulk of the ultimate distribution will be done through dealers.

UNLESS UNTHINKABLY impossible legislation should be passed, the financing show will go on. It must.

Wage Drop Is Greater Than Living Cost Institute Says

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE COST OF living in 1932 declined 22.9 per cent from the 1929 level, but a further drop is in prospect, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute's current bulletin.

The bulletin declares that the slump in the cost of living is out of line with the much greater declines in wages and wholesale prices.

The cost of living in the United States declined 9.4 per cent during 1932 according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington. This brought living costs down 22.9 per cent from the pre-depression peak reached in December, 1929.

* * *

Decline in Wages Was Even Greater

THE INSTITUTE finds that factory wages were reduced by 26 per cent since 1929 as compared with a decline of 22.9 per cent in the cost of living. In previous depressions wages showed less of a decline than the cost of living. The bulletin says:

"In the depression of 1921 wages declined 11.1 per cent as compared with a drop of 23.2 per cent in the cost of living and a drop of 45.3 per cent in wholesale prices. In other words these three factors became stabilized at the end of the depression with the cost of living level half way between the wage level and the wholesale price level.

"From the standpoint of wages, therefore, it is apparent that the cost of living must undergo further deflation. There is evidence that the wage level is now at the bottom and that wholesale prices will reach the bottom at a level about 40 per cent below the 1929 peak. With wages 26 per cent below the peak and wholesale prices 40 per cent below the peak, the cost of living should be 33 per cent below the peak, or 13 per cent below the present level."

Cost of Living Index to Drop

IN THE OPINION of the Hamilton Institute, if this precedent is to be followed, a decline in the cost of living index from the December, 1932, figure of 132.1 to 114.8 would be indicated.

This liquidation in the cost of living is not likely to be uniform for all items. The Institute points out that the various factors which compose the cost of living did not start the decline from a uniform level in 1929 and since then they did not decline uniformly. This would make it evident that some items will decline more than others. In the case of food, the Hamilton Institute believes that some recovery is to be expected.

Markets Observe Good Friday Holiday

NEW YORK, April 14.—(INS.)—Banks and stock exchanges were closed today in observance of Good Friday. Regular business will be resumed tomorrow.

A number of comodity markets, however, will observe a double holiday both today and tomorrow. Among this group are the New York Cotton Exchange, the National Metal Exchange, the New York Cocoa Exchange, the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange and the New York Rubber Exchange.

RAILROADS ASK BAR SUPPORT

NEW YORK, April 14.—(AP.)—In an effort to obtain support of the country's lawyers, rail executives today presented a copy of a proposed bill to provide federal regulation of interstate motor transportation of freight and passengers at a public hearing before the commerce committee of the American Bar Association.

The bill was presented by Arthur P. Russell, vice president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, and Harry Z. Maxwell, counsel to the Pennsylvania Railroad, both appearing as representatives of the Association of Railway Executives.

It was described as having the support not only of the rail executives body but also of the organized bus operators of the country, the highways freight association, the association of state public utility commissioners and the large urban street railways of the country. The bill was opposed by La Rue Brown, counsel to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

NATION FACING CROSS-ROADS IN ECONOMICS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Thoughtful business men and bankers, though in no mood for applauding all he said, recognize that there was more than jesting in George Bernard Shaw's remarks about exports, foreign loans, and economic nationalism.

Mr. Rukeyser

In acting on the data adduced at the forthcoming economic conferences at Washington with leading nations, Americans will have to choose between economic self-sufficiency and economic internationalism. Inasmuch as silk from Japan, tea from China, tin from Bolivia, rubber from the Dutch East Indies, and coffee from Brazil are among our principal imports, the economic nationalists here think that our chief economic negotiations should be with such nations with which we can trade on a barter basis, rather than with the leading industrial nations of Europe, which are our competitors rather than our natural customers.

A peaceful revolution is in the making in the growing attempt to make economics an applied science, rather than mere metaphysical speculation. The newer attempt is to relate economic conclusions to actual bookkeeping records of business conditions, rather than to continue to attempt to make theoretical dogmas realities in themselves.

Those who are thinking in these terms believe that the problem of economic reconstruction consists of restarting the free circulation in the home market of goods and services, which are the products of hours of labor of vast social groups.

They think that such circulation has been interferred with through the disproportionate decline in farm prices as compared with prices for finished urban goods. They think that the remedy for the totality of business lies in raising farm prices, and some recommend straight price fixing, instead of the roundabout alternatives which have been suggested. They think that price fixing will make it possible for the vast social groups to resume barter, and thus restart the economic circulation, without which the system decays and deteriorates.

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

Two flights of stairs led to Marjorie's flat on the third floor of the building. Both flights were in darkness, but a tiny blue electric light burned on each landing. The air was warm and it smelled like the air in a cellar.

Within the flat was like a little forest of floor lamps. There were two orange-colored ones on either side of the door. There were two pale green ones at either end of the wide sofa, and there was another green one beside the tiny baby grand piano. A lemon-yellow one stood behind a lemon yellow arm chair between the windows.

Sharlie did not know whether she liked the room or not. It struck her that there were too many velvet floor cushions on the hearth rug and in the corners, just as there were too many lamps.

But it was a comfortable room. The sofa was wide and soft as a great bed of pale green moss. A coffee table stood in front of it. But instead of a silver or brass coffee service it held a tray filled with little bright colored glasses and a tall pink glass decanter.

"Apricot brandy," said Marjorie when she saw Sharlie looking at the decanter. "Pour some for her, Caddy."

SHARLIE PUZZLED

Sharlie tasted it. It was bitter-sweet like almonds, she thought, and not at all like apricots.

"Have a cigaret?" asked Marjorie, holding out a big Dutch silver box filled with brown Cuban cigarets with silver-paper tips.

"Want to come out to my room and fix up your face?" asked Marjorie next. "The wind has blown all the powder from mine, I know."

Marjorie's bedroom was orchid-pink. The furniture was that color and so were the taffeta silk draperies. On the floor were two huge white bearskin rugs, and there was a lace spread on the bed.

But the woodwork was plain yellow hard wood and so was the floor. The bathtub in the tiny bathroom had been painted blue-green and so had the walls and the floor. But the bathroom looked cheap nevertheless.

"Now, why does she live in a place like this building?" Sharlie asked herself, washing her hands in the bowl with a cake of real Castile soap and drying them on a linen towel that was edged with filet lace...Surely Marjorie could afford to live in a better neighborhood than this one that was too near downtown to be fashionable or even quiet.

KITCHEN WELL STOCKED

When she went back into the bedroom she found that Marjorie had slipped out of her gleaming black satin and was putting on a dress of thin blue muslin.

"I can't work around a kitchen in long sleeves and things," she explained. "Al wants me to make a Welsh rarebit."

In the living room Al was filling his cigaret case with Marjorie's brown cigarets. He closed it quickly and slipped it into his pocket when the two girls came out of the bedroom.

"Well, how about our rarebit," he asked in his easy, smiling way, and the four of them went out into the kitchen.

Sharlie never had seen a kitchen like Majorie's kitchen. It was so tiny that four people had to play fox-and-geese to move around in it. It was painted bright yellow, and the shelves were loaded with good things to eat—most of them in tins or glass.

There were boxes of Swedish wafers and Dutch chocolates. There were rows and rows of marmalade jars from England. There was a bottle of East Indian chutney and a big glass jar of guava jelly from Florida. There were tins filled with chicken and ham and baked beans and Russian caviar.

"Now, then, watch Mamma throw some food together," said Marjorie in her brisk way. She took some cheese and an egg from the ice box in a corner, and lit the gas stove.

A FAMILIAR NAME

"Get a bottle of beer out of that ice box, Al," she said, "and, Sharlie, would you like to set the table? The dishes are in the cupboard above the sink and linens in the drawers underneath—"

She stopped and held her head to one side, listening. "I muffled that telephone, but I believe I hear it making some kind of noise," she murmured. "Oh, dear—" She dropped the cheese and the knife that she held and hurried out of the kitchen.

"It was Norman," she said when she came back a minute later. "He's on his way home from some place or other, and he just wanted to pop in and say goodnight to me . . . I told him I'd been in bed for three hours." She laughed.

Norman . . . That was the name of the handsome blond man who was Dodie's and Maud's great friend, thought Sharlie. Could Marjorie's Norman be the same one?

It might have been 10 minutes afterward that a bell pealed long and loudly in front of the flat.

"That's Norman. Ringing the doorbell this time!" Marjorie threw her fork down upon the kitchen table with a clatter. "Well, I'm not going to let him come up! Do you suppose he's seen your car parked down there, Caddy?"

Caddy nodded. "Sure, he's seen it," he answered. "But as it looks exactly like 17,000,000 other cars in the world, I don't imagine he knows it's mine."

MOTHER'S FRIEND

"I'd better go and find out if it is Norman," Marjorie decided and started for the little living room with Sharlie at her heels.

Down in Fifth street, just across the road from the building where Marjorie lived, stood the big cream colored roadster that Sharlie had seen standing in front of Maud Hanaberry's apartment house only a few days before. There was no mistaking it.

"Oh, dear, I may as well let him come up or he'll ring the whole building down," Marjorie said. "He's seen the lights on up here, of course." She crossed the room and pressed a button near the front door of the flat.

Sharlie stood beside her, waiting. There was a sound of someone running quickly up the stairs. Then a blond head came into the shaft of light from the doorway and Sharlie saw that this Norman was the man whom her mother and Maud Hanaberry knew so well. He was smiling, his teeth very white in his tanned face. In the brilliance of the little room Sharlie saw that he was older than she had judged him. Fine lines sprayed out from the corners of his blue eyes as he grinned down at Marjorie.

INTRODUCED TO SHARLIE

"So this is the little liar who told me she had gone to bed at 10 o'clock and had fallen asleep reading a magazine," he said to her in an amused indulgent tone, as if he were scolding a naughty but adorable child.

Marjorie smiled back at him brazenly. "And this is the big Swede who's been riding a blonde around in his roadster," she said. "And don't bother to deny it, because I saw you, darling—and if you don't play square with me I won't play square with you. Those are the rules, you know."

"Are they?" The man laughed. "Well, I'll admit I've been riding a blonde around a bit lately, honey, but she was a married blonde—and—"

Marjorie stopped him with the air of a person who had heard explanations of that sort from him before. "That's all right, Norm," she said. "I know you're married, and I haven't any right to be jealous. Look here, I want you to meet Miss Barnum." And that was all she ever said in the way of introducing Sharlie to the tall blond man.

They all started for the kitchen.

"Caddy and Al Green are out here making a Welsh rarebit," Marjorie said. "They started out to give Miss Barnum a good time, and they picked me up as a chaperon."

How they all juggled the truth, thought Sharlie, listening . . . But then, she had juggled the truth a little herself when she had told Caddy that her name was Sharlie Barnum.

Synopsis

Pretty Sharlie Dunn marries Eddie Wallis, youthful ruffian, following a night spent in Eddie's car when it ran out of gas. The same day Eddie is killed by an automobile. Sharlie's mother, Dodie, and Maud Hanaberry her friend, have gay parties while their husbands are away. Sharlie is sent to her grandmother's. One night, returning unexpectedly, Sharlie observes Dodie and Maud entertaining two men. Later, Dodie informs Sharlie she is going to leave her husband. That afternoon, Mr. Dunn and Mr. Hanaberry return and take their wives and "friends" by surprise. Both husbands leave home. Longing for a good time, Sharlie calls Caddy Dean, whom she met at a dance hall. She goes to a roadhouse with his friends. Returning home they stop at the apartment of Marjorie Milliken, Caddy's friend.

THE "THIN RED LINE" AT BALAKLAVA (1854.) (World's History.)

England allied with France, Turkey and Sardinia against Russia, to support the integrity and power of the Sultan on the Crimean Peninsula. One of the first battles defeating the Russians was at Balaklava, memorable for the heroism of the British soldiers, who formed the "Thin Red Line." The Crimean War was concluded by the Treaty of Paris (1856) guaranteeing the independence of the Ottoman Empire. (World's History.)

"LONG FLAME" PROCESS (Chemistry)

Calcium oxide or "quick lime" (CaO) is manufactured by heating limestone (CaCO3) in a kiln. To produce lime free from ash, the fires are built at the side of the kiln, the gases passing up through the kiln filled with limestone ("long flame" process) and the lime being removed at the bottom.

Lime is made also by heating a mixture of limestone and coal, but the product will be contaminated by ash. The equation of the process: CaCO3 = CaO + CO2—42,000 cal. The generated carbon dioxide is expelled together with combustion gasses. (Foster: Elements of Chemistry.)

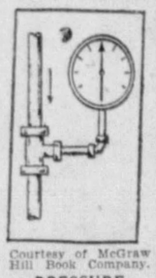
FUNDAMENTALS CONCERNING THE FLOW OF WATER IN PIPES (Science.)

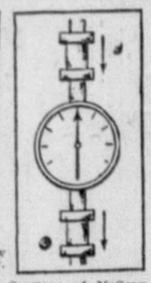
By comparing waterflow with an electric current, we understand more readily the electric phenomena! The cause, the quantity per time unit and the factors regulating the flow. The cause of the waterflow is the hydraulic pressure (weight of pressing water column per square inch.) (1) If in tanks A and B the water level is the same, the pressures being equal and their differences zero, no flow of water in pipe P will occur when valve V is opened. (2) The level in A is higher than that in B; the difference causes the effective hydraulic pressure, which moves the water through pipe P as shown by arrow. (3) The pressure at pipe (b) is greater than that at pipe (a). Opening the valves (b) will discharge at a higher rate than (a). (4) Pipe (a) is short and straight. Pipe (b) is longer and curved, hence it offers more resistance to the flow. Pipe (a) will discharge faster than pipe (b). (5) Pipes (a) and (b) are equal; pipe (c) has smaller diameter. Latter offers greater resistance to the flow; hence it will discharge less rapidly than the former. (Smith: Industrial Electricity.)



Courtesy of McGraw Hill Book Company.

PRESSURE GAUGE (Science)

It is used to measure the hydraulic pressure (lb. per square inch). Picture shows typical method of connection. Note: Only little water enters it. (Smith: Industrial Electricity.)



Courtesy of McGraw Hill Book Company.

THE FLOW-METER

THE CIRCULATORY SYSTEM OF BIRDS

The right and left sides of the heart are separated in order to show that the blood makes only one circuit, though it passes twice through the heart. Arrow shows direction. Venous blood is represented dark, arterial light. The large vein which brings the blood from the intestines to the liver divides again into capillaries, which connect with those into which the hepatic artery branches; in reptiles but not in birds there is a similar system in the kidneys. We Must Refuse by Request

Writer has had considerable chunks of requests for speech made last month on going to press hour.

Sorry that no copies of speech are in existence as it was suppressed by the postal authorities, the League for Better Polka Dots and the platter jugglers of the cafeteria districts.

It wasn't much of a speech as the writer has a voice that charms no snakes, captivates no music lovers and calls no hogs. He sounds like a walrus pacing a fish dinner in the zoo. At one time he burst into song and every retired fireman in the world reached for his rubber boots and his red hat.

There is no necessity to reprint the speech because it was merely about five of these columns stuck together with chewing gum and hemstitched with appropriate stage waits.

It merely illustrates that hokum via the verbal route is more powerful than logic in the written word. We don't know why this should be. But we have listened to orators swaying an audience with a mess of misinformation. And that must be the reason why politicians take the stump instead of sending postcards.

An explanation might be that the ear can stand more punishment than the eye. And as for reprinting that speech, we're glad that it is over and forgotten. Every time we get through speaking we expect the audience to rush up and throw us through the transom or approximately that spot in a stone wall where a transom should be.

We are writing this explanation to let you know we are acting more through self-preservation than modesty. If the short-wave jabber amused anybody, let it go at that and allow the farmer to hoe his weeds and the fisherman to mend his nets.

No talker ever got a kick out of talking into a mike. We note only one exception. And that is personal. Some years ago we were invited to broadcast from a theater to Commander Byrd at the South Pole. On the program was the Virginia judge and Trader Horn. Everything went fine until Trader Horn's whiskers got tangled in the mike and short-circuited the aurora borealis. That wasn't the thrill.

We got the kick when an electrical engineer told us that Commander Byrd heard our words quicker than the people could grasp them who were in the same room with us.

Which was nothing new. People in the same room with us always act that way.

Secretary Hull's Antiquated Theories

Do Not Meet Modern Conditions.

Secretary of State Hull is doubtless sincere in his belief that the revival of world trade waits upon a general reduction of tariffs by mutual agreement of the nations.

This has been the theme of many of his speeches in the Senate and he has succeeded for the time being in "selling" his theorem to the administration.

He is a responsible statesman, called upon to face actualities and concerned with the immediate effects of policy upon the commercial well-being of the country.

This is of more importance, as well as interest, than loyalty to an idee fixe or the preservation of the symmetry of a visionary theory.

WHAT ARE THE REALITIES OF THE SITUATION? That is the question for a statesman.

While waiting for his theory to blossom, the American home market is still at the mercy of foreign competitors whom the Secretary of State hopes to persuade to renounce the advantages in our market which they now enjoy.

He asks these powers not to utilize to the utmost the access to the American home market which by our supineness we have given them—a market which we are too dull and indifferent to protect.

Weeks pass into months and months into years, with no realization by our government of its duty to protect our merchants and workers NOW against currency inequalities that operate so ruinously against them both.

Reciprocal tariff concessions will never be granted upon a scale and to an extent which will vindicate the Hull theorem. If such concessions come at all, they will come grudgingly and in parsimonious measure, after interminable talk and waste of time.

Meanwhile the American home market is a happy hunting ground for England, Germany, France, Japan—in fact almost every country in the world, with cheaper labor costs than ours and with the advantage of depreciated currencies.

To ignore our daily losses arising from these conditions, to suffer them to continue while we strain our gaze in an endeavor to envision a distant goal, which is uncertain of attainment, is folly.

* * *

It suggests a refusal to apply a tourniquet to stanch the flow from a gaping wound, on the ground that unimpeded circulation must not be interfered with.

England is coming to the world economic conference, but fortified in advance by the Ottawa agreements barring American products from all British markets.

Germany will approach the council table with a long list of special duties, which she has not hesitated to adopt to protect her domestic market against American importations.

And so with France and the other nations invited to lend a hand in the abolition of world tariffs.

These nations have no less interest than we in a logical approach to the problems of trade revival throughout the world.

In the meantime, however, they have not scrupled to use the resources of emergency legislation to protect their respective home markets by adequate tariffs.

Why should not we? What is the answer?

Save the Schools!

The Proposed Reduction in the State's Educational Budget Threatens Public Education.

The executive board of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters has raised its voice in righteous indignation against proposals of Gov. Gifford Pinchot and Republican State Chairman Edward Martin to reduce the state's public school budget.

Every civic body should join in the protest.

If the plan goes through it will necessitate a drastic cut in the salaries of many Pennsylvania school teachers whose pay is none too high.

In the name of economy a blow is aimed at the welfare of the children of Pennsylvania.

Greater City Progress

Another Election on the Metropolitan Plan for Allegheny County Seems Assured.

Another benefit has come out of the Legislature. It has passed the measure referring to the people of Pennsylvania a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the extension of the municipal boundaries of the city of Pittsburgh to include all of Allegheny County.

There is no reason to doubt that the people of the state will grant this authority.

Then will come enabling legislation, to be followed by a decision on the Greater Pittsburgh question by the voters of the county. When the proposal was up before, the charter required not only a majority vote in the county but a two-thirds majority in a majority of the municipalities. The vote barely missed filling those requirements.

With the requirements made less difficult in the new plan it should be carried through to success before the next census is taken.

Garden Spots

The Bureau of the Census has released some statistics in which Pennsylvanians will find cause for pride.

The statistics deal with the 50 leading agricultural counties of the United States, ranked according to the combined value of crops and livestock products produced in 1929.

Pennsylvania furnishes four of the counties—a greater number than are to be found in any other state except California. The four counties are Lancaster, in ninth place; York, nineteenth; Chester, thirty-second, and Berks, thirty-eighth.

The distinction that Pennsylvania has won in agriculture is due more to good farming, we suspect, than to rich soil and favorable climate.

Leading the Way

(Copyright, 1933.)

Michigan has set the pace. On April 10 the duly elected convention of that State met and recorded its vote—99 for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and only one vote against.

Before the Michigan election the Prohibitionists said they had an "even chance" in the State. But one delegate out of a hundred was all they could name. Thus the first State to ratify the repeal amendment does so by an overwhelming popular mandate.

Wisconsin will ratify on April 25th. In May, Wyoming will hold its election, and New Jersey and Indiana will elect delegates in June.

All in all, nearly 30 states have set up their repeal machinery, and action is pending in the Legislatures of several other states.

A Personal Word: Murphy: War Hawks

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

After many years of editorial writing, I am to have a recess for a time. It is not an easy matter to relinquish work that has been pleasant—and it has been especially pleasant during the period I have occupied these two columns. Under no management I have known have I been granted such absolute freedom of opinion, even to the point, at times, of assuming a position not in complete harmony with the policy of the Hearst papers.

Nothing has been written as the result of instructions; nothing has been the result of a conference on policy; and not once in more than two years has a single word been censored. To a journalist this makes an ideal situation and one all too rare. The result is that I have never been asked or expected to write a line in which I did not believe. This has been due to the liberality of policy primarily of the owner of this great combination of newspapers. It has been an inspiration to work under such management.

And it has been a thrilling experience to reach literally millions of men and women from Boston to San Francisco, and to hear from many thousands of them from day to day. While impossible to acknowledge all these letters, all have been read, and a great number of them with profit.

Whatever the future may bring, there is nothing in the past that will be remembered with such unalloyed pleasure as the days of my connection with these great newspapers, dedicated to the economic and political welfare of the masses of the people, and to the maintenance of the fundamental Jeffersonian principles of the republic.

Prejudices Born Of Ignorance

It is axiomatic that it is difficult to hate anyone we really know. Most prejudices are born of ignorance or misunderstandings. This is true between nations as between individuals. France, having in mind what it thinks is a feeling against her in the United States, has voted an appropriation to be expended through moving pictures, the radio, the press, magazines and lectures in the removing of these imagined prejudices.

There is no doubt, that France suffered a bit here because of the comments of the French press and some deputies apropos of the refusal to make the December payment on the debt. But everyone here, while resenting the point of view of these, had a thorough appreciation of the position of Herriot.

It is true that for some years a misunderstanding of the two peoples, that did not reach governmental circles, has been developing. The people of both nations have been responsible. American tourists have returned convinced that the French do not like Americans, and the French, judging all Americans by some, have concluded that we are an arrogant, flamboyant, boastful people, overpleased with ourselves because of our money. (Ah, those old dead days!) Individuals in both nations can do more to remove these prejudices than government.

* * *

A Shooting Is More Colorful

One of the plans proposed is to have the right kind of news from France sent American papers. No nation, however, has suffered more from overemphasis in the foreign press of the wrong kind of news. Thus one day the municipality of New York may appropriate millions of dollars for the feeding of the hungry, and on the same day in one little spot there may be a shooting between gangsters. Americans abroad hear of the shooting but nothing of the appropriation. This sort of thing is not a deliberate attempt to misrepresent us; it is due to the fact that a shooting is more colorful and sensational than an appropriation.

Thus we get here the sensational isolated riots in other countries, but not so much of the constructive work that is going on.

But the document setting forth the plan for wiping out the alleged anti-French prejudices here has an amusing side. It proposes that lecturers shall be sent to the United States of a different type than that which has been represented on the platform. The latter type is described in the document as "unhealthy-looking, decrepit, tired, feverish, worn-out, coughing and trembling old men bound into frock coats."

* * *

This, we think, is a bit rough on the French lecturers we have seen over here. Take Tardieu, for instance. Nothing unhealthy looking about him, nothing decrepit. But still Tardieu is a middle-aged man and the document proposes young men. The old men who have come are hardly fairly treated, as witness:

"They have to be put to bed upon their arrival, with hot water bags at their feet, and awakened just in time for their conferences when they are rushed to the railway stations with a thousand precautions. That is the reason France is pictured as a tired, worn-out nation."

And among the old men referred to may be some of the very distinguished old statesmen who have come here for conferences—and some not so old. We did not hear that hot water bags had to be put to the feet of Laval.

But—and here is a French view of the American scene—the document is sure that the women of America have an important viewpoint which is impressed on the nation. Thus the good-looking young lecturers who are to come. We shall be glad to see them and hear them—but what they say will be as important as how they look.

Perhaps the best thing proposed aside from the use of the press will be the weekly radio speech from Paris. Those from London have done much to bring two peoples together.

* * *

Mayor Frank Murphy Has a Big Heart

The appointment of Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit as Governor-General of the Philippines will meet with general approval except in certain circles that are, and always have been contemptuous of the viewpoint of the Filipinos. He is a very able man, with a fine mind, but he has something else that is just as important and too often has been overlooked—he has a big heart. More, he has a natural sympathy with aspirations for freedom and with the underdog. That has made him seem dangerous to a certain element. That is the quality of the man that appeals to me.

An American newspaper in the islands is much disturbed because the appointment has been commended by public men here who are deeply sympathetic toward the islanders. We are more interested in knowing what the native papers have to say. But this we know—Frank Murphy is a four dimensional man with a good heart, a humanitarian outlook, and we can afford to have such men in the service of the nation.

A Suggestion For a Historian

With insane war talk in the air, Nicholas Murray Butler in a report for intercourse and education division of the Carnegie Endowment complains that arms and munition makers are reaching out as of old, and to a greater extent, perhaps, than formerly, to control the action of governments relating to peace. He charges these with responsibilities for the theory that while we must work for peace we must prepare for war.

Here is a suggestion for some historian: It would make a fascinating and important volume if some one would undertake to trace the degree of responsibility of wars to the propoganda and conniving of the manufacturers of arms and ammunition. If he could—and of course he can't—have access to the archives of governments he would tap a rich mine we have no doubt.

All of which means that behind most wars —is the greed of a very small minority ever ready to turn the blood of the slaughtered youth into dividends. It does seem that society, in a crisis especially, ought to find a way to protect itself against the propaganda of the cold-blooded schemers for war for profit.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Womanhood

She would have filled her days with these:
White roses in the sunlight's gleam,
Strange, haunting, muted melodies
And laughter like a silver stream.

But life took all she loved away;
The starlight and the white moths' wings.
She, who seemed made for song and play,
Was forced to deal in sterner things.

The magic of the twilight hour;
It took the lovely things of earth
To give her soul a nobler dower.

Ah, pure the gay, child heart she had
And blithe and sweet her carefree years!
But life made her less sure and glad

So with a woman's mind, at length,
She welcomed every chance and change;
Serene and ready, full of strength,
For all life brought of sweet or strange.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 14.—Thoughts while strolling: Those hotels, twice as big as the court house, one never knew existed until stumbling upon them. What became of Adolph Klauber? Commissioner Mulrooney has a sprinkling of Bob Fitzsimmons' freckles. Will Irwin's curls. Secretary Woodin's rose-bud smile.

Bob Davis, a Brownville, Neb., boy, who made good in the city. Owen Davis grows plumper. Earl Benham doesn't look a day older than he did 20 years ago. How do they do it? Something about a sheep dog suggests G. K. Chesterton. Nobody can slick up their hair like Vincent Lopez.

One of my favorite people—James Woods. Cliff Sterrett has more double letters in his name than anyone I know. Excepting Alex Woollcott. Difficult to imagine Jack Lait a grand-pappy. The old Gilsey House corner where sports used to gather in Floradora days.

One word description of Hendrik Van Loon—waddly. No humorist is so widely missed as Kin Hubbard. How fitting his line of 10 years ago: "Ez Pash's son has joined the Regular Army to keep from inheriting the farm." Haven't seen Basil Rathbone around since I don't know when.

Otto Kahn's jack knife bow. No wonder Ezra Pound's poetry pleases Ernest Hemingway. Especially that "A Draft of XXX Cantos." They used to chalk the same stuff on the coal house. Yet threaded with beauty withal. Me—discussing poetry! I wouldn't know an iambic if it jumped in my lap. Come on Dawn!

I know a charming lady who wrote a mildly ribald book under a nom de plume. It netted a snug sum she intended to use to help educate her daughter. But her conscience troubled her so, as a penance she has given the proceeds to charity.

People are usually surprised when they meet Joe Toplitzky, former Broadway box office man and now a Los Angeles real estate dealer. His name suggests a venerable junk merchant in a skull cap. Instead, he's one of the smartest dressers on the Coast, with the profile of a movie sheik and the gloss of a young Spanish grandee.

* * *

It strikes me strangers, too, are so often surprised in seeing Skippy's creator, Percy Crosby, in the flesh. There are any number who are under the impression he is a ruddy Englishman with a drawling voice. I somehow pictured him like that myself until we met. He is Brooklyn born and would not look out of place at an executive's glass-topped desk.

My greatest disappointment in visualizing celebrities in the New York flow was a close-up of the late Florenz Ziegfeld. I had thought him slight, dapper and bald, with blurry features. Instead, he was a six-footer, broad-shouldered, with aquiline profile and a shock of iron gray hair.

Likely no one in New York is called to perform so many strange tasks as Bill Egan. As stationmaster at the Pennsylvania there is a legend he can always hurdle the insurmountable. And usually does. Because he has been greeting incoming and outgoing celebrities for 30 years, he has become a sort of handy man for the great. He is a giant in stature with a leather-lunged voice, and this combination speeds things in emergencies. Among rewards is a collection of autographed photos with as wide range almost as Isaac Marcosson's.

This sudden paragraphic glow for Bill Egan was inspired by Ashton Stevens arriving in town the other day and missing a suitcase between the station and his hotel. "I'll call up Bill Egan," he said, and did. In 30 minutes it was returned by the driver of the taxi in which it had been left.

As one who knows nothing of art but knows what he likes, devotions now center on those clumsily crude drawings turned out by James Thurber. My biggest laugh of the depression was his disappointed clod gazing mournfully at a droopy-eyed bloodhound with: "Go on, trace something!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Father—
It's Easter
In your waking world—
Please help me feel
Your Easter in my heart.
The grass, the trees,
The birds and bursting buds,
They all want life—
Then make me want it, too!
Make me want life
In spite of everything—
And give me warmth
To seek it joyously—
And grace to use
Its gifts abundantly,
And courage, so
I'll risk it recklessly,
If by that risk
I find more Love and Light

They say Christ Jesus
A grave to hold Him in—
He loved life so
He broke the seals of Death,
And walked again in gardens
With His friends.

But we are mortal, God—
And we're afraid—
We pray for life
Yet, when it comes,
We hide!

IT IS NOT DEATH
THAT KEEPS US IN A TOMB,
BUT FEAR OF LIFE—

We dread the price
One pays to be a man—
The loneliness that comes
From growing wise—
The burden one must bear
For being free—
It is so hard
To live life gallantly!

Death's easy—
For those who die
Need do it only once
And then the struggle's done—
But those who live
They must keep going on
And face
The same grim problem
With each cringing morn.
And so
We build our tombs
Long years before we die—
Snug peaceful tombs
Of fear or grief
Or wounded pride
And crawl within them,
Shutting life outside.

BUT BRAVE SOULS
CHOOSE TO LIVE
IN SPITE OF PAIN.
THOSE WHO LOVE LIFE
BREAK TOMB
AND LIVE AGAIN!

Help me love life
Like that, my Father—
Help me hate my tomb
Until at last
I roll away the stone
And take fresh chances
With myself and life!
And so with each new day,
Help me to fight!
And give me courage
Not to run away
From all the pain
The coming year may hold—
But make me glad
And brave enough to go
Through any Calvary—
If, with the dawn,
At last I surely know
That Death is but a dream—
BUT LIFE AND LOVE GO ON!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Aren't you too prone to blame teachers for the fact that your children show deficiency in their examinations?

You may never have tried to teach them something that required mental effort.

If you had, you might have found that they will not concentrate.
